CHUGGING TO SEATTLE

Redoubtable machines of the past that have become popular collectors' items, three Model A Fords, vintage 1928-'31, are lined up in the parking lot of San Rafael's Holiday Inn, en route to a national convention of Model A owners in Seattle. Tending to their gleaming possessions yesterday, owners Arthur Cheverton (leaning over), Merle Smith (center) and George Pope, all Riverside County residents, have covered 451 miles, drawing admiring glances of other motorists along the way. Two other Model A vehicles in the caravan didn't fare as well, breaking down en route. But one family returned home, hopped into its everyday car and caught up with the group.

Nixon Crackdown On Airline Search

Skyjackings Force President's Move

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon has ordered anti-skyjacking precautions extended to every passenger on every U.S. airline flight, regardless of how short the hop.

Nixon acted after two hijackings in as many days in California skies while he vacations at the Western White House. One hijacking left a passenger and two hijackers dead, and the other passed right over the Southern California coast area where Nixon's villa is located.

Nixon's order Friday extended to all passenger lines, including short haul commuter flights, the regulations that had been in effect for transcontinental and international flights. Airlines which had been allowed to spot-check 10 per cent of passengers must now extend such measures to everyone boarding their planes, the Western White House said.

There were conflicting and imprecise versions of what specific steps would be required, and it was expected that the Federal Aviation Administration would fill in and clarify the minimum inspection requirements next week.

It appeared however that airlines would have to search all baggage carried on the plane, apparently including women's purses.

Passengers themselves would have to be screened by one or more methods including passing through a metal-detecting device, comparison with an FAA "profile" or personality indicators that are supposed to reveal potential skyjackers, positive identification by means of documents such as drivers license that includes the passenger's picture, and searches of passengers if believed necessary.

It was apparent that the purpose of Nixon's action was to bring pressure on the airlines to get tougher, and to push the airlines into doing the job themselves instead of waiting for federal policing.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's chief domestic affairs adviser, outlined the move before a group of Southern California editors and broadcasting executives Friday, and said if the airlines fail to comply, even stricter rules may be imposed.

There will be a federal check-up on how well they enforce the requirements, Ehrlichman said, remarking:

"When you find hijackers able to bring submachine guns aboard airplanes, it has to make you wonder about the effectiveness of these sanctions ..."

This was a reference to a recent hijacking out of St. Louis.

The President and his advisers have made it clear they feel that the airlines, rather than the FBI or some other government agency, should take the major responsibility for curbing hijackers.

California Seats Up For Floor Fight

Combined AP and UPI

MIAMI BEACH — Henry M. Jackson predicted today that organized labor would publicly refuse to endorse George S. McGovern for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

McGovern was headed for Miami Beach and his supporters worked feverisly to firm up his frontrunning position in the wake of an adverse Supreme Court decision involving his claim to all 271 California delegates.

Two hours before McGovern's arrival, darkhorse candidate Jackson in what appeared part of a virtual coalition of all other candidates to block McGovern raised the threat of absence of labor backing for McGovern.

Labor has consistently supported Democratic presidential choices in the past, but some AFL-CIO leaders were said to be working actively behind the scenes here in what has become a growing stop-McGovern movement.

Jackson, a senator from Washington State, told a news conference that McGovern forces were running up "against a stone wall" in efforts to garner the last 250 or so delegates he needs to win the nomination.

McGovern's chief foe for the present, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, said his chances were "much better" after the Supreme Court ruling Friday.

Humphrey challenged McGovern and all other candidates for the nomination to take a party loyalty oath by Monday night.

Humphrey said he would support the nominee as long as that person supports the party's "platform and principles," and called on all other candidates to do the same.

"It i my judgment that if a candidate does not make this pledge, that he is not playing fair with the delegates to the convention," Humphrey said at a news conference.

Humphrey's challenge clearly is aimed at McGovern, who has said he may leave the party if the Democratic National Convention nominates someone else through tactics he considers unfair.

In a sharp setback for McGovern almost on the eve of the convention, the Supreme Court Friday night blocked lower court rulings which gave McGovern all California's 271 delegate votes and barred the seating of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The effect of the Supreme Court's action, by a 6-3 vote after hours of closed discussion, was to strip McGovern of at least 151 and possibly 153 California votes. At the same time it gave him 41 of Daley's 59 votes.

The net reduction of approximately 110 votes reduced McGovern's total, by his own count, to 1,431, and by a UPI tabulation to 1,285 of the 1,509

Most Don't Mind Search Of Baggage

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—"I don't mind at all," said Jane Burnside as an agent for Pacific Southwest Airways rummaged through her bag of clothing. "I think there should be some check."

Carrying out President Nixon's order to commuter airlines for stricter anti-hijacking measures because of two hijackings of Pacific Southwest Airlines planes in two days, the agent pulled keys, makeup and purse from the 23-year-old Menlo Park woman's handbag. Then, satisfied, he allowed her to board the plane for Sacramento.

Her reaction was typical of the passengers who stood in long lines Friday at San Francisco International airport, scene of several hijackings, while their hand-carried luggage was searched.

Thomas Marks, Arbuckle, said he and his wife checked in two hours before departure time so United Air Lines would have plenty of time to screen them.

"I've had butterflies all day just thinking about this," said his wife as the couple waited in line to start a vacation trip to Yugoslavia.

But, Marks said, "No one checked us and they should have. We'll see just how good their checking methods are. I've got a travel iron in my bag and it should show up in the metal detector."

Passengers stepped one at a time through the parallel bars of the metal-detecting device, while a United employe kept an eye on the monitor. A security official stood outside a small booth where personal searches are made.

The Markses got through without their baggage being checked. The United employe smiled a greeting as they walked by him and onto the plane.

"I'm kind of fed up with all these hijackings," said Ed Smart, 20, San Francisco, as he

CONVENTION SEATS

15 States Will Be Challenged

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The Democratic Credentials Committee printed today more than 7,000 copies of its report recommending the seating of 3,203 delegates to the national convention.

Challenges involving delegates from 15 states must still be decided by the convention.

The report—resulting from 10 days of hearings by the 150-member committee — was flown from Washington Friday night for printing and distribution to the delegates at least 48 hours before the convention starts Monday.

One of the most explosive issues to be settled is the seating of California's 271 delegates. The convention must also grapple with a challenge to the Credentials Committee's vote against seating 59 delegates led by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

There were two additional disputes involving Illinois delegates and complaints have been filed on the seating of delegates from Michigan, South Carolina, Georgia, Rhode Island, Alabama, Hawaii, Connecticut, Kentucky, Missouri, Virginia, Washington, Texas and Oklahoma.

Officials reserved a room at the convention hall for challengers awaiting the outcome of their disputes.

When the Credentials Committee met on June 25, there were 82 challenges to 1,289 delegates from 30 states and Puerto Rico representing 41.5 per cent of the delegates. Most of the disputes resulted from new rules adopted last year to "reform" the convention structure and make it more representative of the party.

According to the latest statistics from the Credentials Committee, there will be 1,271 women or 39.7 per cent of the delegates compared with 13 per cent in 1968; 683 or 21.3 per cent of the delegates are under age 30 compared to 4 per cent in 1968; 483 or 15 per cent are black, compared to 5.5 per cent.

The Credentials Committee report—the first order of business before the convention — lists all the motions accepted by a majority of the committee and motions filed by a minority which under the committee rules is comprised of only 10 per cent of the 150 members.

Some of the remedies suggested in the minority reports are:

Hawaii: Increase the size of the 20-member delegation by adding five women to the current four and reduce the 141-2 votes of the 16 males to 81-2 votes. The women also would share 81-2 votes.

South Carolina: Add eight women alternates as full voting members of the 32-member delegation, thereby reducing the votes of 16 males to less than one full vote.

REFEREE GOES HOME

Another Delay In Chess

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) —New complications, which might further delay the start of the world chess championship match between Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union and American Bobby Fischer, arose today when the chief arbiter left Iceland.

Lothat Schmid, a West German grand master picked by the International Chess Federation (FIDE) as arbiter, flew home this morning and said he would not return until next Thursday—when the second game is scheduled to be played.

Schmid, who runs his own publishing firm in Bamberg, said he was going back to Germany because his son had been injured in a traffic accident.

Schmid had invited world champion Spassky and challenger Fischer to come to the chess hall together Sunday to study the facilities and, hopefull, approve them.

This touchy job will now be taken over by Gudmundur Arnlaugson, serving as Schmid's deputy.

"This could be critical," said Fred Cramer, vice president of the U.S. Chess Federation. "Picking the board and the pieces is a much more difficult job than to referee the match as such."

U.S. chess sources would not rule out the possibility of a further postponement of the first game—already delayed nine days—as a result of Schmid's departure.

The first game of the 24-game match is scheduled to be played July 11.

Fischer stayed indoors today observing his sabbath, which last from 6 p.m. Friday until 6 p.m. Saturday. Fischer is a member of the California based Fundamentalist sect called the Church of God.

Spassky went salmon fishing with an Icelandic chess player, Froeystein Thobergson, who had invited both players to fly to Northern Iceland where the salmon streams are rich.

Chess-mad Icelanders continually speculate who will win and compare the different personalities of the Soviet champion and his American challenger.

Spassky, a Russian, mixes freely and appears to be just about everybody's favorite. Fischer has in effect cut himself off. As one of his seconds put it, the 29-year-old New Yorker "lives in his own world."

Fischer's actions in turning up late for the match, which was scheduled to have begun last Sunday, and in fighting for more money have hurt his reputation here.

"We don't like Fischer," said a Reykjavik waiter. "He might be a great chess player but he is behaving like a child."

Spassky, 35, purportedly a journalist, arrived more than two weeks ago and moved into a hotel as just another guest. He goes shopping alone, plays tennis and goes swimming with his advisers —but without a police guard.

He always has a ready smile for the many fans who want to exchange a word or get his autograph. He eats in the hotel restaurant.

Fischer, when he arrived, was whisked directly from the plane to a villa on the outskirts of the city that was put at his disposal. Outside was a police guard.

For days he stayed indoors and made only two forays outside —once in the early morning when he asked the police guard to take him to the hall where the match will be played and once to the countryside, where he went for a walk.

Fischer then decided the house was too noisy and asked for another one, meanwhile moving to the presidential suite at the most luxurious hotel in town, the Loftleider.

He has made no public appearances except at the draw to determine who would play white and thus get the first move in the opening game. Spassky won that draw.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Peron Can Run

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Alejandro Lanusse climaxed months of long distance haggling with former Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron last night and said Peron could run for president if he returns from exile by Aug. 25.

The armed forces have set presidential elections for March 25, 1973.

Peron, 76, a nationalist who cultivated organized labor and the poor, still enjoys a massive following in Argentina. He was president from 1946-1955, when a military junta overthrew him. He is in Madrid.

Vote Of Approval

ROME (UPI) — Premier Giulio Andreotti, with one vote of confidence down and one to go to get his middle-of-the-road cabinet functioning, says his opponents are right to criticize Italy's past development.

Andreotti passed his first test last night when the chamber of deputies gave him a 329 to 288 vote of approval on his plans to deal with the nation's serious problems of violence and economic recession.

He faces a similar confidence debate Tuesday in the senate, where the coalition government's majority is a narrow four votes.

Burning Rampage

KARACHI (UPI) — Thousands of Pakistanis went on a burning and looting rampage today in protest against a language bill approved yesterday by the Sin province legislative assembly making Sindhi the only official language in the province.

More than 100 persons were injured.

Most of the rioters were Urdu — speaking Pakistanis, mainly refugees from India.

Guerrilla Killed

BEIRUT (UPI) — Ghassan Kanafani, official spokesman of the Arab guerrilla organization Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine was killed today in an explosion in his car, police sources said.

The sources said a woman who was with him was also killed.

Police sources said Kanafani's car apparently exploded as he got into it near his home in a Beirut suburb.

Prince To Marry

BARNWELL, England (UPI) — Prince Richard of Gloucester, the "mod" cousin of Queen Elizabeth and 10th in line of succession to the throne, marries a pretty Danish secretary today in a 600-year-old parish church.

The wedding of Richard, 27, and Birgitte van Deurs, 25, will be attended by the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and Prince Charles, but Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are holidaying in Scotland and will not attend.

The couple met when both were studying at Cambridge University six years ago.

WHO'S RUNNING WHO?

A hardy young man who chose to "run the bulls" in Pamplona, Spain, headed for a bruising landing as the annual week-long Fiesta of San Fermin began yesterday. Thirty-five persons were injured, none seriously, in the event. The bulls run half a mile through barricaded, cobblestoned streets to the bullring, where they face Spain's top matadors.

2 U.S. Jets Downed By MIGs; B52 Lost

SAIGON (UPI)—Two U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers were shot down by Soviet-built MIG jet interceptors between Hanoi and the Chinese border and all four crewmen are missing, the U.S. command announced today.

One of the F4s went down about 60 miles northeast of the North Vietnamese capital and 25 miles south of China. The other was shot down 30 miles northeast of Hanoi. Both were lost on Wednesday, the command said.

A B52 bomber on a combat mission to Vietnam from Guam crashed today into stormy seas about 300 miles west of the island in the Western Pacific, the Air Force said. A spokesman said search planes had sighted all six crewmen but their condition was not known. He said a Japanese merchant ship was heading to the rescue.

The spokesman said the cause of the crash was not known. It was the fifth B52 known lost in operations from Anderson Air Force base on Guam. The command has never admitted that any of the big bombers were shot down by the Communists.

Nine B52 bombers were forced to land on Okinawa today after being diverted by bad weather in the vicinity of Guam, it was reported in Tokyo. It was the second such incident since the island was turned back to Japan on May 15 and provoked protests in Japan and Okinawa. The U.S. removed all B52s from the island some years ago at the request of Okinawan and Japanese au A total of 62 U.S. aircraft have been downed by MIGs in the Vietnam war, while American planes have shot 150 MIGs out of the sky.

Since the air war began eight years ago, .994 American aircraft have been downed over North Vietnam by MIGs and antiaircraft fire, 58 of them since the start of the current offensive March 30.

Since March 30, a total of 67 American fliers have been reported missing in North Vietnam.

The Command also announced that 12 122mm rockets hit the U.S. air base at Da Nang today, killing one American and causing "light material damage."

U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marine jet fighter-bombers flew 240 sorties against North Vietnam in the 24 hours ending at 5 p.m. Friday, the command said today.

Navy pilots bombed the Danh Do La island transshipping point in the Gulf of Tonkin 35 miles east of Haipong and reported destroying 15 buildings and a warehouse and setting four large sustained fires.

California Jobless Rate Rises To 6.1%

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration has announced California's unemployment rate increased to 6.1 per cent in June even though the number of jobholders reached a record high.

In its monthly report issued Friday, the state Department of Human Resources Development said unemployment rose last month from 494,000 to 570,000, edging up from the 5.9 per cent jobless figure in May.

Sigurd I. Hansen, department director, said 75,900 persons were added to the job rolls last month, increasing total employment in the state to a record 8,254,800. The previous high was 8,219,000 recorded in September, 1969.

The number of jobseekers also increased, Hansen said, mainly because of the "usual influx of new entrants into the labor market in June, such as graduates and youth seeking summer work."

Hansen said the 570,000 unemployment total was 101,000 below the June 1971 level.

The number of unemployed workers receiving unemployment insurance benefits went down from 366,500 in May to 332,100 in June.

In the Los Angeles metropolitan area, the unemployment rate remained at 5.9 per cent, with employment climbing by 51,500 and the jobless ranks joined by 27,800.

The unemployment rate in the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area went up from 5.7 to 5.8 per cent.

The department also reported jobless rates for the following areas, with last month's figures in parentheses:

Anaheim-Santa Ana-Garden Grove, 5.6 (5.8); San Diego, 6.3 (6.6); San Jose, 5.6 (5.4); Riverside-San Bernardino-Ontario, 5.8 (6.2); Sacramento, 6.0 (5.7); Fresno, 6.0 (6.1); Bakersfield, 6.4 (6.0); Oxnard-Simi Valley-Ventura, 6.2 (6.4); Stockton, 8.8 (7.5); Santa Barbara Santa Maria-Lompoc, 5.4 (5.3); and Vallejo-Fairfield-Napa, 5.2 (4.9).

U.S. Jobless Dip Biggest In 7 Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Labor Department says the unemployment rate has taken its biggest month-to-month drop in seven years as virtually every category of worker found jobs in a record June.

The unemployment rate stood at 5.5 per cent, down from 5.9 per cent in May. It marked the lowest jobless percentage in 20 months.

Although the number of workers reached a record 81.7 million, the number still looking for jobs also rose, by 1.1 million in June, to 5.4 million.

Another 91,000 persons dropped out of the labor force in June. Their numbers were not considered in computing the unemployment rate, announced Friday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS).

BLS said the 5.5 per cent unemployment rate was seasonally adjusted to compensate for the normal big influx of students into the labor force during the summer vacation. The influx, however, was below average for previous years.

Officials said the number of teen-age workers was the lowest in two years, but their unemployment rate declined from 15.7 per cent in May to 14.5 per cent in June.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of Congress' Joint Economic Committee, said the 5.5 per cent rate was an "illusion." He gave the number of youth workers as an example, saying that 160,000 of them dropped out of the labor force from frustration.

Proxmire said the unemployment rate was actually unchanged among breadwinners and the June deviation for all workers would show up in months to come.

BLS said unemployment rates for married men 2.9, and household heads, 3.6, were the same in May and June.

All other categories showed declines. The May-June rates were adult men, 4.3 to 4.0; adult women, 5.9 to 5.5; white, 5.3 to 5.0; Negro and other races, 10.7 to 9.4; full time workers, 5.6 to 5.0, and state insured, 3.7 to 3.6.

The overall drop of 0.4 per cent was the biggest monthly decline since the buildup of U.S. troops in Vietnam began in 1965. The 5.5 rate was the lowest since 5.4 in September, 1970.

Haagen-Smit Named

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has named Dr. A.J. Haagen-Smit, professor emeritus of the California Institute of Technology, to continue as chairman of the revised state Air Resources Board.

Skyjack Suspect To Undergo Tests

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A young Vietnam veteran was held without bail and ordered to be given a psychiatric examination after he gave up an attempt to hijack a Pacific Southwest Airways plane Friday on the advice of a veteran police officer he held hostage.

Francis Goodell, 21, Manassas, Va., AWOL from Ft. Riley, Kan., for the past week, collected $455,000 ransom before he surrendered at Oakland. He handed over two pistols to California Highway Patrol Capt. Lloyd Turner.

"I told him that as soon as he stepped down the ramp an FBI agent is going to squeeze one off and your head will disintegrate," Turner told newsmen after the second hijacking of a PSA plane in as many days.

The first ended when two hijackers were shot dead in a gunbattle aboard a parked plane across the bay in San Francisco. One passenger was killed and one wounded in the shootout.

Goodell was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Richard S. Goldsmith who scheduled a preliminary hearing July 17. A federal public defender was appointed to represent the bespectacled, soft-spoken Goodell.

FBI agent Charles Spyropoulos said in an affidavit to the court that Goodell had ordered a helicopter to be waiting for him at Oakland airport so he could be flown to a nearby industrial park. Goodell was alleged to have parked his car there loaded with personal belongings and ammunition.

The agent said Goodell had "cased" the airport for two days before he made the attempt to hijack the Boeing 727. He ordered the plane to fly to Lindbergh Field, San Diego, while the ransom money was collected.

Goldsmith, in discussing the possibility of a psychiatric evaluation, said, "this is so bizarre as to indicate some aberration."

State Transportation Measure Defeated

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — After critics said the proposal smacked of imposing mass transit on local governments, the Senate narrowly defeated a bill Friday requiring the Legislature to adopt a statewide transportation program.

The measure by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, would have required the Legislature to adopt every four years a transportation program act, including highway and transit plans. It was rejected on an 188 vote, three short of the necessary 21.

First Joint Mission Technical Session

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—American and Soviet space scientists have agreed on an agenda and established work plans for a two-week series of meetings designed to solve technical problems facing a joint Soviet-American earth orbital mission in 1975.

The first technical session between the two countries was scheduled to begin today.

Mill Valley Burglar To Jail Again

A 29-year-old San Franciscan who has spent most of his adult life in prison was sentenced to a third prison term yesterday, this time for the burglary of a Mill Valley home.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court ordered Bruce David Morawe to prison as recommended by staff at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, where he underwent 90 days of evaluation.

Acting as his own attorney, Morawe admitted Feb. 23 that he had burglarized a home at 365 Lovell Avenue on Oct. 31.

Morawe, who first ran away from home when he was 7, has had about 12 felony arrests, including being absent without leave from the Army and was in prison in Kentucky from 1961 to 1965. He was imprisoned in California six months after his release for a burglary, and paroled in 1970.

Ag. Preserve Boundary Due Sudy

The Marin County Planning Commission, meeting Monday at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, will consider changing the boundaries of the agricultural preserve to exclude certain parcels near Novato.

Some 20,000 acres of the preserve near Novato were rezoned in May to the controversial A-60 designation, but numerous parcels were omitted pending Monday's hearing.

The county planning department has recommended that most of the Novato area land remain in the preserve and be rezoned to the A-60 designation, requiring 60 acres for each new dwelling.

The lands are located mainly northwest of the city and include properties around Mount Burdell.

The planning commission also is expected to consider forming a "development coordination committee" to help alleviate the commission workload.

The committee, to be composed of various county department heads or their chief assistants, would meet with developers to resolve differences prior to going before the commission.

Riot Troops Arrive

HOMESTEAD AIR FORCE BASE (UPI)—About 2,500 riot-trained Army paratroopers and Marines began arriving Friday night "to enjoy the south Florida sunshine" and help quell any disturbances that might occur at the Democratic National Convention.

Rabies Shot Clinics To Begin Next Week

Annual rabies vaccination clinics will begin Tuesday and continue through Aug. 17 at various county locations, the Marin County Health Department announced yesterday.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said a vaccine which is good for two years will be used at all clinics.

State law requires that dogs at least four months old be vaccinated against rabies. A $3 fee will be charged.

The first of 12 scheduled clinics will be held Tuesday from 6 to 8 p.m. at Marion School in Novato. Dogs must be on a leash, Dr. Albrecht said. She added that parents have been requested not to bring their children with them.

Other clinics scheduled are:

Corte Madera — The town safety building at Tamalpais and Pixley avenues on July 27.

Mill Valley — The city corporation yard at Sycamore Avenue and Camino Alto on July 18 and Aug. 10.

Novato — Marion School at 1705 Marion Avenue on Aug. 15.

Point Reyes Station — The fire house at Second and A streets on Aug. 1.

Ross — Ross Elementary School on Lagunitas Road on Aug. 8.

San Anselmo — The city corporation yard at the end of San Francisco Boulevard on July 27.

San Rafael — The city schools administration building at Third and E streets on Thursday, Aug. 3 and 17.

Woodacre — The county fire station at the end of Railroad Avenue on July 20.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning the health office at Marin Civic Center.

LDS Church Names Lee As President

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Faithfully following a tradition reaching back to the days of Brigham Young, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Friday named Harold B. Lee, senior member of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, to be its 11th president.

A religious and political conservative, Lee, 73, said he foresees no change in the Mormon policy against admitting Negroes to the priesthood. The priesthood, a group joined by most males in their teens, carries out the spiritual and secular duties of the church.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidant, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches, and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Supreme Court Ruling Means Early Floor Fight

needed for nomination.

It also boosted the prospects of Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie, gave new hope to fringe candidates and assured the Democrats of a bitter, divisive public bloodletting.

By nullifying lower court rulings, the Supreme Court left it to the convention to decide the seatings of the disputed delegations.

If McGovern wins the California test and gets back all the state's 271 delegate votes, he would be on the brink of a first ballot nomination. If he fails, he might never reach the goal.

Humphrey, Muskie and Henry M. Jackson immediately issued statements lauding the Supreme Court's decision to stay out of convention politics. National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the convention would abide by the ruling.

McGovern, who has threatened to bolt the party if he loses the nomination because he is denied the California votes, was in Washington but his office issued a statement that said "it is now the responsibility of the delegates...to protect the 'rule of law' and the nation's time-honored sense of fair play."

But Jackson said, "This decision by the nation's highest court should help put to rest some of the self-righteous nonsense that has been coming out of the McGovern camp.

"The court now makes clear that the Democratic convention will make the decision, and the decision of the delegates should not be made with the threat to bolt the party hanging over their heads."

Muskie said he was "gratified that the Supreme Court has...prevented the intervention of the federal judiciary in the internal affairs of the Democratin party."

In an obvious reference to McGovern's anger over the Credentials Committee decision to strip him of most of his California delegates, Muskie added, "Let us do justice to the people, and let the candidates accommodate their ambitions to any decision which serves that end."

In a five-page unsigned opinion, the Supreme Court said that "for nearly a century and a half, the national political parties have determined controversies regarding the seating of delegates to the conventions."

The opinion added, "If this system is to be altered by federal courts in the exercise of their extraordinary equity powers, it should not be done under the circumstances and time pressures surrounding the actions brought in the District Court and the expedited review in the Court of Appeals and in this court."

The Supreme Court's decision in Washington far overshadowed the first flurry of real activity in Miami Beach, which inciuded the arrival Friday of most of the candidates. Among them were George C. Wallace, Terry Sanford, Jackson, Wilbur Mills, Muskie and Humphrey. McGovern was due today to complete the field.

Wallace's arrival was by far the most dramatic. Shot by a would-be assassin in a Laurel, Md., shopping center in May, and paralyzed from the waist down, Wallace flew to Miami in an Air Force ambulance plane provided by President Nixon.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who is studiously avoiding the convention and sailing his yacht off Cape Cod, might make an appearance after the nominee is chosen, his administrative aide, Eddie Martin, said in Washington.

Instructor Son To Face Drug Charge

The 22-year-old son of a San Quentin Prison shop instructor was booked into Marin County Jail early today on suspicion of possessing possible heroin and being in a place where drugs are used.

Brent Russell Stocker, of House 78, San Quentin, was arrested shortly after midnight in Gerstle Park in San Rafael. His father, Joseph, teaches in the prison's print shop.

Police said an officer on routine patrol noticed two men on a bench in the park which is closed to the public after 9 p.m. and investigated.

As he approached the pair, the officer said one man fled into the hills at the south end of the park but Stocker remained seated.

Police said a bent, blackened spoon containing a small amount of liquid and white crystals were found on the bench beside Stocker, as was a plastic vial containing clear liquid. A number of burned matches were discovered on the ground nearby and an empty matchbook was found in Stocker's pocket.

Police searched the park and surrounding area but failed to find the man who fled.

Stocker was held in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

CHECKS

waited in a long line of passengers to board a PSA flight to Los Angeles.

"The searching is fine by me. It's only to protect us, anyway."

PSA officials were reluctant to talk about tightened security.

But passenger agents were asking the airline's customers to show their driver's licences, or other identification.

According to federal laws, airlines are supposed to use at least three of four check methods. They are: metal detection devices, spot checks of baggage, screening of passengers against the Federal Aviation Administration's hijacker profile of likely hijackers and spot checks of passenger identification.

Young men, particularly with long hair, appeared to be singled out.

Man Is Identified After Friday Death

A young man found dead in his car in a Marin Civic Center parking lot yesterday has been identified as Dennis Francis Leahy, 22, of 255 Channing Way, San Rafael.

Leahy parked his car and ran a garden hose from the exhaust into the vehicle. Bill J. Thomas, a coroner's deputy, said Leahy had been having emotional problems and was seeing a psychiatrist.

Eclipse To Be Seen In Bay Area

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A total eclipse of the sun will spread darkness across a narrow strip of Alaska and Canada Monday and cast its shadow over parts of the United States. The blackout will range from about 14 per cent in San Francisco to 90 per cent in Boston.

Scientists and amateur astrologers will be watching from land, sea and air as the moon's shadow blots out the sun. Experts warned that viewing should be done only indirectly to avoid permanent eye damage.

Starting at sunrise near Sakhalin Island north of Japan, the eclipse will travel eastward in a 113-mile-wide arc across the Sea of Okhotsk and the Peninsula of Kamchatka in eastern Siberia, the Bering Strait, northern Alaska and Canada, Hudson Bay and the Canadian Maritime Provinces to fade away before dusk in the North Atlantic at 5:03 p.m. EDT.

Although paths of totality cross the same location on earth once every 300 years as a rule, it will be the second total eclipse for the residents of Sheet Harbor, Nova Scotia, who also saw an eclipse on March 7, 1970.

On the East Coast of America, a partial eclipse will begin at 2:32 p.m. EDT, reach its height at 3:41 p.m. and end at 4:43 p.m. In San Francisco the maximum eclipse will be visible at 10:26 a.m. PDT.

"A partial esclipe isn't very dramatic," Dr. Franklyn Brandley, chairman of New York's Hayden Planetarium, said. "As a matter of fact, unless you knew abut it, you'd think it was just getting a little dark—a decrease in light from the sun.

"Now a total eclipse, that's really an awesome sight. There's a gradual diminishing of light and increasing darkness. Just before totality there's a beautiful diamond ring effect. Then totality and—bango!—darkness. Not as dark as midnight but pretty darn dark. The chickens go to roost, the birds are still, the temperature drops."

Russ To Buy U.S. Grain Valued At $750 Million

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—The Western White House announced Saturday that the Soviet Union would purchase $750 million in grain from the United States over the next three years.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the agreement, a follow-up to President Nixon's Moscow summit last May, was the largest commercial transaction of agricultural commodities ever consummated by the United States.

Under the agreement the Commercial Credit Corporation would extend a line of credit to the Soviet Union to finance the purchase. Sale will be at world market prices, Ziegler said.

The Soviet Union purchased $150 million in grain from the United States in 1971, but that was a cash transaction and the extension of such a large purchase loan to the Soviet Union was unprecedented.

Ziegler said the borrowers would be required to pay normal interest rates and total outstanding loans could not exceed $500 million at any one time.

"Purchase and sale will be as negotiated between the Soviet Union and U.S. commercial exporters," Ziegler said.

Terms of the agreement require purchase of $200 million in grain during the first year.

Zeigler said the President felt the agreement would have three major benefits. "It will provide grain farmers with a boost in income. It will also provide jobs for Americans involved in shipping the grain, including longshoremen, seamen, exporters railroad and barge line workers. It will reduce the cost to taxpayers of storage, handling and other charges associated with maintaining commodity stocks," he said.

He said Nixon "considers this agreement a very important, concrete forward step in the commercial relations between the United States and the Soviet Union which benefits both countries."

The agreement was signed Saturday morning in Washington by Commerce Secretary Peter Peterson and M.R. Kuzmin, the first deputy minister of foreign trade of the Soviet Union.

'Small Steps' Cure For Monetary Crisis

BRUSSELS (UPI)—David M. Kennedy, the new U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), said today relatively small steps—not a big international conference—should be enough to calm world monetary instability.

"I expect evolutionary changes," Kennedy, a former U.S. treasury secretary, said in an interview with United Press International. "At this stage, there is no need for a great conference. Instead, the IMF (International Monetary Fund) could make some small changes."

Many European economists and politicians who have been pushing for a major international conference to reform the world monetary system and end imbalances like those of the past years.

But Kennedy said the IMF and other existing groups have all the power necessary now to carry out needed monetary reforms.

"At long last, the IMF is doing some careful thinking," the former Chicago banker said. "What should we do now—create another IMF?

Kennedy did not spell out in detail what he felt shguld be done. But he praised recent moves, both on the world level and within Europe, to establish "limited flexibility" between exchange rates.

Beyond that, he urged nations to recognize that "economies never stay in complete juxtaposition." He said provisions must always be made for countries that do much better or much worse than others, possibly by allowing for a "limited revaluation—a bit each year."

Drug Supplier Suspect Held

PARIS (UPI)—French narcotics police today held for charging Etienne Mosca, 38, described as a major drug trafficker responsible for shipping several tons of heroin to the United States.

The Corsican-born Mosca was arrested in Lyon yesterday after a police search and stakeout lasting several months.

Drug authorities said Mosca and several associates recently smuggled 1,760 pounds of heroin into the United States in nine automobiles. They said Mosca was suspected of active participation in numerous other illicit shipments involving in all several tons of heroin.

Santa Rosan Killed

MT. SHASTA (UPI) — Charles H. Tally, 76, of Santa Rosa was killed Friday when he lost control of his car on Interstate 5 about a mile south of this Siskiyou County community.

School Crowding Will Be Discussed

Future growth and possible school crowding will be discussed at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at a joint meeting of the Rohnert Park and Cotati city councils, Cotati School District board and Petaluma Board of Education at the Rohnert Park city hall.

Rohnert Park Mayor Arthur N. Roberts called the session to work out a method of coordinating growth with school facilities.

School Board Will Elect 1973 Officers

The Fairfax School District board will elect officers for 1972-1973 when it meets at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in White Hill School.

The board will discuss a salary schedule for the district's part-time employees, consider a teacher evaluation policy and hear reports on the district health services and summer school programs.

Bremer Will Face Charge Wednesday

BALTIMORE (UPI) —The U.S. District Court has cleared the way for Maryland to open prosecution of Arthur H. Bremer on charges of shooting Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and three bystanders.

Until Judge Edward S. Northrop's ruling Friday, there had been the possibility of a conflict between federal and state officials over who would first try the Milwaukee janitor.

Maryland will begin its prosecution of Bremer Wednesday in Prince Georges County. The U.S. case was scheduled to start July 17, but it will be postponed until the state trial ends.

"We are not playing tug of war with the state in reference to this trial," Northrop said. "The state has decided to go ahead on July 12 and we will honor that trial date."

U.S. Attorney George Beall did not oppose the postponement, but said the federal case "is ready to go to trial today."

Northrop denied motions by defense attorney Benjamin Lipsitz to dismiss federal charges.

6 Mos. In Jail For Check Fraud

Robert Monroe Newman, 48, of San Francisco, was sentenced yesterday in Marin Superior Court to six months in jail on a charge of passing a fraudulent check to buy a sports car in Mill Valley.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also fined him $500 and placed him on probation for three years to complete an arrangement under which Newman pleaded guilty last month.

Newman, who holds a master's degree in music, admitted writing a $4,029 check to Mill Valley Imports for a Porsche even though he didn't have that much money in his account.

Newman, who had four bad check convictions in the Midwest, said he got into trouble buying gifts for friends because he was lonely. The judge allowed him to serve part of his sentence at Synanon in Oakland or at De Lancy Street Foundation, in San Francisco.

Charge Reduced In Baby's Death

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Corte Madera woman will face a preliminary hearing July 14 in municipal court on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

The charge, reduced from murder, stems from the death of a baby left in the care of Clara Anne Moran, 21, who had been sharing a San Francisco apartment with the baby's mother.

The mother, Carolyn Pedersen, returned from a visit to Reno June 26 and reported both the babysitter and her 21 month old child, Justin Ward, missing.

Police found the child's body wrapped in a blanket and stuffed in a hole in the basement of Miss Pedersen's Geary Street apartment house. Mrs. Moran was arrested in her mother's home in Novato on June 27.

She reportedly told investigators the baby drowned when she left it unattended in a bathtub.

Mrs. Moran was on probation in Marin County on a guilty plea of burglary and forgery stemming from an arrest June 19, 1971, in Corte Madera. She is in city prison in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Truman Undergoes Colon Examination

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— Former President Harry S Truman, hospitalized for a week with a gastro-intestinal ailment, Friday underwent a painful direct examination of the colon.

Hospital spokesman John Dreves said the results of the test would probably be revealed at a news conference later today.

Mill Valley Woman Tells Of Attack

A Mill Valley woman has told sheriff's deputies she was robbed and raped by three youths to whom she gave a ride from San Rafael to Marin City Tuesday.

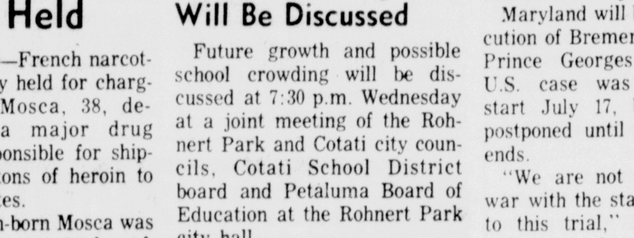

Deputies said yesterday the 31-year-old unemployed waitress told them she picked the youths up at the Hetherton Street on-ramp in San Rafael and took them to Marin City where they stole her purse.

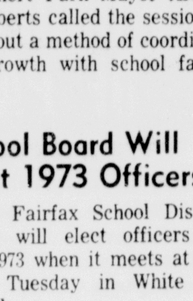

She told deputies that although the purse contained only $3 she followed them into Marin City. One reentered the car and forced her to drive to a fire road where he raped her, according to deputies.

The others followed on foot and also raped her, deputies said.

How much are you willing to lose on a $2,000 car?

The real price of a car is the difference between what you pay for it new, and what you sell it for old.

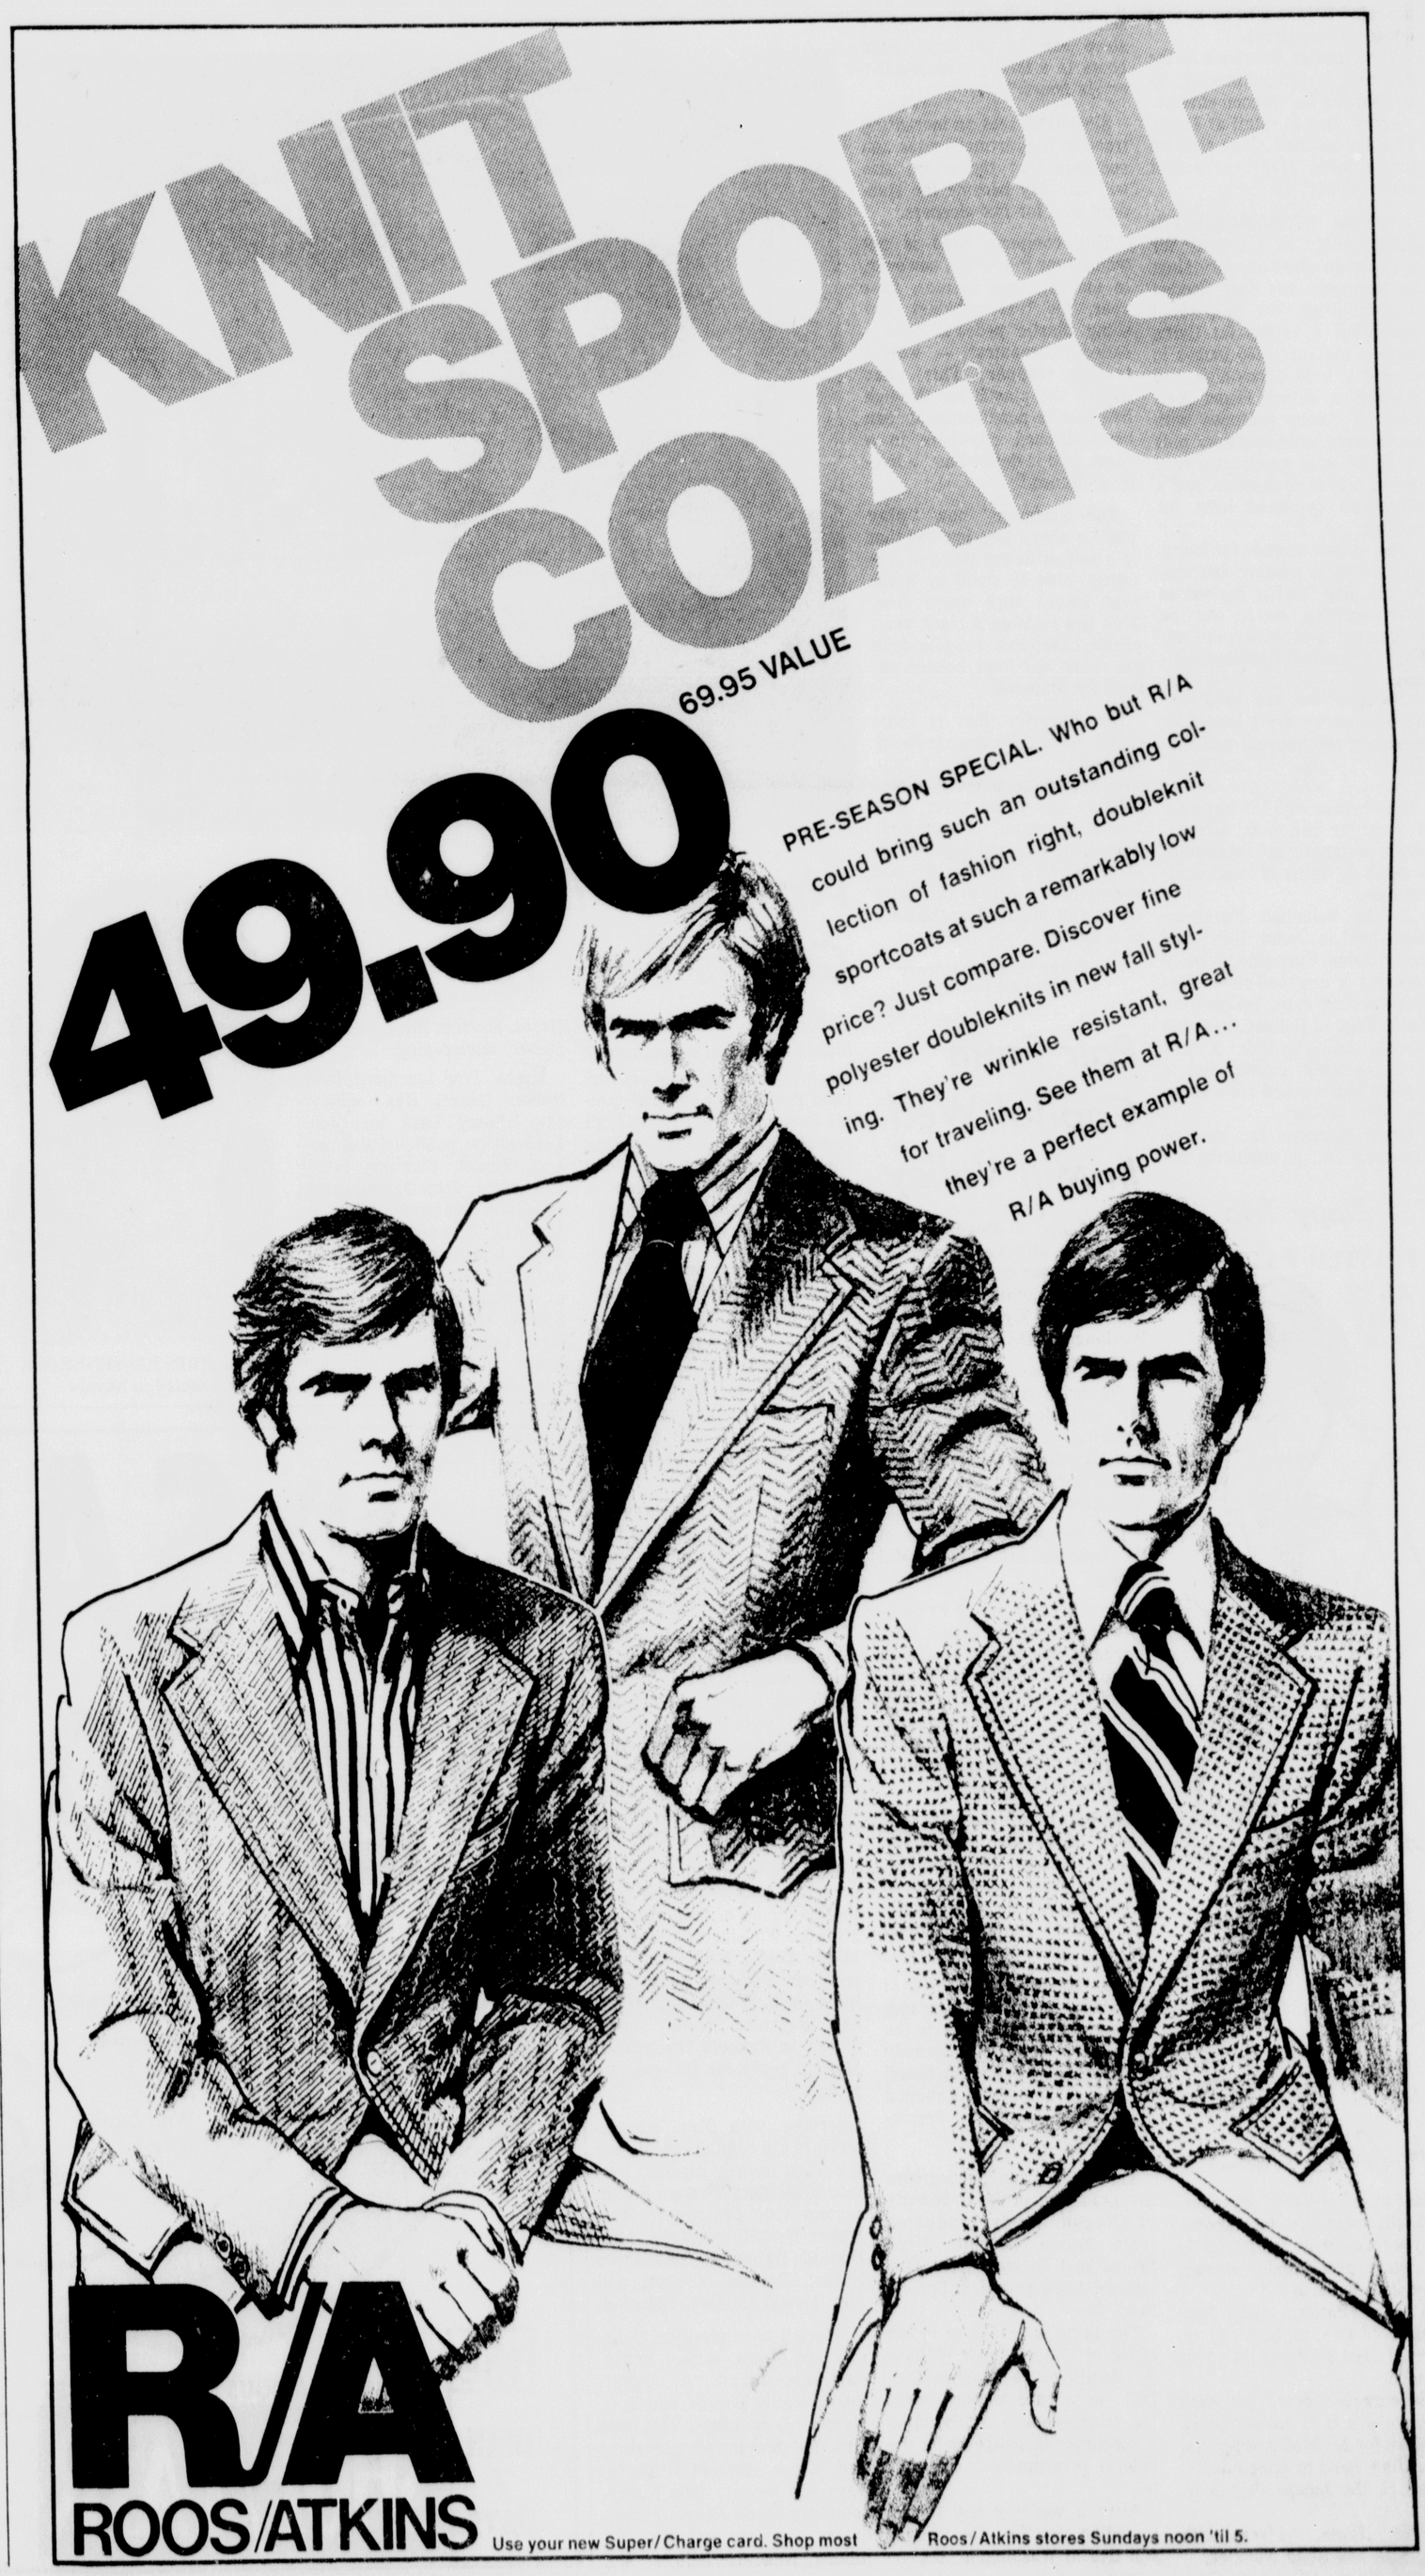

So in 3 short years, you could have lost almost ½ of your original investment. Or saved almost ¾ of it.

Fascinating Things Happen To Beds

More Daring Design Is Mark Of Newest Styles

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Fascinating things are happening to beds. They are getting more impressive, more important and more daring in contemporary design.

For several years there has been a notable interest in four-posters, from sleek ultramodern polished steel versions to traditional turned types in fine woods. Frilly and feminine canopy beds also retain theirgreat appeal.

Two southern companies have produced two great new canopy beds based on Chinese design.

Designer Kenneth Volz took inspiration from Ming furniture of the 15th Century for his impressive bed for Henredon's "Artefact" collection. It has 84-in-high squared posts, a headboard in an asymmetrical fretwork pattern, a tester with decorative cutouts and an end panel with overlay panels, and is scaled to take a 60 by 80-inch queen-size mattress.

The Charlton Co. shook up the January furniture market by introducing its "cocoon environmental" bed to retail at $1,995. This far-out new sleep solution has aroused great excitement and curiosity.

AFTER INTRODUCING it quite frankly as a novelty for the person-who-has-everything, the company has been flooded with inquiries. The bed, which resembles a rather fat flying saucer, measures 100 inches in diameter, is 68 inches high, and contains a 96-inch round mattress. It comes equipped with two stereophonic speakers plus jacks for easy connection to a record player or cassette, and a three-bulb overhead light for reading.

The cocoon is made for lounging, sleeping, reading and music listening, and is molded in three sections so it can be dismantled and easily moved. Why? we asked Charlton officials.

"Because we are creative, and because we are a leader in presenting the unusual and the different," came the confident reply.

The "cocoon bed" is but part of a larger bed-think picture. Other designers are beginning to think in terms of "bed environments."

At the Selection Furniture Show held in Cantu, Italy, last year, Home Furnishings Daily reported a new bed-cube. This free-standing cube, designed by Peter Voge of Holland, included closets, built-in desk, a seat level lounging couch, and a topside bed reached via a stainless steel ladder.

Grant Simmons Jr., head of Simmons Co., is producing his own thoughts about the bed of the future. He envisions, too, a sort of cocoon or "sleep pod," and calls it a retreat or "recuperation site" for the weary occupant.

Simmons dreams of piping in pure air scented with pine or sea or flowers and of engineering the pod "hood" with a projection device that would toss lulling and sleep-inducing scenes on the ceiling. He thinks built-in sound control could provide happy morning wake-up signals or help people learn foreign languages as they doze.

Of course, the mattress could be raised or lowered at will, and even the temperature of the pod might be controlled.

"Eventually," said Simmons, "there will be ways of analyzing how much sleep an individual needs. Sleeping efficiency may well be improved with self-training, so that a person's sleep can be cut from eight hours to a totally effective five or six hours."

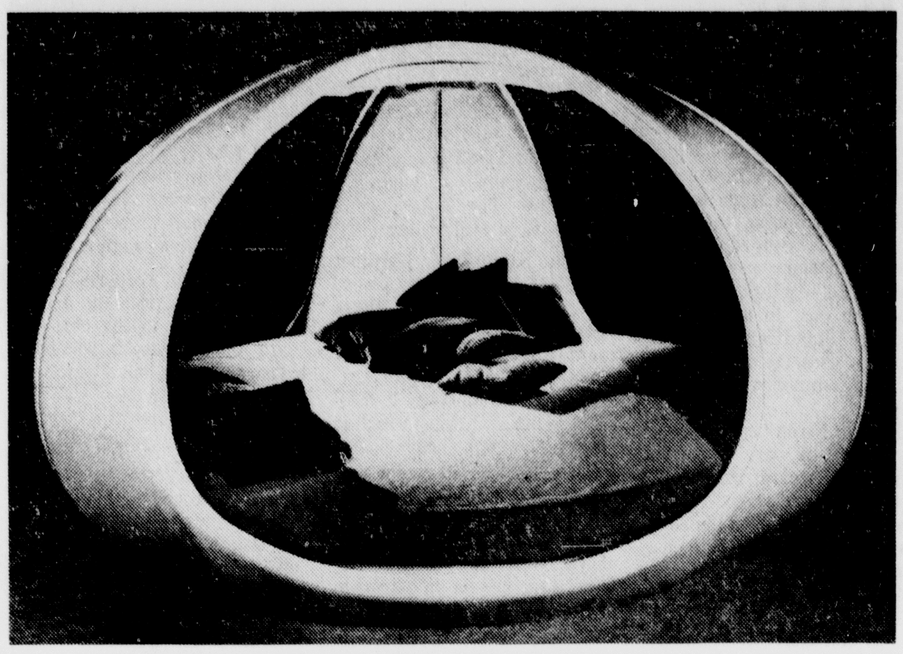

SIMMONS sees an increasing trend to harder mattresses and contends that the queen size will one day become the standard size for two sleepers.

This company head is not waiting for the future, however, to innovate bed designs. Last year, his free standing, low slung plastic pedestal bed — called "Cleopatra" — was a traffic stopper. This year there's the plastic see through bed that is nondirectional, can be positioned anywhere in a room, and is defined as "a live-in sculpture."

The Simmons' new "play pad" is also a low, low bed that is a self-sufficient piece of furniture, able to stand by itself, that leaves wall space free. This bed rests on a black vinyl plinth base, has a white fake fur cover and huge bolster pillows for lounging.

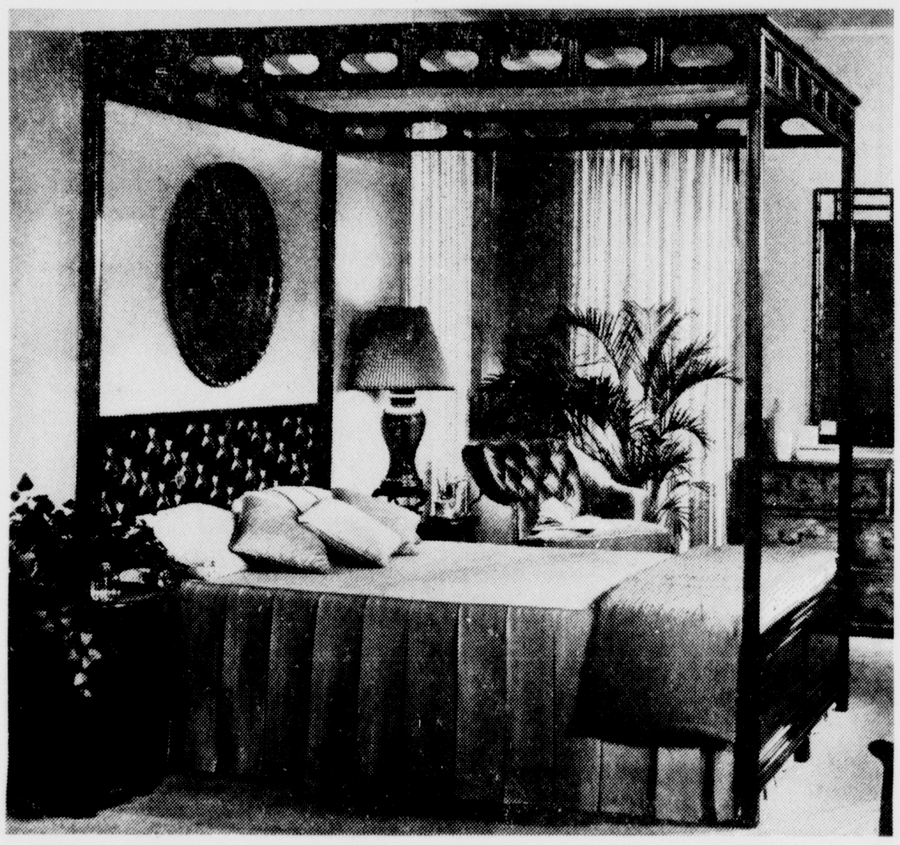

The Bachelor Bed is Simmons' answer for the one-room apartment. It combines a full-size bed with parsons table, bolsters and fitted cover, providing a seating arrangement during the day and regular bed at night. An "articulated" bed means that a person can raise his feet or his head by the push of a button.

THE COCOON BED (top photo) comes with two stereo speakers and a three-bulb overhead light. It is 100 inches in diameter, 68 inches high and has a price tag of $1,995. The styling for the four-poster bed (bottom photo) was inspired by Ming furniture of the 15th century. It has an 84-inch-high squared post, a headboard with an asymmetrical fretwork pattern, a tester with decorative cutouts and an end panel with overlay panels.

Pair From Capitol Wed In Mill Valley

Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Mill Valley was the setting for the marriage of Lucinda Susan Schilling and Richard Charles Eymann, both of Washington, D.C., at noon last Saturday.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Schilling of Mill Valley. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Oswald Eymann of Springfield, Ore., are the bridegroom's parents.

The reception was given at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley.

Myra I. Levin of San Francisco was the maid of honor. Mrs. Margaret Boner Goebel of San Diego, Mrs. Stephen W. Schilling of Puero la Cruz, Venezuela, the bride's sister-in-law; and Patricia Eymann of Eugene, Ore., the bridegroom's sisters, were the bridesmaids.

The best man was Charles M. Novak of Seattle, Wash. The bride's brother, Stephne W. Schilling, who is stationed in Venezuela with the Peace Corps and Fred F. Barlow of Brooklyn, N.Y. were the ushers.

Mrs. Maude K. Roberts of Yuba City is the bride's grandmother. The bridegroom is the brother of Mrs. Doyle Kenady of Monmouth, Ore., and Carol, Kathleen, Deborah, Rebecca and Penny Eymann of Springfield, Ore.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Oregon. Cindy graduated from Marin Catholic High School and Richard from Springfield High School in Springfield, Ore.

The bride is employed in the office of Congressman William S. Mailliard in Washington, D.C., as a case worker, while the bridegroom is employed as a consumer investigator by the federal government in the capitol.

After a wedding trip to the Canadian Pacific, the couple will live in Washington, D.C.

Novato P-TA Leader Charts Busy Year

"We plan to continue the highly successful volunteer teacher aide program and expand it to include resource people in many varied fields from Novato and the surrounding communities," said Mrs. John Kassenbrock, new president of the West Novato School Parent-Teacher Association.

Other projects will be landscaping the school site and adding play equipment.

Mary Ann Kassenbrock and her husband, a Novato dentist, have lived in Marin County eight years. They have six children —Michael, 19, Ken, 16, Mark, 15, Don, 14, Kathy, 11, and Jim, 6.

"My husband and family are my interest, pastime, and hobbies — just keeping up with them keeps me busy constantly and I love it," Mrs. Kassenbrock said.

She said she is interested in church work, particularly with youth, and music, reading, sewing and swimming. She also enjoys sports. She is active in the San Marin Parent-Faculty Club, Sinaloa Parent-Faculty, Student Club and the Marin County Dental Auxiliary.

Born in Oakland, the new president was graduated from the University of California and attended Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., where she received a degree as a registered medical technologist. She has presented dental puppet shows in schools throughout Marin County for the past six years.

Serving with Mrs. Kassenbrock in the coming school year are Mrs. James Riggins, first vice president; Thomas Smith, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Wright, secretary; Mrs. Donald Babcock, treasurer; Hubert Daniels, auditor, and Mrs. Gustaf Carlson, historian.

Selected as committee chairmen are Mmes. Robert Rettig, parliamentarian; Al Poehlmann, Walter Berger, and K. C. Martin, hospitality; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Smyth, membership; and Mmes. Robert O'Keefe, ways and means; John Kuhns, volunteer teacher's aid coordinator; and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Adams, Newsette editors; and Mmes. Sterling Hilen, and John Stuber, landscaping.

Mmes. Paul Lundberg, legislation; Robert Hax, scholarship; Larry Lack and Jules Lepkowsky, publicity and posters; Russell Fleming, health and safety; John Gartin, parent education and human relations; Thomas Edwards and Greg Abell, honorary life and founder's day; Bronislaw Kulikowski, telephone; Mr. Thomas Smith, student welfare, and Mrs. Lepkowsky, delegate to North Marin Council Parent-Teacher Association.

Improvement Club Elects New Officers

Mrs. Allen F. Livers of Corte Madera is the new president of the Corte Madera Women's Improvement Club.

To encourage and interest the women of the community in educational, moral, social and civic affairs is the club's object, according to the new president. Plans for the coming club year include a bridge marathon, literary group meetings, a bazaar, a fresh flower hat luncheon and a rummage sale.

Marge Livers is the wife of Lt. Col. (ret.) Allen F. Livers, and they have two teen-age children, Bud and Betty Lou. An Air Force family, they have lived in many places. They chose Corte Madera as a permanent home when Livers retired from the Air Force five years ago.

Crafts, needlework, art, reading and gourmet cooking are Mrs. Liver's interests.

Other new officers of the club are Mmes. Joseph Argento, first vice president; Robert Brinton, second vice president; James McClintock, treasurer; Harvey Warne, recording secretary; Edison Quick, corresponding secretary; and Edmund Doucette, auditor.

Kentfield Group Has New Head

"Action through Participation" is the theme for the year's program for the Parent-Teachers Association of Wolfe Grade School, according to the incoming president, Mrs. Harold Brownstein of Kentfield.

"We plan to work more closely with the school staff, to involve the students in decisions regardingthe school environment and attract more community involvement," Mrs. Brownstein says.

The new president has been active in the organization for six years and is the former Human Relations Chairman, as well as the representative to the Ross Valley P-TA Council.

Joan Brownstein's many community interests include serving as head of the Marin In School Program for the Docent Council of the De Young Museum, chairman of Multi-ethnic Inservice Training for the Kent School District, active support of the campaign of supervisorial candidate Barbara Boxer and Education Corps activity.

A native of Los Angeles, Mrs. Brownstein received the A.B. degree from the University of California and the teaching credential from the University of Southern California.

The Brownsteins have lived in Marin for six years. Dr. and Mrs. Brownstein have four children, Carol, 11, David, 10, Bobby, 9 and Marty, 6.

Special interests of the incoming president are art history, United States history, politics, race relations, outdoor education and skiing.

Other incoming officers are the Mmes. Merrill Ring, first vice president; Peter Dunn, recording secretary; Phillip Anderlini, corresponding secretary; Richard Crechman, treasurer; Earl Martis, Parliamentarian and John Cribbs, historian. Peter Wronsky is second vice president and Dick Oslund, auditor.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Girl's Question: How Come A Parent Can Steal And It's Okay?

RAP:

If a child is brought up to think stealing is wrong, how come a parent can do it and it's okay?

My friend gave me a radio that I loved. Mom owed one of her bridge club pals some money, and Dad's pretty tight about these things, so one day when the woman was over here, Mom gave her my radio in payment of her debt.

She says she'll get me another, but I've heard that before. A bill collector came and got tough once and I'm pretty sure she persuaded him to wait a couple of months by giving him my tape deck that I earned by baby-sitting. She said he just picked it up and walked off with it, but when I told her to report him to the police for stealing, she wouldn't do it —so I know what really happened.

Dad says she's a spendthrift and keeps her to an allowance — but I'm the one who suffers. Should I blow the whistle on her? — WHEN DOES LOYALTY END? (PIETRA)

WDLE:

I think your mother is more of a thief than the bill collector she accused of stealing — and if you don't blow the whistle now she may be in real trouble later on. — SUE

P.S. Hope your father replaces the radio and tape deck, but not his wife.

DEAR PIETRA:

"Robbing Pietra to pay pals" has got to stop. Loyalty to your mother is great but you need consideration, too. Why not suggest that she get a job and earn her own spending money? If not, a family conference is indicated. It should be a real sizzler. — HELEN

HELEN AND SUE:

Ever since I can remember I have shrugged off boys who actually liked me, but I'll break my neck trying to attract fellas that seem out of reach. The relationship goes great until the guy shows he really cares. Then I become cold and insulting. After I ruin everything, I get jealous and feel very depressed.

I'm always friendly and tactful at first but then I blow it. My mother says it's immaturity, but I'm afraid I'll always have — ONE FOOT IN MY MOUTH

OFIMM:

You said in your letter, "As soon as he shows he really cares. . ." Maybe you shy away because all you want is friendshipand the boy wants love. So you "cool" him with insults instead of honesty.

Why not let him know you like him, but you're not ready for anything serious, so "let's get to know each other better first." —SUE

DEAR OFIMM:

Maybe these boys unknowingly give you a "queen complex." There's always a tendency to take advantage of people who show they care, especially when the "queen" is immature and the "subject" is a lovestruck boy.

If he takes it, you think less of him, thus become more insulting. If he doesn't, you're covered with regrets, thus the depression over losing him. It's partly guilt because you know you've been a stinker.

Best remedy: stop thinking of boys as conquests, don't expect them to be perfect, and don't try them too far. — HELEN

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

SEW SIMPLE

Triangular Shawl Pattern Unneeded

By EUNICE FARMER
(Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I just love the triangular shawls shown with the bare-top dresses, instead of the old-fashioned sweaters. I would like to make one that would go with many things. They look so simple that I am wondering if I need a pattern.

NANCY M.

DEAR NANCY,

You really don't need a pattern and there are several variations you may use. Most shawls are made in a triangular shape. Take a 45-inch square of fabric and fold it diagonally. Instead of the deep point at the center, you may care to round this off.

Your ruffles should be cut on the bias. I usually prefer them double, about 3 inches finished width. Cut your bias strips to allow for the double width, piece them together, and fold and pin to keep the grainline from shifting. Place your gathering stitches at the raw edges and pull up to the desired fullness.

I suggest pinning and stitching these ruffles to the single layer of the shawl and the right side of yourfabirc. Check carefully before stitching, so you don't place them in the wrong direction. Then fold over the balance of the shawl. Right sides will now be touching, and pin on the side where you can see your previous stitching. Restitch on this exact line of stitching, leaving a few inches open for turning. This can be closed with hand whipping after the shawl has been completed.

This shawl is a real "quickie" and can be made in a few hours. You'll love it.

There are other variations to this shawl. You could make yours from a single layer of matte jersey. They are lovely too. Again this would be a 45-inch piece of fabric folded diagonally. However, cut it on the fold line. The ruffles could be a single layer of jersey to avoid bulk. Cut them on the bias and hem them with an over-lock or machine-rolled hem. If you use this single layer of knit foryour shawl, you will have a small, raw edge where the ruffles join the shawl. However, you can trim the seam close so it won't be noticeable.

MRS. OLGA JASON, New Geford, Mass., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"To keep the new plastic spools from bouncing off the spindle in your sewing machine, I have found a simple solution. I just slip a plastic drinking straw over the spindle to give it extra height. This is especially handy when filling a bobbin from a large spool of thread that won't stay on the spindle."

DEAR EUNICE,

I just finished a dress of plaid seersucker and am unhappy with the way the side seams matched up. I read somewhere that you should match a plaid at the underarm. I did this, but because of the bust dart at the side seam, the plaids are uneven the entire length of the dress. How could I have avoided this?

MRS. J.E.H.

DEAR MRS. J.E.H.,

I can't believe that anyone would have told you to match a plaid at the underarm, unless there was no side bustline dart. I have suggested to our students that they match plaids at the waistline, if the dress has a waistline seam. If the dress is cut in one piece, there is always a notch at the hipline. This is a good spot to match. If you do this carefully, the entire side seam will come out beautifully. The only part that won't match is the few inchesunder the arm that is not noticeable.

Eunice Farmer answers questions about darts, pleats, sleeves, collars and many other subjects in her booklet "Twenty Questions." For your copy send 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

New Optimism For The Shakespeare Festival

By DAVID DIETZ

The mood was both intense and carefree in sun-dappled Forest Meadows Theater yesterday as Marin Shakespeare Festival personnel approached opening night.

On stage at the open-air facility, across from Dominican College in San Rafael, cast and staff performed a mixed repertoire of song and dance, both serious and light. Elsewhere on the grounds, costumes, props and other countdown arrangements had the rapt attention of dozens of people.

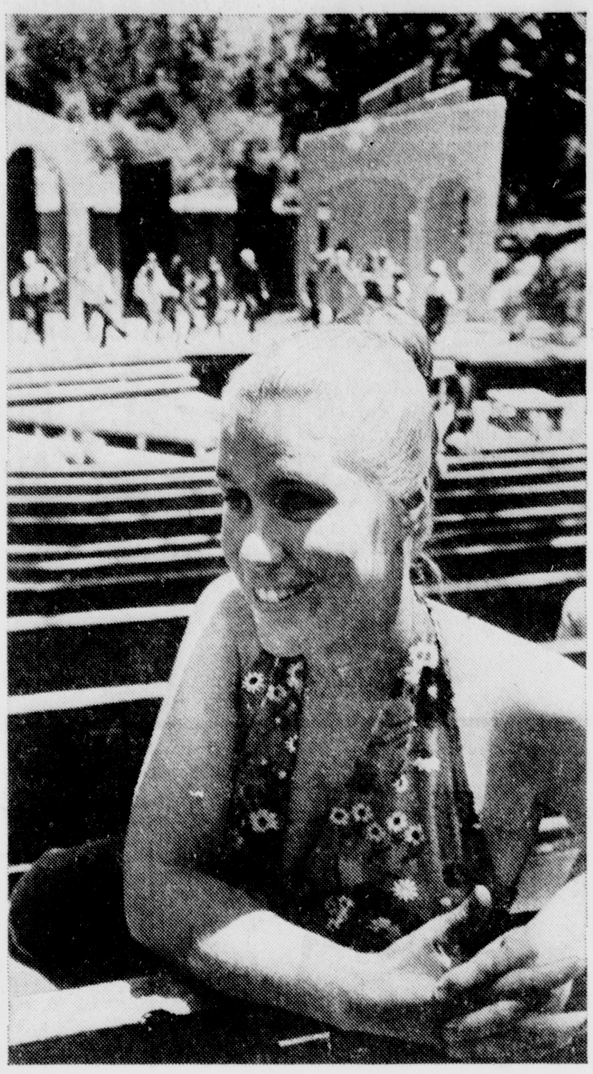

In past years of the festival, the scene summoned no untoward attention. But this summer, the fact that the program has moved this far is something of a minimiracle.

Beset by financial difficulties and other woes, the festival nearly dropped the curtain for good after last season. But numerous changes have been made, notably in administration and program format, and Shakespeare is due once again on the Marin scene July 15.

That's when — thanks in large part to the benevolence of creditors and the work of countless contributors — the festival begins its 12th season with the annual Feast to Good Will and the opening performance at 8 p.m. of "Twelfth Night."

"Twelfth Night" will be followed in the seven-week season — which concludes Sept. 3 — by "Romeo and Juliet" and a musical version for children of "The Wizard of Oz."

Many things are new, not the least of which is the executive director, Susan Hooper Walker, an actress-dancer and onetime business executive who took the job under bloomy circumstances only six weeks ago.

SHOW GOES ON — As cast members polished their technique on an unfinished stage behind her, executive director Susan Hooper Walker of the Marin Shakespeare Festival enjoyed a carefree moment from the organization's struggle for solvency.

"There was a great question whether we'd go on at all," said Mrs. Walker, a Lucas Valley resident.

Through the years, problems mounted for the young organization, founded by Terra Lindans John and Ann Brebner. Debts reached $25,000, there were management problems, and the past two seasons the festival was troubled by vandalism, theft and arson.

At the conclusion of the 1971 season, the board of directors was reorganized and financial management improved. Among the new board members was Mrs. Walker, who has appeared with the Oregon Shakespeare Festival in Ashland and once worked as buyer-manager with Saks Fifth Avenue.

The season was shortened from six performances in 1971, a repertory framework introduced and a talent hunt ranged as far away as the University of California at Los Angeles campus.

Much of the financial obligation was erased, although Mrs. Walker says the job is far from complete. She hopes lower ticket prices will help by boosting attendance. The price for a single performance has been dropped from $4.75 to $3 for adults and from $2.75 to $1.50 for youths. A season book of 10 tickets now costs $18, down from $28.50.

Meanwhile, she maintains, the acting quality has gone up. "We auditioned 450 kids for this company where we never had auditioned more than 100 before," she said.

Sixty were chosen, and patrons will see all of them in at least two performances under the repertory setup. "There's a great sense of unity because we're cast in repertory," Mrs. Walker said. For the audience, she added, repertory means attachment to certain actors.

Joining the executive director as one of the 12 paid staff people is Larry Oliver, another Ashland participant who will serve as a production director.

Brebner, meanwhile, is in charge of the festival's new traveling repertory troupe which will tour West Coast high schools and colleges during the winter.

The young actors in this summer's program are not paid, although 12 will be given $100 to $300 scholarships by the featival. Mrs. Walker wished the festival could offer more grants but she bows to what she describes as a "no-budget budget."

The executive director said the festival ultimately must obtain foundation money to survive. She believed it would take three years to put the organization in the black, and noted it was only through the understanding of some of the creditors that the show was able to go on this season.

Mrs. Walker is quick to praise volunteer help and donations. One retired Marin resident is handling festival finances without charge. A Southern California costume designer, for a small fee, is designing more than 200 costumes. Fight scenes will be staged by an actor from the Royal Shakespearean Co. at Stratford-on-Avon, England.

"See up there?" said Mrs. Walker, pointing to a bank of lights placed in a tree. "That was a loan."

Festival supporters help out by housing some of the actors. Mrs. Walker took in seven herself, part of her acknowledged role as a "mother hen" to the cast and staff of 150.

During a tour of the grounds yesterday, she was repeatedly approached by well-wishers, staff members with one problem or another and even a cast member who invited her to a swimming party.

She was effervescent about it all. "I love the combination of the theater, the business end of it and the people."

10 Become GIs; Seven Don't Report

Ten men were inducted into the armed forces in June by the Marin County Selective Service Board, clerical assistant Paula Terrell reported yesterday.

Forty men had been ordered to report for induction.

Sixteen of these orders were canceled; seven failed to report; five were disqualified; three were temporarily disqualified; two are pending induction and one was postponed. The status of the remaining six men who were called but not inducted is uncertain, Mrs. Terrell said.

The names of the seven who failed to report were withheld pending possible judicial action.

The 10 inducted were Leon A. Durbin, Mark B. Garrett, Thomas A. Ector, Thomas A. Corda and Ronald L. Gracia, all of San Rafael; Timothy J. Norton of Larkspur; Michael O. Tovani of Novato; Lester M. Cox of Fairfax; Gary J. Morgan of Tiburon and Steven L. Sorensen of Bolinas.

The July draft will be held for men with draft lottery numbers through 50. Mrs. Terrell reported that there are 44 eligible registrants in Marin for the July draft.

Open Space Talks Will Continue

The Fairfax City Council will continue its discussion of a proposal for preserving open space, when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fairfax Womens Club.

The council will consider a recommendation from the planning commission that Fairfax ridgetops be preserved as open space, according to Eileen L. Foster, city clerk.

She said that Pierre W. Joske, director of the Marin County parks and recreation department, will attend the meeting to answer questions about county open space plans.

The council will consider a request from Manor Hill homeowners that Scenic Road be extended one-way downhill for two tenths of a mile and will appoint a representative to the City-County Planning Council's housing committee, she said.

Sewer System Plan Will Be Reviewed

Plans for a subregional sewage system will be reviewed at the Petaluma City Council meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The council will receive engineering reports on the plan for a sewage system to include Petaluma, Sonoma Valley, Novato, Hamilton Air Force Base and the North portion of San Rafael.

Compromise Reached On Strawberry Cove

The Strawberry Recreation District board and property owner Leonard B. Fleischman have signed three agreements formally settling a condemnation suit which sought public access to Fleischman's property around Strawberry Cove.

The compromise signed at a board meeting was actually ratification of an informal agreement arrived at last February.

It removes all but one hurdle for developer Paul J. Broman's proposed 72-unit apartment complex in Strawberry Cove.

Broman's efforts to construct the apartments on Fleischman's property have been held up by a sewer connection ban imposed last July by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Under the agreement, Fleischman will dedicate to the district a one-acre peninsula which separates the cove from a neighboring tidal lagoon and grant an easement for a strip of shoreline around the cove.

He also will contribute $2,500 to landscape the dedicated peninsula and $6,000 toward acquisition of an underwater parcel.

The Strawberry Recreation District board also:

APARTMENTS — Agreed to ask the Marin County Planning Commission to hold new hearings on a master plan, submitted by Vladimir Turski for his proposed Harbor Cove apartments. The board objected to an alteration of the master plan which converts a set of outdoor cabanas into a three-story structure.

MAINTENANCE — Tabled a motion to award a $483-per-month maintenance contract to Cagwin and Dorward of San Rafael until the board can further study contract specifications.

VANDALS — Asked Dist. Mgr. David E. Roberts and architect J. Martin Rosse to develop means of preventing persons from breaking into the district's community center.

Apartments Master Plan Rejected

Acting as an advisory body to the Marin County Planning Commission, the Strawberry Area Community Council has rejected a master plan for a 100-unit apartment development in the Eagle Rock area.

The plan, which called for a density of 16 units per acre on the six-acre site, was submitted by Robert A. Lindskog of San Rafael.

According to council co-chairman Trudy De La Fontaine, the council will forward its recommendation to the county planning commission.

Mrs. De La Fontaine said the council objected to the proposed density of the project and Lindskog's plan to turn Central Court into a cul-de-sac.

Lindskog questioned the authority of the council to turn down his plans.

"They assume power which I don't think they have," he said. "The county planning commission told me to come down here and present my plans, so I did."

Mrs. De La Fontaine was not sure what official status the council's recommendations would carry. She told the Independent-Journal that, since the Strawberry area has drawn up its own master plan, it was asked by the county planning commission to serve in an advisory capacity.

The community council also announced that a tax clinic — geared to recent complaints about escalating property assessments — will be held at the community center at 8 p.m. July 26. Officials from the county assessor's office will be present at the clinic, Mrs. De La Fontaine said.

Reservation Tourism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Interior Department today appropriated $88,000 to foster tourism on Indian reservations to improve job and income opportunities for American Indians.

Assessment Up, Sonoma Tax May Dip

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A 13.4 per cent increase in Sonoma County's assessed valuation may result in a tax rate reduction of 35 cents, according to Sonoma Assessor Ernest L. Comalli.

Comalli said the county's assesssed valuation has jumped to $544 million or 25 per cent of the $2.2 billion cash value of the property. He said exemptions totaled $212 million and that an additional $84 million was lost in agricultural preserves.

Although the increased revenue may permit a drop of 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation in the tax rate, the homeowner probably will not see a decrease in his tax bill.

In many cases, reappraisals increasing the value of property will offset the tax rate drop.

Comalli said assessed valuation figures for cities and special districts are not yet final.

Reward Offered For Vandalism

The Parent-Teacher Council of San Rafael has announced $25 rewards for citizens who can provide information leading to the capture of anyone vandalizing certain local schools.

Participating in the program are PTA units of Bahia Vista, Coleman, Davidson, Gallinas, Glenwood, Hartzell, Laurel Dell, John MacPhail, San Pedro, San Rafael High, Santa Venetia, Short and West End Schools.

Anyone who spots an act of vandalism should call the city's school office or the school's PTA president.

Court Says Abortion Constitutional In N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state's highest court yesterday declared the state's abortion law — the nation's most liberal — was constitutional.

In a 5-2 decision, the Court of Appeals upheld the law, passed in 1970, which permits an abortion for any reason during the first six months of pregnancy for both New York State residents and out-of-staters.

"The constitution does not confer or require legal personality for the unborn; the legislature may, or it may do something less, as it did in the abortion statute, and provide some protection far short of conferring legal personality," Associate Judge Charles Brietel said in the majority decision.

The court case was brought by Robert M. Byrn, who sought to be named guardian of all unborn children whose mothers sought abortions. He asked the court to decide whether embryos should be legally recongized as persons.

Brietel agreed that the embryo is human "if only because it may not be characterized as not human, and it is unquestionably alive."

He added that a fetus "has an independent genetic 'package' with potential to become a full-fledged human being and that it has an autonomy of development and character, although it is for the period of gestation dependent upon the mother."

"But unborn children have never been recognized as persons in the law in the whole sense," he said. "As for abortion, the direct design of the laws has been evidently to protect the mother from injury and dangerous practices."

A BIG TIME COMPANY WITH A SMALL TIME PHILOSOPHY

We are still old-fashioned enough to know that you, the salesman, are the most important person in our Company, and we are willing to prove it to you with a high weekly drawing account against an excellent commission structure. We also provide all the fringe benefits involved in building a secure future for you and your family.

We are a prime division of a 52-year-old, AAA-1, manufacturer of non-technical specialty chemicals with young ideas and a record of dynamic growth. The person we seek has a willingness and ability to work hard to make an excellent income now, and a larger one each succeeding year.

We will tell you about our Company, show you our annual report, answer any questions you may have about us and explain the opportunity we offer in sales.

Sound interesting? We believe it should if you want income security, opportunity, limited travel and time to spend with your family. No previous sales or technical background necessary for the right person.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Cure Should Never Be Worse Than The Disease It Prevents

A New York housewife writes: "My husband has a cholesterol problem, and we are trying to lower it with a diet. How strict should we be? And he is also 24 pounds overweight. Need I say more?"

We never have advocated a diet so strict that the treatment becomes worse than the disease. Nothing should be totally forbidden. Clofibrate is an anticholesterol drug that allows a little freedom in the diet. Even foods that raise the cholesterol level can be eaten occasionally — in moderation. Take ice cream, for example. It should be avoided by cholesterol watchers, but if it overtaxes the willpower, the person can have a little now and then.

The low fat diet used in lowering the cholesterol level may also be adjusted to be low in calories. In the process of losing weight, the cholesterol level may also fall.

SATURATED (animal) fats (found mainly in meats and dairy products) tend to raise the cholesterol level. For practical purposes, most of these solidify when cool and include lard, butter, old-fashioned stick margarines, and beef fat. For these items, substitute vegetable oils (except coconut and palm) which are found in corn, safflower, and soybean. They come in salad dressings, cooking oils, and in the new "tub" or soft margarines.

The magic ingredients in vegetable oils are linoleic and other polyunsaturated fatty acids. They depress the serum cholesterol levels. In contrast, lauric, myristic, and palmic acids have a cholesterol-raising effect. Cocnut oil (the worst fat for the cholesterol watcher) is used in many cream and whipped cream substitutes because it gives the product a longer shelf life.

THESE CHEMICALS are mentioned because some of them may appear on the labels. Fortunately, the dairy industry is promoting low fat dairy products, and the meat industry is providing leaner meats.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

DRIVING APPREHENSION

Mrs. H. writes: My husband died in an auto accident and since then I haven't been able to force myself to drive. What do you think I should do? My doctor insists that I should drive, but I'm not convinced this is the thing to do. P.S. I am 65.

REPLY

Follow the advice of your physician. However, forget it, if driving is not necessary or if doing so would create extreme anxiety. Millions of people manage without a car and life is too short to hassle with trivial problems.

BRANDY IN COLIC

L. M. writes: I have read that brandy is good for colic. My 1-month-old baby has colic. How much water should I use in the brandy?

REPLY

Consult your physician on this problem. The remedy for colic depends upon the cause. There are safer and more effective medicines than brandy.

AMNESIA

D.F. writes: If a person has one attack of amnesia, does it always recur?

REPLY

No. As a rule, there is only one to a customer, but there may be a recurrence under the same circumstances that brought on the first attack.

PHYSICAL THERAPY

T.O. writes: How is physical therapy applied?

REPLY

In various ways. Heat, for example, is applied via an infrared lamp, hot water bag, electric pad, ultrasound wave, diathermy, hot towels, bath, or cabinet. Massage is done with the hands or vibrator and there are many electrical gadgets to stimulate muscles.

SECURITY BLANKET

Mrs. K. writes: Is it harmful for a babyof 10 months to suck on the satin binding of a blanket? He can't fall asleep unless he does so.

REPLY

No, but keep it clean. Try substituting a pacifier, which is easier to sterilize. P.S. His name isn't Linus, is it?

VITAMIN B12

T. V. writes: Do vitamin B12 tablets elevate the blood pressure?

REPLY

No. This vitamin acts as a tonic when taken in large doses. It is of questionable value if the diet is adequate and the individual is otherwise healthy.

MUTENESS AND PSYCHIATRY

C. M. writes: How does a psychiatrist treat a deaf and mute person?

REPLY

He communicates by writing and prescribes a tranquilizer or a sedative.

HEBERDEN'S NODES

L.M.F. writes: Is there any cure for painful lumps on the first joints of the index fingers?

REPLY

No. These lumps (Heberden's nodes) will persist, but pain disappears in time. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this condition.

Rain Sets Back Wimbledon Tennis Title Match

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — While favored Stan Smith hurried off downtown to hire himself a tuxedo, Ilie Nastase headed for the practice court Saturday so he could maintain his hair-trigger form for their postponed men's singles final at the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Saturday's program was called off because of day-long rain and rescheduled for Sunday—only the fourth time in the history of the 86-year old championship that the 12-day tournament has failed to finish on schedule.

The 6-foot-4 Smith, of Pasadena, Calif., needed a tuxedo so he could arrive "properly dressed" for the Wimbledon Ball where the male and female champions open the dancing.

"I guess we'll let Larry open the dancing with Billie Jean," Smith said in reference to Mrs. King's husband who watched her demolish Evonne Goolagong of Australia in straight sets in the women's final on Friday. Nastase said he would not attend the ball.

The last time the tournament failed to finish on schedule was in 1963. At that time the women's final was played on the last day and Australia's Margaret Court had to wait until the third Monday to beat the then Billie Jean Moffitt. Earlier postponements came in 1927 and 1922.

For the top seed from Pasadena, Calif., this last eyeball-to-eyeball counter with Romania's Ilie Nastase in the men's final of the All-England championship has as many knotty problems as last year's final.

In that match, U.S. Army corporal Smith lost a crunching five-setter to defending champion John Newcombe of Australia, who had the serve, smash and gas to outplay him.

Now Smith's own supercharged service and awesome power overhead must click for him to thwart the man with the fastest legs and racket in the tournament.

Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., flushed with the success of her fourth title win Friday, is one of many players who fancy the spring-heeled Romanian.

"I really feel that Nastase should win," she said. "He is playing really beautiful tennis and is a great athlete."

Certainly Nastase is unreeling the finest tennis of his career.

After a gentle word from Triple-Wimbledon winner Fred Perry, he has put a stopper on his seething temper and now concentrates on beating his opponents to death with featherweight blows.

Clark Graebner of New York City, and third-seed Manuel Orantes of Spain, were both Nastase victims here and can testify that the Romanian's glancing shots and powers of retrieval have been remarkable.

So Nastase, a lieutenant in the Romanian army, can pull rank on Smith in terms of talent and current form.

In his six singles matches so far, Smith has not looked like a player capable of winning the U.S. Championship as he did last year.

His two big assets, service and smash, have been sometimes good, sometimes bad in every match.

And, standing a couple of feet behind the service line, Stan has been consistently vulnerable to the short return. He has kept leaning awkwardly down to half volleys and his slipshod backhand volleying.

Rolf Signs; Wells Back

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bay Area pro football fans find two reasons for rejoicing today.

First, the Oakland Raiders have regained the services of their outstanding wide receiver Warren Wells; and, second, the San Francisco 49ers acquired defensive end Rolf Krueger.

Wells, once the scourge of the American Football League because of his ability on catching long passes, is returning after a one-year absence.

Alameda County Superior Court judge Stanley Dieden altered the terms of Wells' probation Friday to allow him to practice and travel with the Raiders this season.

DIEDEN RULING

Dieden ruled that Wells must live in a Catholic Retreat House when he is not practicing, playing or traveling with the team.

Practice opens Wednesday in Santa Rosa.

Wells missed the entire 1971 season after he was sentenced to prison for violating probation in an attempted rape case. He was transferred from prison to Synanon, a drug and rehabilitation center Jan. 14.

PETITION

On May 22, Wells' probation officer petitioned the court to have Wells transferred to the Catholic Retreat House in nearby Danville.

In approving the move, the judge said the 29-year-old Wells has "demonstrated an intense desire to resume his career as a professional ballplayer."

Raiders general manager Al Daivs welcomed Wells back, but stressed the team was in no way assuming responsibility in supervising his behavior.

DAVIS

Davis said "the supervisory responsibility for the probation of Wells rests with the probation officer, the courts and Wells' attorney," said Davis.

"The Raiders will cooperate with the probation office and Warren's attorney in their attempt to see that Warren fulfills the terms of his probation."

Davis voiced the hope that the court action would "close the past and that Warren would be judged as a football player."

KRUEGER

Meanwhile the 49ers announced Friday they have signed free agent, Krueger, who played out his option with the St. Louis Cardinals last year.

Krueger, a three-year pro football veteran was the Cards' second draft choice in 1969.

As compensation, a 49er spokesman said, the San Francisco team has agreed to give the cardinals two future high draft choices for the 6-foot-4, 250-pound lineman.

The 49ers also reported they lost defensive tackle Sam Silas, a 6-foot-4, 260-pound 10-year veteran from Southern Illinois University to the Denver Broncos. The Broncos claimed Silas yesterday from the 49ers' taxi squad.

Soler Melges Wins Olympic Games Bid

Belvedere Trials End; North 2nd

BELVEDERE, (UPI) — Bud Melges, 42, Zenda, Wis., Friday won the right to represent the United States in the soling class Olympic Games sailing competition in August.

Melges with a crew of Bill Allen and Bill Benson compiled a record of three wins two second places and one fifth place in a seven-race trials this week on San Francisco Bay.

He led the final race from the start to the last mark but gave up the big lead he had to cover his nearest competitor in the series, Lowell North, San Diego.

North had tacked away from the fleet in a desperate effort to win the race and thus the series. However, Melges kept a close cover on him. The action cost Melges the race.

John Dane, 22, New Orleans, passed Melges by staying on the favored starboard side of the course on the final leg while North pulled Melges over to the port side of the course.

North finished fifth in the final race and retained second place in the series. He will begin sailing Saturday in the star boat trials in another attempt to make the Olympic team.

The final Olympic standing overall score: Melges, 16; north 27.7 Bruce Goldsmith, Winetka, Ill., 34.4; Dane, 41.1; Earl Elms, San Diego, 49.4; Bob Johnson, Chicago, 62.4; Warwick Tompkins, Mill Valley, Calif., 67; Sam Merrick, Washington, D.C., 83; John Kolius, Houston, Tex., 102.0; Dave Curtis, Marblehead, Mass., 103.

Graham, Hill Lead Golf Meet

FT. ERIE, Ont. (UPI)—Dave Hill hasn't played golf in Canada for "four or five years," but you would never know it.

Hill looked like he had spent his entire career playing on Canadian courses Friday as he fired a second-round 66 to share the top spot with Lou Graham in the $150,000 Canadian open golf classic at the Cherry Hill Club.

Hill and Graham came in with 136, six under the par 71 course. Gay Brewer was one stroke back at 137 and cigar-chomping Charley Sifford was deadlocked with Lenny Thompson, Bobby Mitchell, and Bruce Crampton in fourth place at 138.

Bunky Henry, who burned up the course with an opening round 65, struggled through an erratic three-over par 74 and was tied with six others at 139.

Arnold Palmer and defending champion Lee Trevino, who attracted most of the 15,800 spectators in the gallery, finished with two-round totals of 142, even par. Napa's Ron Cerrudo carded a 144 in making the cut.

The usually-outspoken Hill crammed five birdies and 13 pars into a round which he said "wasn't a great playing round."

Hill said he now plays without a glove because "I seem to hold onto the club better." He added that he used a shot to get out of the rough on the 17th which he learned from Al Balding.

"There's no sense in revealing these secrets while the tournament still has two days remaining," he said in declining to specify the type of shot he used.

A total of 73 golfers survived the second round cut off mark of 147.

A's Pitcher Is Bombed, Ailing

OAKLAND (UPI) —"I hope better days are coming," moaned pitcher Vida Blue who has gone from the heights to the depths in one year.

Last-place Milwaukee handed the 1971 Cy Young Award winner and Most Valuable Player in the American League his worst beating in the big leagues, 9-4, Friday night. It was the most runs that Blue has surrendered in a single game in 67 mound appearances, dating back to August 1969.

Blue, now 2-5 after a lenghty spring holdout, was 17-3 at this time a year ago.

The fastballing lefthander twisted his knee when he tried to field a ground ball through the box in the fourth inning. He also said his left thigh began hurting before the game. But he wasn't trying to find an alibi.

"These things still don't have much to do with what happened," he said. "It was the pitching that did it. I just pitched a bad ballgame. I hope better days are coming."

A's trainer Joe Romo said nothing was seriously wrong with Blue. But manager Dick Williams has reserved judgement.

"I know they didn't know I was hurt," said Blue. "But I can't sympathize with the fans. All I can try to do is keep showing that extra bit of class.

"Maybe it ain't good enough for them."

Blue was touched for three home runs. Dave May, who had three RBI's, and George Scott hammered back-to-back solo shots in the first, and former Athletic Ollie Brown hit a two-run job after Sal Bando's two-out error in the sixth.

Giant Pitching Punch Walloped

MONTREAL (UPI) — Juan Marichal and Sam McDowell were supposed to be San Francisco's 1-2 punch this season, but it isn't working out that way.

McDowell was shelled hard in less than three innings Friday night as Montreal breezed to the 7-2 win over the Giants. That meant McDowell's record slid to 8-6 while the guy he was traded for, Gaylord Perry, has won 13 for Cleveland.

Marichal is 2-10 this season and has been bothered by back pains. He'll try his luck today against Ernie McAnally, an even more unimpressive 1-10 this season.

Bill Stoneman checked the Giants on seven hits Friday while his mates pecked way at McDowell and Don Carrithers, another guy who can't seem to get anybody out for the Giants.

Only Doug Rader and Al Gallagher seemed to be able to solve Stoneman's stuff as they cracked two hits apiece.

Redondo Triumphs In Junior Net Meet

Third-seeded Walter Redondo of National City, Calif., defeated Drew Gitlin of Encino to gain the finals in the Boys 14 singles yesterday in the U.S. National Junior Hardcourt tennis championships.

Redondo took the match on a come-from-behind effort with sets of 3-6, 6-4 and 6-4.

He will meet Jeff Robbins of Salt Lake City in the finals Sunday at the Belvedere Tennis Club. Robbins upset top seed Eddie Reese of St. Petersberg, Fla., 6-1, 6-3.

Susan Hagey, third seed in the Girls 14 division, beat second seeded Susie Replogle 6-2, 6-3 and Lisa Nard, first seed, beat Susan Wright, 6-4, 1-6 and 6-1 to gains Sunday's final in that division.

The finals of the 12 year-old girls and boys doubles and singles were set Saturday. Mareen Louie of San Francisco and Linda Siegel of Piedmont will meet in the girls singles while David Dowlen of Houston and Jeff Arons of Portola Valley tangle for the boys singles crown.

In doubles, Louie and Rasmussen will meet Siegel and Murphy in the girls grouping and Arons and Jee take on Corse and Herrmann for the boys title.

Olympic Berth Quest By Ryun

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—The hour of decision comes up for Jim Ryun tonight in the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

The one-time king of the middle distance events faced the same test a week ago and failed it. Now, it's a matter of passing or staying home while the rest of America's track and field stars go on to Munich for the Olympic games next month.

Ryun breezed through the first two heats of the 800 last week but wound up fourth and out in the final as Dave Wottle came out of the pack with a killing finishing kick to not only win the event but also tie the world record.

WOTTLE

This week, Ryun has breezed through the first two heats of the 1,500 meter run and tonight he gets his second and last chance to make the team in the final. Besides Wottle, he'll have to face Jerome Howe, who nipped Wottle at the wire in the semifinals Friday night, Jere Van Dyk, Robert Wheeler, Bruce Fischer, Reginald McAfee, Duncan MacDonald and Clifton West.

All Ryun has to do is finish in the first three to win a second straight Olympic berth. In 1968 he qualified through the metric mile and wound up with a silver medal. Since then, he has faced all sorts of adversity and just now seems to be running only the way he can.

RYUN

If Friday's performance was any indication, you'd have to bet Ryun, who holds the world records in the 880 yards, mile and 1,500 meters, will finish in the first three. Running easy, he let others set the pace, took the lead halfway through the third lap and then blazed home in a 54.2 final lap for a 3:42.2.

Finals in the shot put, long jump and 200 meter dash also are on tonight's program, next to last in the 11-day trials. Sunday's windup show will include finals in the hammer, marathon, high jump, 110 hurdles, 400 meter dash and 5,000.

When the show is over, there will be 68 certified athletes on the team which America hopes will reign supreme once again in the Olympics.

DISAPPOINTMENT

The 1,500 semis wound up Friday night's show, which ended on a note of bitter disappointment for Howell Michael of the Marines.

Michael won the final heat in the good time of 3:43.2 but officials set him down—after studying films of the race for more than 40 minutes—for bumping McAfee. McAfee was declared the winner.

Boxer Folley Dies After Roughhousing

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Zora Folley, a long-time heavyweight boxing contender and the last man to fight Muhammad Ali before he was stripped of his crown, died early today after striking his head on the edge of a swimming pool at a motel.

Folley, 41, died while undergoing surgery at the Pima County Hospital.

Police Sgt. Ken McDaniels said Folley was engaged in some friendly roughhousing with a friend, identified only as Mr. Broom, Tucson, when he fell and hit his head. He was pronounced dead 55 minutes later at the hospital.

McDaniels called the incident "strictly accidental."

Folley fought Ali, when he was still known as Cassius Clay, in New York's Madison Square Garden on March 22, 1967.

Folley, a Chandler, Ariz., resident, never officially announced his retirement from the ring but had not fought recently.

DeMont Favored In Swim

I-J Special Report

SANTA CLARA — Rick DeMont of Terra Linda was a heavy favorite in the 1500 meter freestyle as the Los Angeles Swim Invitational concludes today.

DeMont, a 16-year-old representative of the Marin Aquatic Club, should, according to his coach Don Swartz, annex this marathon event to the 400 meter title he earned Thursday.

Swartz said, "We'd like to see him go 16:09 (DeMont's best is 16:16) to get a good seeding at the Olympic trials (Aug. 2-6 in Chicago)."

He continued, "If he takes the first part of the race hard enough, it's possible he could break sixteen minutes." The world record for the event is 15:57.1.

Jo Hislop, 17, of San Rafael, improved her best 200 meter freestyle time by three seconds in 2:12.1 to get 13th place in that event. It assured her of her second race at the Olympic trials, as she has already qualified in the 100 free.

Paul Cane, 18, of Greenbrae, posted a personal best of 5:07.1 in the 400 meter individual medley to round out Marin Aquatic Club highlights.

Meanwhile Mark Spitz of the Arden Hills Swim Club and Frank Heckl of the Los Angeles Athletic Club lost chances to break the world record in the 100-meter butterfly Friday when they were disqualified for false starts at the swim meet.

Starter Pat Graham and head turn judge Jack Musser ruled that both had made deliberate false starts and immediately disqualified them. Ordinarily, swimmers are not disqualified until the third false start.

Spitz went first. While an argument of the qualification of Spitz was going on, Heckl jumped into the Los Angeles Swim Stadium pool and was immediately ousted, too.

Heckl, who won six gold medas in the Pan-American Games in Colombia last year, earlier swam the fastest 200-meter freestyle in the world this year, finishing in 1:56.98 for a meet record.

Linda Stimpson of Los Angeles Athletic Club posted a world 1972 best in the women's 100 backstroke, winning in an impressive 1:07.74.

Jenny Bartz of Santa Clara broke the meet record twice in the 400 individual medley. She did it first when she won her qualifying heat in 5:14.0 and again in the finals with 5:10.5.

Other meet records were established by Dana Shrader, Lakewood (Calif.) Aquatic Club, 100 butterfly, 1:04.56, and Shirley Babashoff, Huntington Beach Aquatic Club, 200 freestyle, 2:07.69.

Career Highlights Of Giants' McCovey

MONTREAL — Willie McCovey now is the senior member of the Giants, the team's only remaining player who remembers old Seals Stadium where the Giants first played following their move to San Francisco from New York in 1958.

McCovey wasn't one of the original 1958 San Francisco Giants but he broke into the big time in midseason 1959 with a big bang when he ripped Robin Roberts 4-for-4 (two of them triples) in his first major league game. Stretch was a runaway winner of 1959 Rookie of the Year National League honors, finishing his rookie season with a .354 batting average.

Now, McCovey is in his 14th season with the Giants for whom he has hit 374 career home runs, including 14 grand slams, the 14th in Candlestick Park just before this road trip started. That slammer off the Dodgers' Don Sutton put McCovey in a three-way tie with Hank Aaron and the late Gil Hodges for all-time National League grand slam honors.

A BASEBALL writer sitting next to McCovey as the team's chartered plane flew from Philadelphia to Montreal suggested that slam No. 14 had to be something special, something that stirred him emotionally.

"Yes," he smiled. "What got to me was when I saw the fans standing as I rounded third base. That was a very warm moment for me."

What's it like for a batter in the tense duel with a pitcher that constantly goes on in every ball game, the one-on-one situation that is a fascinating part of baseball?

"IT'S A CAT and mouse thing," said McCovey who then recalled every pitch Sutton threw before the slam.

"Sutton is a fine pitcher. He's in-and-out, high-and-low, always nipping at the corners. The count was 2-1 when he got me swinging at a screwball for strike two."

And the slam pitch?

"A fast ball high on the outside corner," said the big left-handed swinger who lashed the ball over Candlestick's left field fence instead of tryingto pull it as Osteen hoped he would do for a futile ground out.

"Sometimesyou win the duel, sometimes the pitcher does," said McCovey. "Like I said it's cat and mouse."

THE DAY IN OLD Seals Stadium when he went 4-for-4, hitting all the fences and tagging all the bases in his major league debut, had to be his greatest day but what has pleasured him most in his 14 big league campaigns? When he was voted Most Valuable Player of the National League after leading the NL in home runs (45) and RBIs (126) in 1969?

"That was something special, too," said McCovey. "To be acclaimed MVP is the top honor. There's none higher. I was very proud to receive it."

But was it his most pleasurable moment?

"I SURELY was pleased with it but I have been pleasured most by the attitude of my teammates toward me through the years," he said. "It gives me an especial warm feeling when the younger players of the team come to me and ask advice."

The baseball writer suggested that the younger players wouldn't do that unless he had earned their respect.

"Yes, I know that's true," said McCovey.

Did he also know that his teammates not only respect him but like him — two different things?

"I've gotten that feeling from time to time and it's a nice one," said McCovey.

Grant Tops Marinite Bowlers

San Rafael bowler Auborn Grant knows more than one way to keep the ball rolling.

First he does it as the Campbell Bishop Chevrolet parts department manager in Corte Madera.

Second, he does it as a bowler. He demonstrated his kegle prowess by rolling a 873 series at Greenbrae Lanes to earn the Marin County bowler of the week honors.

In averaging 218, he rolled games of 204, 222, 213 and 234 in the Thursday night "555" Scratch Trio summer league.

Twins' Boss In Winning Debut

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Frank Quilici was so nervous in his Minnesota managerial debut that he called New York Yankee skipper Ralph Houk: "Sir."

Then it was Houk's turn to look up to Quilici as the Twins celebrated the promotion with a 5-2 victory over the Yankees Friday night.

KILLEBREW

Harmon Killebrew's two-run homer with two out in the seventh inning carried the Twins to victory and made owner Calvin Griffith's choice as a successor to Bill Rigney look good.

"Killebrew's homer was the big thrill for me...like nothing else could happen after that," Quilici said.

Quilici admitted he had one moment of nervousness, when he walked out with the lineup before the game.

"That's when I called Houk 'Sir,' it was the first time I ever did that," Quilici said. "Houk has always been the 'Major' to me. I know all about him at Normandy on D-Day."

In his own Debut Day, Quilici saw the Yanks take an early two run lead and lose it as the Twins cut the margin with a run in the fourth inning and went ahead when Killebrew walloped his 12th homer of the season in the seventh after Rod Carew singled.

OTHER GAMES

In other American League games, Detroit beat Chicago, 6-4; Texas tripped Baltimore, 5-4; Kansas City stopped Cleveland, 6-3; Milwaukee bombed Oakland, 9-4, and Boston nipped California, 5-3, in 10 innings.

Detroit closed to within a game of first place Baltimore in the East as Tony Taylor and Al Kaline each drove in two runs against Chicago.

PANTHER

Reliever Jim Panther hurled shutout ball over the last five innings, allowing just four hits, as Texas snapped Baltimore's five-game winning streak.

Richie Scheinblum and Lou Piniella led a 10-hit Kansas City attack with three hits apiece as the Royals beat Cleveland.

Ben Oglivie's two-run homer in the top of the 10th inning carried Boston past California.

St. Louis Foes Stop Laughing As Cardinals Keep On Winning

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob Gibson labels the momentum behind St. Louis' surge into third place in the National League East a "funny thing" but Cardinal opponents in recent weeks have not been laughing.

Gibson pitched a four-hitter against Houston Friday night for his eighth straight victory and the Cardinals held on to third place in the N.L. East with a 3-1 victory over the Astros.

POOR START

The Cardinals, off to a horrendous start this season, were in last place on June 3 — 15 1-2 games out of first.

"The easiest thing in the world is to write somebody off when he's going badly," said the Cardinal right-hander. "The way we were going at the beginning of the season I was writing us off too. Momentum is a funny thing."

Gibson, pitching his 10th complete game of the season, raised his record to 8-5. The eighth straight win ties the streak earlier this year by Don Sutton of Los Angeles and Steve Blass of Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals scored all their runs in the fifth inning. Donn Clendenon and Luis Melendez singled and Clendenon scored on Dal Maxvill's single. Gibson was safe on a fielder's choice and, with two out, back-to-back singles by Ted Sizemore and Matty Alou produced two more runs.

VICTORY

The victory was the Cardinals' 15th in their last 17 contests. In other National League action, Los Angeles defeated New York 6-1, Chicago edged Cincinnati 2-1, Pittsburgh and Atlanta divided a doubleheader, with the Pirates taking the opener 10-2 and the Braves winning the nightcap 3-2, Montreal downed San Francisco 7-2 and Philadelphia and San Diego split a doubleheader, the Phillies winning the opener 4-2 and the Padres capturing the nightcap 6-1.

Dusty Baker singled home Darrell Evans in the seventh inning to give Atlanta a second game victory over Pittsburgh. Righthander Jim Hardin held the hard-hitting Pirates to seven hits in the nightcap to gain his second straight victory.

OPENER

In the opener, Gene Alley hit a three-run homer and Milt May, filling in for catcher Manny Sanguillen, had a five-for-five performance. Dave Cash, Gene Clines and Al Oliver each had three hits.

Jack Aker, taking over with runners on first and second in the ninth, snuffed out a Cincinnati rally to preserve Chicago starter Burt Hooton's seventh victory of the season.

Sutton pitched a three-hitter and was backed by a 13-hit attack as Los Angeles defeated New York. Sutton allowed only a bunt single by Bud Harrelson in the first and singles by Ed Kranepool in the eighth and Harrelson in the ninth in posting his 10th victory against four defeats.

Loose play by Philadelphia enabled San Diego to mount an early 5-0 lead and coast behind Clay Kirby to a second game victory over Philadelphia. Kirby gave up only eight singles and struck out 11 in boosting his record to 6-8. In the first game, Greg Luzinski paced the Phils with two runs batted in on two singles and his ninth homer of the campaign as Steve Carlton (11-6) notched his 12th complete game and sixth straight win.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

WHA Crusaders Tab Glover As Director

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

CLEVELAND — The former California Seals' coach and new chief architect of the Cleveland Crusaders says the city's World Hockey Association franchise has no intention of raiding the National Hockey League for its player personnel.

"Cleveland, unlike other clubs in the WHA will not go after players who have existing contracts with the National Hockey League," said Fred Glover, named Friday as the Crusaders' director of player personnel.

It was a homecoming for Glover, who retired from the Cleveland Barons Minor League club in 1968, but came out of retirement that same year to coach the California Seals of the NHL for two years and the Los Angeles Kings in 1971 until he was fired in midseason.

Tennis

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. — Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla., Friday upset top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia, 6-7, 6-3, 7-5 and moved into the semi-finals of the $25,000 Bretton Woods International Tennis Tournament.

In another surprise, Jeff Borowiak of Berkeley, America's newest young professional tnnis star, mowed down second-seeded Tom Okker of the Netherlands, 6-3, 6-4.

Richey, who recently joined the pro tour, met Arthur Ashe of Miami in one semi-final today. Ashe, fourth-ranked and the only seed left in the tournament, struggled before downing young John Alexander of Australia, 7-6, 6-3 in their quarter-final match. Bob Carmichael of Australia, the only foreigner left in the tournament, defeated Ismail El Shafei of the United Arab Republic, 6-4, 6-2 in the fourth quarter-final match Friday.

Track

FREDERICK, Md. — Sprinter Barbara Farrell was among the 78 athletes who made the cut Friday night in U.S Olympic Trials for the womens' track anf field team. The final team will be selected tonight.

A proven track and field star and two-time Olympic veteran, Miss Farrell planned all along to run the 100 and 200-meter. She placed first in her heat in both categories with times of 11.2 and 23.9 respectively.

Miss Farrell proved her overall worth while Lacey O'Neal took the honors for a single performance. The 28-year-old speedster from Washington, D.C. tied the American record for the 100-meter hurdle at 13.1 seconds.

Golf

HORSHAM, Pa. — Sandra Palmer, the smallest golfer on the ladies professional tour, was in a three-way tie for the lead as the second round of the third annual $32,000 George Washington Ladies Golf Classic got underway today.

Miss Palmer, 5-foot-1, shot a three under par 70 Friday to match Sandra Haynie and Betsy Cullen during the first round of the 54-hole tournament at Hidden Springs Country Club.

Yachting

NEWPORT, R.I. — Frenchman Alain Colas was the surprise winner — unofficially — of the singlehanded Transatlantic Yacht Race.

No one was quite sure where Colas was with his Penduick IV 70-foot craft until he crossed the finish line in the record time of 21 days Friday night, well ahead of the favored Vendredi 13.

The previous mark was 26 days.

NHL Atlanta's Top Pick Richard Signs

ATLANTA (UPI) — Jacques Richard, the number one amateur selection of the Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League, signed a two-year contract with the club after several weeks of negotiation, the Flames announced Friday.

Cliff Fletcher, general manager of the Flames, disclosed that Richard turned down a "very lucrative offer from his hometown Quebec Nordiques of the recently-formed World Hockey Association to compete in the NHL."

Chavez Scores 23 In Drake Cagers' Win

Ed Chavez gunned in 23 points last night to lead the Sir Francis Drake Pirates to a 52-42 win over Bob's Cats in the Drake Summer basketball loop.

In other action, the Riordan Crusaders topped the Lowell Cardinals by a 47-32 score and Chuck Moore Insurance forfeited to the Terra Linda Trojans.

Novato Youth First In Quarter Midgets

Paul Robutz, 10, captured first place in the senior stock class of the recent quarter midget races at the Northwestern States Championships at Portland.

The Novato youth took the final event at the Alpen Rose Dairy in a meet which drew 147 sign-ins.

Woman Cards First Ace At Meadow Club

Dr. Margaret Maroney of San Francisco carded her first hole in one ever yesterday on the par three eighth at Meadow Club in Fairfax.

Dr. Maroney was playing with Mrs. Hugh Darling when she stroked a five iron for the ace on the 134 yard hole.

Lodi Bats Crush Novato Nine In Rural League

Lodi pounded out 14 hits and scored 11 runs last night to crush Novato and take over first place in the Sacramento Rural League by virtue of their 11-0 pounding of the Marin ballclub.

Ralph Manfredi hit a three-run homer, went three for four at the plate and drove in five runs to lead the winners. Ray Hoellwratth added a pair of four-baggers for Lodi.

Broader Powers For Kuhn

CHICAGO (UPI) — Major league baseball owners have taken steps to avert a repetition of costly disputes with players such as the lengthy and embarrassing players' strike which delayed the start of the current season.

They met briefly Friday and emerged with a new arrangement which broadens the commissioner's powers and streamlines the owners' player relations committee for quicker action.

Commisser Bowie Kuhn said the executives voted unanimously to grant him the power to intervene immediately in a dispute. Formerly, the commissioner was required to give 20 day's notice before calling a meeting of the owners.

Kuhn was the target of widespread criticism because of his passive role during the players' strike. Many observers believed the walkout could have been settled earlier if he had been allowed to intervene.

A player relations committee with its new membership of six members as compared to the old line-up of 10 will "obviously increase its effectiveness," Kuhn said.

The executives did not get around to naming the six members, but Kuhn said they probably would include many of those already on the 10-man body.

Mill Valley Youth Ties For Third In Junior Golf

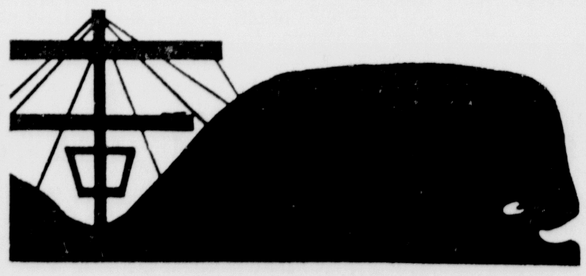

Jeff Bricker of Mill Valley finished the Cypress Hills Junior Golf Tournament in South San Francisco tied for third place after losing a sudden death playoff to Mark Hillsinger of San Mateo. Bricker completed the two day event with a 140.

Rick Anderson of Novato, low medalist after the first day, also lost a playoff in the 14 year-old age group as Pete Snell grabbed the victory on the second extra hole.

More than 200 junior golfers competed in the event.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Try this quiz today July 8 on the birthday of Nelson A. Rockefeller (1908-), New York State Governor.

T F 1. Born to wealth at Bar Harbor, Maine, this Rockefeller, like his four other brothers, chose to prove his personal usefulness and is now serving his fourth term as New York's chief executive.

T F 2. The Republicans under Herbert Hoover gave young Rockefeller his first chance in politics when he was appointed coordinator of inter-American affairs in 1930.

T F 3. President Eisenhower gave him several important posts in his administration of the 1950s, including that of being special assistant to the president in the White House.

T F 4. Now 64, Nelson Rockefeller is still mentioned as a possible Republican nominee for the presidency but he will not oppose incumbent Richard Nixon.

ANSWERS

1. TRUE — Rockefeller got interested in politics while a student at Dartmouth.
2. FALSE — Democrats under Roosevelt gave him his first important appointment.
3. TRUE — He next served Eisenhower as a foreign affairs specialist.
4. TRUE Rockefeller actively sought the GOP presidential nomination in 1960, 1964, and 1968.

WINNING BRIDGE

In This Hand, Either Red Suit Better To Attack Than The Clubs

Which suit should you tackle first? Do you go after length or strength —or do you follow the dictates of Prof. Eeny-Meeny-Miny-Mo? In today's hand you can win the first trick in either hand and can lead any of the three side suits. Where do you win, and which suit do you attack?

EITHER RED SUIT

Either red suit is better than clubs. Suppose you lead a heart from your hand. If West has the ace he will play low, and you will win in dummy with the queen of hearts. You will get to your hand with a trump and lead another heart. Eventually, you will discard a club from your hand on dummy's king of hearts.

IN THE DUMMY

Instead, you might win the first trump trick in dummy and lead a diamond toward your hand. If East has the ace of diamonds, you will eventually discard one of dummy's clubs.

Now that you've narrowed the choice, which red suit do you choose?

TRY FOR BOTH

The expert likes two chances better than one. For this reason he tackles the diamonds first in this hand.

If East has the ace of diamonds, all goes well. South eventually discards a club from dummy and limits his loss to three aces.

Even if West has the ace of diamonds, South is still alive and breathing. West is not likely to return a club. With any other return, South still has time to try for the hearts. Thus he will make his game if any of the three aces is in favorable position.

WITHOUT FEAR

South's case is not so good if he tackles the hearts first and discovers that the ace is badly placed. East takes the ace of hearts and returns a club without any fear, and now there is no time to try for the diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K J 8 7
♥ - K Q 6 2
♦ - 4 2
♣ - 7 4 3.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs (the Stayman Convention).

This asks partner to bid a major suit if he has one. If he can do so, you will raise to four of that major. If partner bids two diamonds (showing no major suit) you will bid two notrump.

'Taking The Kur' Has Its Moments

BAD KISSINGEN — When Roman legions pushed northward across Europe in the first century A.D., they discovered a variety of thermal and mineral springs. They quickly found that bathing in these special waters brought relief to their aches and pains. Great spas evolved and many are popular to this day.

A comprehensive guidebook for Germany today will list about four dozen "kur" spas, including Bad Kissingen, recommended for various maladies, particularly those involving liver and stomach.

No matter what ailment afflicts you, one or more of these many spas will be recommended as having special curative powers for your specific complaint.

Bad Kissingen was a favorite 100 years ago of Otto von Bismarck, minister-president of Prussia and architect of German unification.

UNLIKE AMERICA, where taking the waters at a spa went out of fashion more than a generation ago, the practice is still in full fashion in Germany.

Once you or your doctor decide a visit to a particular spa is indicated, you must first choose a kur-hotel. If it is a major one, it will have its own doctor of medicine in residence, along with a staff of therapy technicians. Your hotel may have its own indoor swimming pool filled from a therapeutic spring. Various kinds of hydrotherapy equipment may also be available.

The hotel dining room probably will be prepared to meet your special diet needs.

The doctor will prescribe a rigid schedule. It probably will begin with an early morning bath in the curative waters followed by an early breakfast according to the prescribed diet.

YOU UNDOUBTEDLY will be advised to take long walks in the kur-park or on trails in the beautiful countryside nearby.

Depending on the doctor's advice, you could expect to spend the time until mid-day meal in rest and walking. After your prescribed diet lunch, you probably will be advised to go to bed for an hour or an hour-and-a-half rest.

You may be permitted a mid-afternoon coffee break (German style). This would include some very rich cake or pastry.

It would then be time for your mid-afternoon glass of mineral water from the spring. And it would be time for a concert by the kur-orchestra either in the kur-garden or in the kur-hall, depending on the weather.

Before the evening diet supper, there would be time for another walk in the kur-park or another bed rest.

After diet supper, it may be possible to see a play or an opera at the kur-hall, performed by a visiting big-name company. The performance will start early enough for you to observe the prescribed 9:30 or 10 p.m. bedtime.

Experienced cure-takers say it takes about a week to fully adapt to the spa schedule; another two weeks are usually necessary to achieve the desired benefits. Many cure-takers stay on for a fourth week of plain rest after the three-week schedule is completed.

If you want to do the job right, obviously you must devote a month to it. Some affluent Germans do this regularly —twice a year.

Who are the spa patrons? Mostly they are the aged, infirm and well-to-do. Rarely do you see a person under 50. Unlike German youth, cure-takers dress conservatively. For the men, coats and ties seem to be in order at all times. The women wear suits or rather drab dresses.

MANY HUSBANDS and wives go separately to spas. When a husband alone at a spa encounters a wife alone at a spa, they sometimes feel a mutual obligation to provide company for each other.

They may skip a diet meal at the hotel to sneak away to a colorful wine restaurant. Even the past-60 set may engage in some hand-holding as a means of fulfilling the mutual obligation to avoid loneliness.

Because German spa behavior must conform to high standards just as rigidly as must spa dress, we are assured that kur-shadow relationships — as they are called — have rigid limits.

However, it is well known that some kur-shadow couples meet regularly at spas, and who can say what may go on after the prescribed 10 p.m. curfew?

It well may be that the stuffy old Germans who sit around spas aren't as stuffy as they appear.

Skunk Repellent?

Many Marinites are bothered by skunks. We are somewhat overstocked in our neighborhood. We have tried renting traps from the Humane Society. With these traps we captured three cats, two raccoons and one skunk — almost as troublesome as enduring the skunk perfume about once a week.

We procured a bulletin from the county agent, which suggested a certain type of rat poison, but it is against our principles to poison animals unless absolutely necessary, as in the case of poisoning rats to control disease. We tried putting moth balls in all their possible under-house dens. That was merely trading a constant low-level stink for a once-a-week high-level one.

Other Marinites must have had the same problem and have worked out a sane and satisfactory solution. If so, we would like to hear about it. Drop us a line. Help your fellow man!

'Of Course These People Will Be Rehabilitated'

Regarding death penalty:

It is very comforting to know that since the omnipotent Supreme Court has decided the death penalty is "cruel and unusual punishment," such people as the shotgun slayer of a 4-year-old girl, the mass murderer of 25 farm workers, and those of the Manson clan will once again be released into our society after 12 or 14 years.

Of course these people will be "rehabilitated" by then. But even so, one still wonders "what is so 'supreme' about the Supreme Court?"

Consumer Protection Needs Higher Priority

The remarks of former Deputy Atty. Gen. Neil Gendel, upon resigning from the office of the California attorney general, have struck a responsive chord with Citizens Action Council, an organization which, like Mr. Gendel, is seeking to prevent the many unfair and deceptive business practices that have gone unchecked in recent years.

We can appreciate the handicaps facing the attorney general's office due to budget restrictions that have created severe understaffing, but we cannot help but sympathize with the frustration Mr. Gendel must have endured, having been charged on the one hand with the responsibility of protecting the investing public, and on the other being compelled to watch helplessly while his already inadequate staff was whittled still further.

We would not presume to second guess the judgment of those long experienced in law enforcement, but it certainly would appear that some more effective ordering of priorities could be devised, so that consumer protection, which is one of the major concerns of an aroused public, could be dealt with on a basis of something more than lip service.

Convention Scenario Produces Obvious Compromise Candidate

WASHINGTON — Everyone has his own scenario for next week's Democratic National Convention. The way things have been going with the party, one scenario has as much validity as the next. This is the one that I have written and if it comes true, remember, you read it here.

It is the fourth day of the convention and the Democrats have been unable to decide on a presidential candidate. The fight to seat delegations has taken up three days and those people who were ruled ineligible have refused to give up their seats to those who were officially designated as delegates to the convention.

Almost every state delegation has two people sitting in every chair. No one dares leave the floor for fear that someone will grab his seat.

When someone tries to speak he is hooted down by the opposition faction. Larry O'Brien, the chairman of the party, has the podium ringed with the National Guard so no one can grab the microphone.

THE NOMINATION speeches have not been heard, but the candidates have been nominated — McGovern, Humphrey, Wallace, Chisholm, Jackson and Muskie.

There have been no demonstrations for the candidates in the hall because everyone is afraid if he gets up and marches they won't let him back in his section again.

On the first ballot McGovern picked up 1,234 votes, well shy of the 1,509 he needed. The rest were split between the other candidates with the uncommitted refusing to vote for anyone.

The second and third ballot found no one budging. By the tenth ballot of Wednesday's all-night session, the convention was hopelessly deadlocked.

The state delegations caucused right on the floor, trying to get people to change their minds. But it was impossible.

On NBC, John Chancellor and David Brinkley became short-tempered and refused to talk to each other. Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner on ABC were also not speaking to each other, and on CBS, Walter Cronkite wasn't talking to himself.

IT WAS OBVIOUS to everyone in and out of the convention hall that a compromise candidate had to be found — one who had not already been nominated.

But who? The Democratic Party leaders call a recess behind the podium. They argue and thrash it out for several hours. The only man whose name is proposed as the compromise candidate is a very famous, but controversial, figure on the American scene. He has announced many times that he is not a candidate for the presidency or the vice presidency, and has said under no conditions would he accept a draft.

Yet, the leaders argue he is the one person who can save the party.

This young man, whose name had been associated with a very embarrassing incident, is a household word now. Because of the deadlock at the convention, he is the only one who can possibly beat Nixon in November.

The compromise candidate is not at the convention. He has purposely stayed away so people would believe he was not interested in the nomination.

O'Brien puts in a call to him. Everyone, in turn, gets on the phone and tells him he has to be the candidate.

The compromise candidate speaks to George McGovern, Humphrey, Muskie and Wallace. They urge him to run. The candidate finally agrees to a draft and says he will take the next plane to Miami.

And that's how Bobby Fischer, the U.S. chess champion, became the Democratic presidential nominee for 1972.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

An unofficial vote tabulation indicated Cecil Hardesty of San Diego might have nosed out Max Rafferty of La Canada to qualify for a runoff against Ralph Richardson of Los Angeles for California superintendent of public instruction.

A powerful nuclear bomb was exploded from a Thor missile above Johnson Island in the Pacific in the biggest of the United States' nuclear test series.

20 YEARS AGO

July 8, 1952

Residents of Tiburon and Belvedere launched a campaign to keep their post offices or have them replaced with a single office serving both communities rather than a branch of the Mill Valley Post Office.

Home runs by Jackie Robinson and Hank Sauer gave the National League a 3-2 victory over the American League in the all-star baseball game.

Bugging Incident Shows Need For Tight Convention Security

WASHINGTON — When chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien of the Democratic National Committee went to Miami Beach to take a thorough look at convention arrangements, he was given a detailed briefing on security. He was to admit later that it all seemed a bit superfluous in light of his long experience with conventions which, however turbulent, never seemed to threaten life and limb.

Then came the famous break-in-bugging incident at Democratic headquarters here and O'Brien understood the very real need for the security precautions being taken at Miami Beach. It will be the most security-conscious national convention ever held, with routines bound to cause friction and resentment.

Farcical though it seemed at first, the bugging episode was serious enough in itself. Here was this insidious snooping business carried out by five men with connections, if not with the White House, as has been repeatedly denied, then with the Committee to Re-Elect President Nixon. Invading the privacy of a political organization with the tools of the snooping trade hardly comes under the heading of a free society.

WHAT GIVES the episode a more ominous look and ties it in with the tight security at the convention is the connection of the men caught in the bugging act with the Cuban exile movement in Florida. Three of the five men were born in Cuba. Bernard L. Barker as a CIA operative had a role in the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion. He is said to have been a conduit for money siphoned to the invaders.

According to reports in the Miami newspapers, Barker is said to have tried to obtain from the architect, Leonard Glasser, the plans of the convention hall, including details of the air-conditioning ducts and the cat walks. The intimation was that this was for bugging purposes. Yet why try to bug a political convention with radio and television constantly listening in?

While the bulk of the more than 200,000 Cuban exiles in and around Miami are law-abiding citizens bent on trying to earn a living in a new land, there is a hard core of passionate anti-Communist, anti-Castro plotters constantly seeking ways to bring Fidel down. Their bitterness over President John F. Kennedy's failure to order air strike to save the invaders trapped on the beaches knew no bounds. They never cease to lobby for support from the government for various schemes to cut down Castro's strength.

SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN and certain of his backers have suggested that it was time to restudy American policy toward Cuba. If the President could make an agreement with Moscow, 7,000 miles away, then it should be possible to get together with Castro looking to a relaxation of the measures that have cut off all relations with the island only 90 miles from the Florida coast. Castro is now in the Soviet Union, presumably seeking to renegotiate the agreements costing the Russians well over $300 million a year that keep Cuba afloat.

In the eyes of the Cuban rebels any suggestion of peace with Castro is treason. They will fight it with every means possible. The nomination of a Democratic candidate for President looking, however far in the future, for normalization of relations with the dictator, as relations are on the way to normalization with China, is a deep affront.

O'Brien will run an orderly and secure convention if anyone can. He is a pro and an extremely able pro. Whatever the ardent young McGovernites may think, it is pros like O'Brien who have kept the wheels turning over the years. He was the manager of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's campaign when the senator was struck down in Los Angeles by an assassin's bullet.

In the course of barnstorming through the south, McGovern made a gratuitous slap at O'Brien. He indicated his intention of replacing him after the convention, although on another occasion he said he wanted him to stay. All along O'Brien has said that he intends to leave when he has finished his stint at Miami Beach. Replacing O'Brien, who has carried on through the dreary and difficult days of deficits, will not be easy. If McGovern means to dispense with all the pros, he will add to the handicaps he already suffers.

Social Security Hike Widens Gap Between Rich And Poor

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The gap between the rich and poor in America is widening and it will grow still wider, economists declare, under the enormous new Social Security tax just voted by Congress and reluctantly signed by President Nixon.

It is the biggest Social Security jump in history. Economists don't like it, and Mr. Nixon doesn't like it, but for different reasons.

Economists explain their aversion to the present Social Security tax, but few seem to listen and least of all the very people with low incomes who are supposed "victims" of the tax.

LAST YEAR a person making $7,800 paid 5 per cent of his income to Social Security. Someone making $30,000 paid slightly more than one per cent. That is the disparity built into a tax structure. Next year, under the new rates just passed by Congress, the burden on the low-income wage earner is going to be greater than ever, and the disparity with the middle income and rich will increase.

Economist Milton Friedman angrily calls the Social Security tax distribution "the poor man's welfare payment to the middle class."

A study by Brooking Institution tax experts calls the payroll tax "highly regressive" (it puts a heavier burden on low incomes than on middle incomes).

That isn't all, experts say. It not only puts a heavier load on the straining low-income wage earner, but it has an unequal effect on people of the same income. For example, says Brookings:

"A family with total earnings of $18,000 earned equally by husband and wife pays twice as much payroll tax as does a family in the same income bracket with one earner . . . Not only is the tax regressive, but it taxes families with equal earnings unequally."

THE AMOUNT INVOLVED is one of the biggest sums in the entire United States budget. Payroll taxes have been growing steadily while Congress has slashed corporation and personal income taxes three times in recent years.

Of the $83 billion spent in fiscal 1972 for cash income-support programs (welfare and Social Security payments), $64 billion, or 77 per cent, will be financed from payroll taxes.

Both Dr. Friedman and the Brookings Institution economists note the regressive nature of Social Security taxes.

"Because of its regressiveness," says the Brookings report, "there are strong reasons to believe that reliance on the payroll tax is already too heavy and that future Social Security benefits should be financed more out of general revenues and less out of payroll taxes."

Congress hasn't listened, however.

Other noted tax economists make the same point. These include Charles H. Schultze, former director of the budget, and Joseph A. Pechman, author of "Federal Tax Policy" and director of economic studies at the Brookings Institution.

ONE ASPECT of the situation is the lack of interest of the trade unions in the consequences of the tax in a field which they are ordinarily extremely sensitive. This is attributed by some to the widespread idea that Social Security is comparable in its actuarial effects to private insurance.

A second reason is that half of the tax is applied to the employer, which seems to indicate to the worker that he is getting something for nothing, i.e. the burden is borne 50-50 with his boss.

Economists say, "Not so."

The worker's 5.2 per cent (soon to be 5.5 per cent) is deducted from his payroll check, but the employer often adds his 5.2 per cent to the price of his product or reduces wages by that amount.

"Most economists believe," says the new Brookings study, "that the part paid by the employer is ultimately borne by the worker' the employer did not have to pay the social security tax for him."

PRESIDENT NIXON denounced the big new expansion of Social Security by Congress. But not on economic grounds. He asked, in effect, "Where's the money coming from?"

The federal treasury in three years has about $75 billion in red ink. The same Brookings study says that built-in expansion of federal programs already on the books will exceed federal income by $17 billion in the next three years.

Maximum payroll taxes under the new law will jump from $468 this year to around $594 next year, and $660 on 1974. That's a jolt for the low-income workers. What makes the tax regressive is that is is a flat-rate tax—it imposes the same rate on the charwoman as on the bank president.

Congress has arranged so that the benefits come first, before the election. The higher taxes come after the election, but the higher taxes don't pay for the increased benefits.

Why don't the low-income workers object? The Brookings study says:

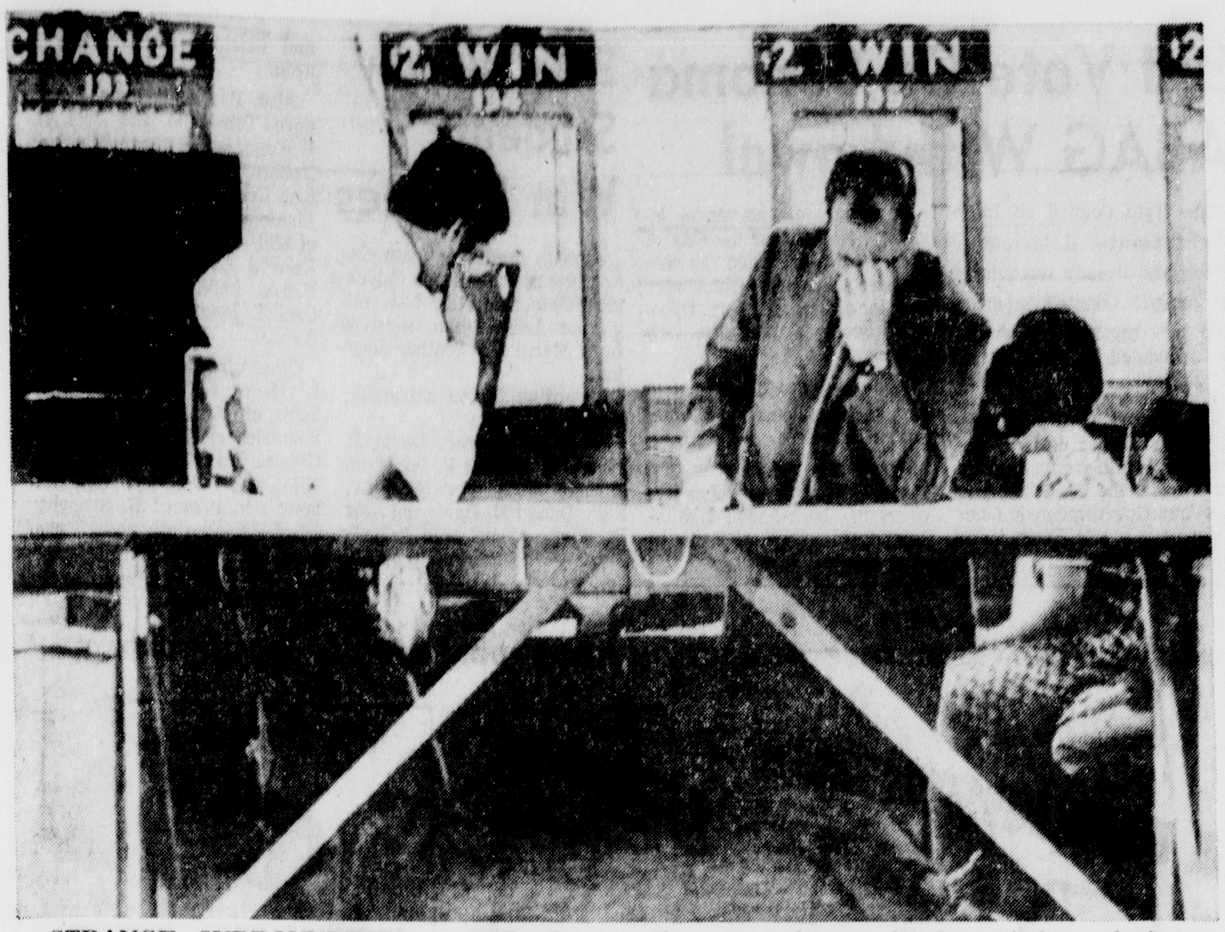

"Over the years Congress has raised the tax along with the benefit levels and has met little political opposition—perhaps because the wage earner sees only half the tax deducted from his paycheck (the other half being paid by the employer) and considers that deduction a 'contribution' rather than a tax."

About The Presidency...

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It seems reasonably safe to make one prediction about the next President of the United States. He'll be a Protestant.

It is highly probable he'll have a Methodist background.

This forecast is based on a process of elimination rather than divination.

No Jews, Moslems, Buddhists or atheists are among the candidates for either party's presidential nomination. One Catholic, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, says he's still in the running for the Democratic nomination. But his chances at present don't look bright. Many Democratic leaders talk wistfully about drafting Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a Catholic, but Kennedy has said firmly and repeatedly he is not available this year.

That leaves Sen. George S. McGovern, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Gov. George C. Wallace, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, and, if you want to include the very long shots, Rep. Shirley Chisholm. All of them are Protestants. Four of them —all except Humphrey —are members of the United Methodist Church. And Humphrey, although a member of the United Church of Christ, has worshipped at Methodist churches in Washington for many years.

On the Republican side, President Nixon is officially a Quaker. But in all his years in Washington, he has never shown up for a Sunday service at the Quaker meeting house that was so regularly attended by the only previous Quaker president, Herbert Hoover.

During his years as vice president, Nixon and his family were affiliated with Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church near their home in the Spring Valley section of Washington. It was the Rev. Dr. Edward Latch, then pastor of Metropolitan Memorial Methodist and now Chaplain of the House, whom Nixon chose to bring forward and introduce as "my pastor" when he accepted his first Republican presidential nomination in 1960.

Durieg his first term as President, Nixon has managed to straddle the question of denominetional identification by confining his public worship almost entirely to services held in the White House. These services ere described by the White House press office as "interdeominational", but their format is just about what you'd find in a typical Methodist church.

Preachers and choirs come from various denominations, but even when a Catholic priest or Jewish rabbi is delivering the sermon, the order of service remains doggedly Methodist. This resulted, one memorable Sunday, in a famous rabbi looking profoundly shocked when his sermon was preceded by a Christian doxology to the Trinity.

The liketihood that both tickets will be headed by Protestants inspires speculation that some looking-around may be under way for possible vice presidential nominees who are Catholics. After all, there are 45 million Catholics in America — by far the largest bloc of people with a self-conscious group identity.

Other factors, such as geography, also enter into "ticket balancing" calculations. If the Democrats nominate McGovern, as now seems likely, his need for a southern running mate may take precedence over the desirability of a Catholic running mate. There are to be sure people who are both southerners and Catholics, but none of them has achieved much political prominence.

Witnesses Set To Meet In Oakland

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Two dramatic presentations from the Bible are scheduled as part of Jehovah's Witnesses' "Divine Rulership" district assembly program, a four-day conference to be held Thursday through Sunday in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

For the past six years, costumed dramas from the Bible have been a regular part of the district assembly programs. Jehovah's Witnesses have seen Bible principles enacted and application made to the present day and society.

In this year's presentations, Jack Redford of San Francisco directs one of the dramas entitled: "How Merciful Are You?" It will be presented Friday at 7 p.m.

The second, scheduled for Saturday at 7:30 p.m., is directed by Donald Meek of Saratoga. Its title: "Gird Yourselves With Lowliness of Mind."

The first drama centers on the life of Joseph from the Genesis account in the Bible. The second is based on the experiences of Naaman, chief of the army of the king of Syria, taken from 2 Kings, chapter 5.

"Many people view these historical records as interesting stories," Redford said. "But they also present important illustrations with strong moral values involved."

The authenticated costumes are made by the cast, and the entire production is supervised by the directors. Dialogue is pre-recorded in order to allow free movement and action without loss of sound or the presence of technical problems.

Casts for the two presentations are drawn from the San Francisco and San Jose areas.

Rev. Martin Wheels And Deals Word

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — When former truck driver and now ordained minister Mahlon Martin drove a semitrailer into the parking lot at a cafe and hung out a sign proclaiming, "Mobile Chapel." an unusual kind of church was open for business.

Martin has a chapel in the truck trailer, complete with pews, altar and pulpit, and there are tinted-glass windows.

"We are bringing the word of the New Testament to truck drivers, to show them our road map of life," said Martin. He and a fellow chaplain, Dan Shafer, were planning to spend a month in Nashville, which has 66 truck terminals.

He explained that the mobile chapel, called Transport for Christ, is now in its 20th year, and that his traveling church has been in operation for two years. Two more are under construction.

"Truck drivers of any denomination are welcomed," Martin said. "We provide religious services and counseling, and we even have our own monthly Highway Evangelist with a circulation of 50,000 copies. Now, if the truck driver feels he is too far from home to go to church, we bring the church to him." (Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Keeping Peace In The Conventions

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press

Religion forces of the country, worried about the turbulence that has marked recent national political conventions, have set up an unprecedented operation in Miami, Fla., to help keep the peace and forestall trouble at this summer's gatherings of Democrats and Republicans.

"Nothing comparable to this has been undertaken by religious leadership any time before," says Rev. Jack Cassidy, head of the staff of the specially formed agency, Religious and Community Leaders Concerned (RCLC).

It has headquarters on the third floor of a bank building at the corner of Washington Avenue and Lincoln Road, a block from Convention Hall. An interdenominational crew of 350 volunteers are taking part in the operation.

"Our objective is to help maintain peace and stability, to provide a community atmosphere that will facilitate the democratic process and support all participants, delegates as well as dissenting groups, in the exercise of their first amendment rights," Cassidy said.

During the conventions, he said observer teams of clergy and laymen, identifiable by RCLC insignia, will be stationed throughout the city, at campsites and in the convention hall, to keep tab on the situations, help prevent confrontations, scotch rumors and encourage maintenance of law and decency in demonstrations.

"Observers will not intervene in crises, but hopefully help prevent them," he said. "We want to remain a neutral thirty-party force. Our executive staff also will be available to serve as liaison between groups and possibly for mediation at critical points."

Set up on a national basis, the operation was sparked by concern over the violence surrounding the 1968 Democratic Convention in Chicago.

RCLC has established communications with convention officials and city agencies as well as with leaders of the myriad groups outside the convention that will be on hand to push their causes, including women's coalitions, gay activists, Vietnam war veterans, welfare groups, counter-culture youth, peace coalitions, Yippies and Zippies.

South Africa's Anglican Church May Stand Up To Government

By PAUL DOLD
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — The Anglican Church in South Africa may be moving toward a formal stand against government policy, as did splinter groups of German Protestants who protested against the Hitler regime at their famous 1934 synod in Barmen.

In an interview, the Anglican Dean of Cape Town, the Very Rev. Edward L. King, says there is growing awareness among church leaders that the church must clearly state the principles in which it believes and condemn South Africa's apartheid laws.

The stage might even be reached someday, he said, when the church might have to break what it considers un-Christian laws.

Tension between the English churches, particularly the Anglican Church, and the government has risen here following a recent police-baton charge and entry into St. George's Cathedral.

The confrontation escalated further with the June 28 banning of the administrative secretary of the strongly anti-apartheid Christian Institute, David De Beer. He has been served a five-year order under the Suppression of Communism Act banning him from working at any education institution, from attending any gatherings, and confining him to Johannesburg.

In a virtually unprecedented step, all the bishops of the Anglican Church in South Africa at present have made a joint protest over the government's action. Their statement — made in Durban by the Bishop of Natal, the Rt. Rev. Vernon Inman, who is acting head of the church — accused the government of flouting the law by banning De Beer instead of filing charges in a court of law.

The statement — signed by the bishops of Natal, Johannesburg, St. Johns (Transkei), Grahamstown, Pretoria, Zululand, George and Bloemfontein — is thought to be the first of its kind for at least 11 years.

Prime Minister John Vorster has gone to great lengths to assure the churches there is no confrontation between church and state. But a statement signed June 29 by the dean of Cape Town, the chairman of the Civil Rights League, Dr. Oscar Wollheim, and others points out that the government has acted against 67 churchmen during the past 18 months.

De Beer is the third member of the Christian Institute staff to be banned in the past year. The others were Fr. Cosmas Desmond and Rev. Basil Moore.

De Beer formerly was secretary to Bishop Colin Winter and was forced to leave southwest Africa with the bishop last February after the Ovambo labor strike there.

There is some speculation here that the banning order may have been triggered by speeches De Beer has made this year at English university campuses about conditions in southwest Africa.

The church-state clash could escalate further, as the ban on open-air meetings, introduced to stop students from protesting, expires today. The dean of Cape Town says the students are welcome to hold legal demonstrations on the steps of the Cape Town Cathedral.

The church allows demonstrations if the protesters' message is the message propagated by the church in its synods. But there is undoubtedly a division of opinion among Anglicans, the dean notes, over the church stand — a division which will grow.

The Anglican Church should become more active in South Africa, King contends. Resolutions deploring government actions are all very well, but there comes a time when the church must be more determined, he believes.

One method the church could use, he suggests, is to call a multiracial national conference.

National Chairman

NEW YORK (UPI) —Dr. Paul W. McCracken has been named National chairman for the 32nd annual interfaith National Bible Week, which will be observed Nov. 19-26. McCracken, who has served as an adviser to Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon, succeeds Arthur J. Goldberg, 1971 chairman.

Annual Hare Krishna Parade Set In Park

The sixth annual Hare Krishna Rathayatra parade and festival will begin at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, July 16, in Golden Gate Park.

The parade will proceed from Fell and Stanyon streets to Lindley Meadow, where there will be a spiritual revival and feastings according to spokesmen for Sri Sri Radha Krishna Temple, San Francisco.

Church Dance Set In Belvedere

A dance sponsored by several Belvedere and Tiburon churches will be held Saturday, July 15, at Whitaker Hall in Belvedere from 8 p.m. at 10 p.m.

The dance is being held in order to spark formation of a church social group for adults and youths, according to spokesmen for Tiburon's Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Donations will be taken at the door.

Reorganizing Spurred By LDS Growth

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints has reported that a doubling of its membership in the past 12 years and unprecedented growth overseas have prompted a major new organization of supervisory personnel.

President N. Edlon Tanner, second counselor in the first presidency, said 36 new regional representatives of the Council of the Twelve Apostles will be named in order to meet problems of expanding membership.

The church also plans to appoint 29 leaders from the United States and overseas to serve as mission representatives of the Twelve and the First Council of Seventy, another ruling body of the 3,000,000-member church.

Tanner and Elder Gordon B. Hinckley, a member of the Twelve and a leader in the Mormon Mission Program, told of the new LDS plans in a recent news conference at the church office building.

Hinckley said church membership is expected to double again within 10 years.

The church leaders said membership in South America has increased 1,100 per cent since 1960, "for the highest rate of growth anywhere."

They said Central America was next with a 948 per cent growth rate, followed by Asia with a 751 per cent rate of increase.

Minister's Wife Role Unchanged

The plight of the minister's wife has not changed in 50 years, say authors Gordon and Mildred Gordon, a husband and wife who have just written a novel about such a life. Researching "The Tumult and the Joy," the Gordons delved into 200 churches.

"We couldn't believe that in this age, some pastors' wives were being treated so thoughtlessly," they said. In the name of dedication they are expected to live in run-down parsonages, gladly accept cast-off furniture, and devote full time without pay to church activities, they said.

It isn't fair, they said, to hire the pastor and expect the wife to work for free.

Johnson To Alumni Council Post

Rev. William H. Johnson, pastor of Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur, has been elected vice-president of the Alumni Council of San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo.

Johnson received a bachelor of divinity degree in 1961 from the seminary. He earned a master of theology degree from the seminary in 1965 and is a candidate for a doctor of ministry degree.

The council is composed of representatives of Presbyteries and Synods in seven Western states. The group represents the alumni body of more than 1,500 graduates of the seminary.

Others elected to serve on the alumni council from Marin are Prof. Gloria K. Perdue, secretary-treasurer, and Dr. C. James Miller of San Anselmo, executive secretary.

Since graduating from the seminary in 1961, Johnson has served churches in Danville and San Francisco and has been a campus pastor for United Presbyterian Church at the University of California, Davis.

He has served as pastor of Redwoods Presbyterian Church since November 1970.

Solving The Hijack Problem

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The way to deal with hijackers is to give them a swift trial in a mobil courtroom right at the airport when the plane lands, and then hang them on the spot from a portable gallows, Police Chief Ed Davis said Friday.

"These hijackers are making it unsafe for people to go from one city to another," Davis told newsmen.

"I'd recommend that we have a portable courtroom in a big bus and a portable gallows. And after we get the death penalty put back in, we conduct a rapid trial for a hijacker out there, and hang him, with due process of the law, out there at the airport," Davis said.

Toll-Free Smog District Number

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has installed a toll-free telephone number for Marin and Sonoma County residents with questions or complaints about antismog rules or violations.

The number is manned on a 24-hour basis, Edward W. McHugh, district information officer, said yesterday.

The district's office may be reached by dialing the operator and asking for Enterprise 1-3200.

3rd Vote On Sonoma ABAG Withdrawal

The state Council on Intergovernmental Relations — which has already voted twice on Sonoma County's membership in a regional grouping — has scheduled yet another vote for Friday.

The council last month reversed its earlier decision and voted to permitSonoma to withdraw from the Association of Bay Area Governments in favor of forming a new North Coast counties association.

Opponents of the move, including ABAG and the City of Santa Rosa, protested the vote because seven proxy votes were cast for absent members. Opponents were granted the new hearing.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. at the Hilton Airport Hotel in San Francisco.

For more than a year, the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has been trying to withdraw from ABAG in order to form the new group.

30 Cal Poly Students Win Degrees

Among graduates receiving degrees recently from California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, were 30 from Marin and Souther Sonoma.

According to the university, graduating were:

Glass Has An Integrity All Its Own

The Cummings Studios

"A respect for the integrity of the medium — that is what is essential. It distinguishes great work from the merely good or acceptable," says Bill Cummings, maker of fine stained glass, who like his pioneering father is never willing to settle for the simply good.

By DON KEOWN

"I can't remember a single night while I was growing up that my dad wasn't busy studying a book on stained glass," says Bill Cummings. "He was an insatiable student of the craft."

The father was Harold W. Cummings, an electrical engineer who in 1921 almost by impulse bought the Western Art Glass Studio in San Francisco and, as the Cummings Studios, built the business into one of America's most prestigious makers of architectural glass.

His often magnificent stained glass beautifies some of the finest churches and cathedrals in the West.

Today his son, also Harold W. Cummings, but better known as Bill, continues in the family business that he moved in February of 1971 to San Rafael, and he devotes to the craft the same scholarship, enthusiasm and creative flair as demonstrated by his famous father, now deceased.

BILL CUMMINGS tells this story of how the Western Art Glass Studio became the Cummings Studios:

"Dad was born and reared in Iowa where his father had a hardware store. He attended Iowa State University and went to work for Johns Mansville as an engineer. But somewhere along the line he developed a love for stained glass.

BILL CUMMINGS has followed in the footsteps of his father, Harold W. Cummings, as one of this country's most distinguished creators of stained or architectural glass windows and mosaics. Here he inspects a Cummings window in St. Raphael's Catholic Church in San Rafael. Done in 1962 and installed in the newest portion of the church, the window was undertaken jointly by the father and son, and was completed shortly before the elder Cummings' death. "It was my first real project," recalls Bill Cummings.

"One day, in 1921, he and a friend were walking along a San Francisco street and passed the Western Art Glass Studio. Dad noticed a 'For Sale' sign in its window, and so he suggested to the other man that they go in and take a look, largely out of curiosity.

"The upshot of it all was that they wound up buying the business."

GRADUALLY Harold W. Cummings bought out the interest of his friend until he became sole owner in 1928, "hardly the year to be starting anew in business," his son notes with a smile. It was the year, too, when the name of the firm was changed to Cummings.

Harold W. Cummings kept the old glass craftsmen on the payroll and began learning the work from them. He started, too, his tireless reading and studying on glass that was not to end until his sudden death in 1962 from a heart attack.

Here Bill Cummings digresses from his story of his father and the business to give you a capsuled history of stained glass work.

"THE REAL prime time for stained glass," he tells you, "was in the medieval era. Around the 14th Century, it started going downhill. And by the 19th Century it was at rock bottom.

"What had happened was that the makers of stained glass had taken to mimicking paintings — they were trying to put paintings onto glass. They didn't respect the integrity and individuality of their own medium."

But there remained "an underground" of dedicated artists, artisans and architects who worked to restore stained glass to its former grandeur. One such was French architect Claude Nicholas Ledoux, and in the middle of the 19th Century he sparked a renaissance of Gothic design among builders and medieval art among Europe's workers in stained glass.

"THE FRENCH really took off,'(relates an admiring Bill Cummings, "and today in that country you can see some really marvelous examples of medieval stained glass that were actually done in the 19th Century."

The craft continued to lag in America, however.

Then Charles Connic of Boston — "known as the papa of stained glass in America" — wrote his "Adventures in Light and Color" that triggered a surge of interest in stained glass and its possibilities.

"Connic and my father were great friends," sayd Bill Cummings, "and they and a haldful of others, the radicals of their time, put their shoulders together and said 'let's make stained glass in America what it ought to be — a distinctive and beautiful craft.'

"THEY WERE beginning several decades behind the French. But it wasn't long before stained glass work was being turned out in America comparable to the craftsmanship to be found anywhere else in the world,"

For examples of that work, Bill Cummings notes, Marinites need not travel far. For instance the windows of the handsome old stone First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, just razed, were splendidly representative of the best American work. Two of those windows were done by Cummings Studios under Harold W. Cummings. And all will be kept at Cummings Studios — and resotred as necessary — to be installed in the new First Presbyterian Church that is to go up on the site at 1510 Fifth Ave.

Included is the famous Robert Dollar memorial window by Cummings that attracted international recognition when it was originally installed in 1932.

ALONG WITH the quality and integrity of his work, Bill Cummings says, his father was responsible for a number of innovations and advancements in stained or leaded glass.

"We were making mosaics, as we still do," he relates, "and dad got the idea for a translucent mosaic: He set about to develop that idea, and the result was what is called lucent mosaics."

Harold Cummings used the technique in some windows for a new church in San Francisco. But the church floundered financially and the windows were never installed. Then the designer of the new Morris Chapel at the College of the Pacific in Stockton saw the windows and asked if he might design the chapel around them. Cummings consented. And the windows add architectural glory to that university chapel today.

"THEN," continues Bill Cummings, "my father thought it would be a great idea to take this lucent glass and use it in big chunks. In Quebec, Canada he saw something similar to what he had in mind. So he came back to San Francisco, and started working on it.

"In 1954 he came out with what has come to be known as faceted glass, and he was the first American to have a commission to work with it — at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere.

"Today virtually every American studio makes it. But whereas we work with both concrete and epoxy, most studios work with epoxy only.

"FACETED GLASS just took over like wildfire, and 10 years ago I was wondering if we would ever see any more work in leaded glass."

Under Harold W. Cummings' leadership, Cummings Studios

SAN FRANCISCO artist-designer Hilda Sachs, working on the premises of Cummings Studios in San Rafael, has mounted a scaffolding to translate the small sketch she is holding into a full-size "cartoon" or pattern for a stained glass window. Says Bill Cummings, owner of the studios: "It would be difficult to over-estimate the contribution that Hilda Sachs has made to Commings Studios. She is a creative genius."

From San Rafael, Some Of Best Stained Glass

had three different San Francisco locations, the last of these being 475 Francisco St. where the firm was based for more than 20 years.

Young Bill Cummings attended San Francisco State College where he graduated in 1962 with a major in music and as an oboeist. Immediately after graduation he went to work with his father, but the senior Cummings died quite unexpectedly four months later.

"AND THEN the studios went through some rocky days," says his son.

Bill remained with the studios in San Francisco for another eight months, then left for Europe to study stained glass and glassmaking. Upon his return he served an apprenticeship with America's largest stained glass studio, the Willet Studio in Philadelphia, where, among others, the masters he was fortunate to work with included the great Ben Shahn.

CUMMINGS STUDIOS owner Bill Cummings, a member of the executive board of the Stained Glass Assn. of America, describes wife Judy, with whom he is working here, as "my No. 1 everything — the firm's office manager as well as an artisan-craftsman — and good at everything."

Cummings smiles: "At that time I didn't really know who Ben Shahn was, or appreciate his greatness. It was only later that I realized how lucky I had been."

THE FIRST panel Bill Cummings ever designed and completed ended up in the Museum of Contemporary Arts and Crafts in New York City.

In the meantime Bill's brother, John L. Cummings, had taken over the management of Cummings Studios in San Francisco.

"John, who had been trained as a fine arts major, did many splendid things for the studio while he was managing it," his brother says. "His biggest contribution was the initiation of a new program that was criticized sharply by some other studios at the time — the transformation of our operation into a portfolio studio.

"THIS MEANT that instead of maintaining a staff of resident artists and relying upon them entirely for our designs and artwork, we could work with freelance artists all over the country.

"It meant, too, that we became more architecturally oriented. We could begin with the architecture, and seek out designers and designs that complemented it. It was at this time that we began calling our product architectural glass instead of stained glass."

Cummings Studios began an association with such great artists as Robert Pinart, Robert Sowers, Georges Kepes and Hilda Sachs — "people who we could not possibly have hired, but whose talents were available to us on the freelance arrangement."

BUT JOHN L. Cummings as manager of Cummings Studios also had his problems. "He simply wasn't business-minded," his brother says. The studios began to run into financial difficulties. John moved the business to Fresno, but the troubles continued. Finally Bill Cummings was asked by his brother and his mother to come to Fresno and rejoin the firm as production manager, and to try to restore the enterprise to solvency.

That was in January of 1968. "The next year and a half," says Bill, "I worked at bringing Cummings Studios out of the hole, and then another year and a half at rebuilding the business."

Then, in January of 1971, Bill Cummings bought sole ownership of the studios, and the following month he moved the firm back to the Bay Area — to San Rafael.

"I DID IT more for selfish than for business reasons," he says. "I wanted to return to the Bay Area to live."

Cummings explains that he was born and reared in Belvedere, from where his father commuted to the studios in San Francisco. He attended Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley and was a student body president there.

"The San Francisco Bay Area was still home to me," he says.

The move to San Rafael, however, was preceded by a rather extended hunt for a new site, with Sebastopol first getting serious consideration.

"BUT," SAYS Bill Cummings candidly, "there were too many Hippies there. We knew our type of work would attract them to the studios. And, in our field, it is necessary for us to keep a very straight image."

The short-haired, clean-shaven Cummings smiles: "I don't even dare grow a moustache. It would put some people off."

Cummings found what he wanted in quarters in a building at 193 Mill St., San Rafael, owned by Bob Waxman whom he describes as "a great landlord who has dome some marvelous things to accommodate us." In space once occupied by a firm manufacturing water skis and other sporting gear, Cummings Studios now produces stained glass creations with the help of a gypsum board wall, 16 feet high, 35 feet wide, that serves as a drawing or cartooning board and which was installed especially for the stained glassmakers by Waxman.

"WE OCCUPY 2,500 square feet in a 25,000-square-foot building," Cummings explains. "We have neighbors in the rest of the building."

There a small family staff does the work of Cummings Studios. "My No. 1 everything is my wife Judy," Bill Cummings says. "I trained her a year and a half ago, and she is exceedingly good at everything — as an artisan-craftsman, and in charge of our office work, too."

Also assisting at the studios is Judy's sister, Shelley Jurs.

Also usually to be found in the studios is San Francisco artist-designer Hilda Sachs who was once a regular full-time employee of Cummings, and who now does layouts and designs for the firm under the freelance or portfolio arrangement so frequently "that she seems like one of our regular staff."

SAYS CUMMINGS: "It would be difficult to over-estimate the contribution that Hilda Sachs has made to Cummings Studios. She's a creative genius. The things she has done have been tremendous."

The work of Cummings Studios under the leadership of both the father and the son can be seen in churches throughout Marin County and the western United States, as well as in many private homes.

The trend, says Bill Cummings, is away from the traditional stained glass windows depicting ecclesiastical scenes to more contemporary designs emphasizing architectural harmony and artistic merit.

BUT, HE adds, the studios must continue to do traditional work from time to time —and to do it well — in replacing existing windows, or in tying in the windows of additions and annexes to existing churches with traditional stained glass windows in place.

Since the contemporary work design generally appears to be simpler than the traditional Biblical scenes done in stained glass, isn't it easier for the designer and the craftsmen?

"Not really," says Bill Cummings. "The contemporary work actually places a higher artistic demand upon the craftsman. He must be more of an artist now. In the old days, there were artists, and then there were craftsmen. Now we tend more to be artist-craftsmen. Some of the artisans who were quite gifted at putting together the old traditional windows are totally unable to do contemporary windows, because they lack that artistic, creative instinct and spark."

SHELLY JURS, sister-in-law of Cummings Studios owner Bill Cummings, begins a panel of stained glass with the smile that comes from a personal sense of achievement in and enjoyment from one's work.

HILDA SACHS lays pieces of stained glass, cut to pattern-sized pieces, onto a sheet of plate glass spread with adhesive as she holds in hand the sketch that shows her only approximately what her finished creation should look like.

EXAMPLES OF Cummings work, traditional and contemporary, can be seen in Marin at Dominican College where each year the graduating seniors' design for their class shield was transformed into stained glass by the studio craftsmen, and the work then placed in the windows of the assembly hall at Meadlowlands on the school's San Rafael campus. That tradition ceased only when the available window space was exhausted, and the shields are now made of wood.

Along with the windows to be restored to the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael when its new building is completed, there are Cummings windows to be seen in St. Raphael's Catholic Church in San Rafael,

The First Methodist Church the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church, the First Church of Christ Scientist in Belvedere, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere, the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley, Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

That is only a partial list, and not all Cummings work is to be found in churches. There are Cummings windows and mosaics in at least two Sausalito, two Strawberry and one Belvedere residences, and, says Bill Cummings, "we are now doing two windows for the new home of our landlord, Bob Waxman."

AN AMBITIOUS project now under way is to go to the First Brigade Chapel at Fort Ord and will be paid for entirely with the contributions of the servicemen.

Finished May 1 was a giant glass piece, 13 feet tall, 36 feet long, for the officers' club at Fort Lewis, Wash.

The First Methodist Chruch in Reno, Nev., contains windows done both by the snior Harold W. Cummings and by the studio under his son's direction. "We tied in with his work precisely," says the son.

St. Ignatius Catholic Chruch in San Francisco contains some excellent examples of the elder Cummings' genius.

MORE RECENT Cummings Studios work can be seen in the Los Gatos Methodist Church, and in All Saints Episcopal Church in Palo Alto, as well as in other churches throughout the western United States.

A project, be it contemporary or traditional, begins with a sketch, Bill Cummings says. The sketch, usually done on paper working with various media, is on a scale of one inch to one foot and most often is in color, opaque rather than transparent. The finished sketch is then mounted and shown to the prospective client.

"What we tell them is that we promise to make a window or mosaic that feels like that sketch — not that it will look exactly like the sketch," Bill Cummings says. "After all, the sketch reflects the integrity of the medium that was used in preparing it. The window will have to reflect the integrity of the glass —a different integrity. That, you will remember, was the old trap the stained glass workers of a few centuries ago fell into —forgetting they were working with glass, and treating it like paints."

THE GLASS with which the Cummings Studios staff will work is obtained from the Blenko Glass Co. in West Virginia, or from companies in England, France, Germany and Belgium.

It is handblown or mouth-blown glass to which metallic oxide has been added in its molten stage to give it a color that will not fade or change. It is first worked into cylinders, then cooled and cut, and returned to the kiln to emerge finally in the form of flat sheets.

"It is very expensive," says Bill Cummings. And, he adds, almost impossible to order in the exact color desired.

"IT IS ORDERED from samples, very much like a householder might order carpeting after examining carpet squares in the home," Cummings explains. "But when it arrives, it is almost never exactly what you wanted."

For this reason, Cummings Studios keeps a huge stock of sheets of the colored glass on hand so that often the craftsmen can find there the colors that lend themselves to a certain piece, and design accordingly.

Bill Cummings, too, makes trips to the suppliers "to let them know what we want, and to keep them on their toes."

ANOTHER FACET of this glass, Cummings adds, is that there can be little control over its thickness, which varies. "But that is one of the things we love about glass. It creates such interesting effects."

From the scale sketch, once it is approved by the client, a full-sized black and white drawing or cartoon is made, working on the wall-size "drawing board" of the studios. Two copies are then made of that, and one of these is cut up into pattern pieces in the manner of the dressmaker, but working with special triple-bladed scissors, and then color keyed. Glass is next selected from the bin, cut to pattern dimensions and laid onto a sheet of glass over a second copy of the full-sized cartoon, being fixed with beeswax.

"WE THEN have a rough idea of where we are going," says Cummings.

If the work is traditional and involves human features or other details, these are painted in with a black paint made from ground glass treated with iron oxide.

Now, piece by piece, the glass is fired in an electric kiln to a very slow anneal at 1,210 degrees, fixing the paint so that it can't be scraped away.

"The Fort Ord job involved 7,000 pieces of glass," Cummings points out, by way of illustrating the job involved when such firing is required to fix the paint.

A SECOND copy of the cartoon is now laid upon a work bench, and the craftsmen begin with strips of lead —that comes in six and a half foot long cames — forming two sides of the window-to-be. Working from that corner, they begin putting the glass into place, fitting and tucking with a hot iron and solder at each joint, and "sweating" copper wire into selected joints as well.

"The lead tends more to expand than to contract," explains Cummings. "We use a tellurium-alloyed lead, which gives it added strength and retards expansion. And the copper wire serves as a support — as a bulwark against sagging and wind pressure."

It is in the failure to employ the copper wire properly that many amateur makers of stained glass work fail most miserably, Cummings notes, leaving their pieces without durability or strength.

PIECE BY piece the glass window is put together and soldered with the lead binding until completed. Then the final two outside margins of lead frame can be applied.

There are two methods of modifying the color of the glass in the studio, Cummings says. Silver nitrate can sometimes be used to control the color. And some flash glass can be separated and etched. But for the most part, the craftsman must work with the colors available.

Bill Cummings talks with enthusiasm and most earnestly when he discusses stained or architectural glass, its history and its status today. And as he talks, "integrity" is a word that is heard frequently in his conversation.

"A RESPECT for the integrity of the medium — that is what is essential," he says. "It distinguishes great work from the merely good or acceptable."

Bill Cummings, it is apparent, has the utmost respect for the integrity of glass. It is a respect he learned from his father, from Ben Shahn and other master artists and craftsmen. It is a respect shared by designer Hilda Sachs, and by the small but industrious family staff at Cummings Studios. And it is a respect reflected in the windows that grace the churches andhomes of Western America, and which bear the distinctive stamp of fine craftsmanship that marks such a piece as a Cummings Studios window.

PAUL HAERLE of Strawberry, attorney and former appointments secretary to Gov. Ronald Reagan, is currently secretary of the Republican Party California State Central Committee, and a likely future choice for chairman of that influential body in the middle 1970s. Then sometime in the more distant future, perhaps even a bid for Congress.

Profile Of Marinite: Paul Haerle Climbs Political Mountains

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Paul Haerle, a member of the "Marin mafia" that staffed the inner circle of the first Reagan administration, plans to play a prominent role in national politics. If his luck holds, he will.

The 40-year-old attorney does not acknowledge it officially, but he long has been aiming at the state chairmanship of the Republican Party. As party chairman for the largest state, he automatically would be a power in the volatile national politics of 1975 and 1976 when the Republicans undertake the making of another President.

As secretary of the GOP's state central committee, Haerle already is in a leading position for elevation in January to the post of vice chairman. This will be the key fight; the vice chairman automatically moves up two years later to chairman.

HAERLE'S LOVE of politics started a long time ago. When he was 8, he flew an old sheet from the back of his bicycle emblazoned with the anti-Roosevelt slogan: "Back on relief with the commander-in-chief." His school principal, however, was an avid Democrat and made him take it down.

Four years later, he went to bed crying as Thomas Dewey lost. Haerle could not recall how his interest in politics began. His parents were Republicans, but not active in the party, he said.

A native of Portland, Ore., Haerle graduated in 1953 from Yale University, where he majored in political science and history. It was at Yale that he forged the ardent conservatism that marked him until recent years.

"Bill Buckley was leaving when I entered Yale, and quite frankly exercised quite an influence over me intellectually. He and many of his disciples left quite a legacy of intellectual conservatism at Yale," Haerle said.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED that he still considers himself a conservative, but added that his experience in Sacramento taught him that "pure ideology just doesn't solve problems all the time. Besides, you get in dog fights that certainly are not worth their toll.

"I just plain became more pragmatic. My attitude now is that the important thing is to win elections and solve problems. You win elections and solve problems by making all sorts of friends and keeping them.

"I also came to the conclusion that the most fun thing about politics really was the friends you made and getting things accomplished, and that's essentially a non-ideological function."

AFTER YALE, Haerle got his law degree at Michigan University, graduating in 1956. He promptly moved back to the West Coast, landing in San Francisco. "I perspired too much in the summer and got too cold and wet in the winter," he said of the East.

"And when you're born and raised in Portland, San Francisco is Mecca," he added.

Except for the two years as appointments secretary to Gov. Ronald Reagan, Haerle has been with the same San Francisco law firm since 1956. He practices primarily corporate litigation.

In 1960, he moved to Marin, and now lives in a Strawberry apartment overlooking tennis courts and the bay.

HIS INTEREST in politics found him working for Barry Goldwater in 1964, then as Marin chairman of Reagan's first campaign in 1966. In 1970, he was Northern California chairman of Reagan's reelection campaign — a measure of how favorably the political winds had shifted for Haerle in four years. He also turned out the appropriate toil in the county political vineyards.

"Essentially, it's just pure luck," he said of his political rise. "I was standing there when the brass ring went by, and the brass ring was named Ronald Reagan."

Los Angeles backers who got Reagan involved in the race "weren't about to leave their jobs and come to Sacramento, so he had to look into the campaign structure to staff this huge state bureaucracy," Haerle said.

As appointments secretary, he screened thousands of potential job holders and advised the governor on whether they should be appointed. It was a job that leaves "a lot of scars on you," he conceded, recalling especially the bellows of rage from legislators when their advice on appointments was not followed.

HAERLE CONCEDED the experience was "a very heady sort of thing. I don't mean to sound big-headed, but I think for two years I had more power and influence in Sacramento than a freshman legislator or even an assemblyman or senator who has been there for quite a while."

Legislators say that Haerle has mended a lot of this animosity. After all, the state central committee he wants to chair is largely a creature of the legislature.

Haerle was proudest of judicial appointments made by the governor. They are the most important and longest lasting of all appointments, he noted.

Judicial appointments were based on merit, Haerle said, unlike those to lower-ranking positions such as county fair boards. These are patronage appointments so the party in power can "reward its faithful workers, who otherwise are minimally qualified. California has very little patronage, but what patronage it does have is in that sort of honorary thing."

"THE LESS impact they have on the life and well-being of the individual Californian the more honorary they are, then to that extent the more political considerations of rewarding the faithful ought to be considered," Haerle expounded.

But a potential appointee's general political philosophy is another thing, he said. "The governor is always entitled to make sure that a person's political philosophy is generally in harmony with his." This is especially true of appointees to the board of regents of the University of California, Haerle asserted.

After two years in the hot seat, he resigned to return to private law practice. "A little clock inside said it was time to go. Either I was going to be a political staff man who also had some law training, or a lawyer who knew something about politics."

HE ADDED that also he could not afford more than two years in the $20,000-a-year job.

"Besides, we had been through Miami (the 1968 GOP national convention) and we thought there was a chance the governor might be nominated for President. It did not prove to be tha case, and a number of us left at that same period of time.

"If the governor had been nominated and gone to Washington, I would have loved nothing more than to have followed him, but politics is a business of onward and upward — or out."

The next year Haerle was elected secretary of the state central committee, and was reelected last year. A group of conservatives attempted to take the position from him, but lost.

"THEY TRIED to outflank me on the right, and that's a very difficult thing to do," he said.

Haerle cautiously deferred his next move until after the November general election. He conceded, however, that "a lot of people assume I will be a candidate for vice chairman."

His decision will depend on what the governor, President Nixon's backers, legislators and other leaders want, he said.

"I don't want to divert energies from what is going to be a very tough race," he said of the November general election. He added that he had seen "too many good guys, Republicans and Democrats, Ed Muskie being the latest, get out in front-and-center as the frontrunner and get shot down. I just don't choose to get out front-and-center now."

THE BATTLE for vice chairman traditionally is between the moderates and conservatives, a gap Haerle could not bridge with support from both blocs.

His ambitions for public office, however, are distant at best. "Running for office does not turn me on," he declared.

"I like politics, but I like politics with the freedom of behind-the-scenes activity. I like political organization. I like political campaigns. I like building something and seeing something grow from an empty office with no staff into a functioning political operation. I think it's a fascinating thing.

"But running up and down, uttering the platitudes that one has to echo, and doing the things one has to do to be elected to public office, just isn't my cup of tea right now. Some day maybe it will be."

Haerle hinted that ultimately he might want to serve in Congress.

BUT FOR now, he insisted, "I just enjoy what I am doing too much. I can eat my cake and have it, too: practice law and still keep politics as an avocation."

He pointed to his last brush with elective office. It was 1966, when Marin Republicans voted him off the county central committee. Terming it "one of the untold stories of my great career," Haerle blamed his defeat on his role as chairman of Reagan's Marin campaign — at a time when the county went two to one for George Christopher.

As for leisure-time pursuits, he said he had "relatively few of them because if I find that between the law practice, politics, my children and traveling a good deal in the law practice, I haven't got time for all that many pursuits."

BUT HAERLE admits to loving tennis, relaxing, movies and sports. He is a season-ticket holder for both football and baseball.

But his first love clearly is politics, particularly "its dynamics," in his words: "It's not the status quo, where things are now, but where things come from and where they are going.

"It's not that much different from the mountain climber. I like to go organize political campaigns because it's there, because of the challenge. I think that's the sense of accomplishment.

"When you have finished something and you see an operation grow from absolutely nothing into a major county-wide or state-wide bunch of people doing something, working together, and you're busy running around solving problems and putting out fires, and it all works. It's a very satisfying, rewarding experience.

"The same way as building and ultimately winning a case in court is a satisfying experience. It's as simple as that."

Knowing Your Marin Beaches

THESE BREAKERS slamming into Big Rock and the shoreline at Stinson Beach State Park look formidable enough. But just how menancing are they to the swimmer? Bob Pollitt and Jim Shields of the water safety committee, Marin Chapter, American Red Cross, suggest you know the answer before you test them. (Photo by Max Murrey)

THERE ARE funmakers in the waters of McClure's Beach here, despite the froth and pounding surf. But Bob Pollitt and Jim Shields of the Red Cross safety committee rate McClure's Beach as "not swimable" with rip currents and underwater rocks, and no lifeguards.

Safety On The Beach

Two Red Cross Experts Offer Swimmers Advice

The call to the beach on a warm, summer day is, in the words of poet John Masefield, "A wild call, and a clear call," that can be resisted by few Marin residents.

Bob Pollitt and Jim Shields, members of the Marin Red Cross Water Safety Committee, want everyone to have an enjoyable summer on Marin's many beaches. But a safe one as well.

They feel it is important that everyone know and understand the rules of beach safety, and to this end they have compiled the following beach report for the benefit of community residents.

ACCORDING TO Pollitt, swimming and water polo coach at Terra Linda High School, the first lifeguards appeared on Marin County beaches around the mid-1800s. They were the men of the intrepid United States Lifesaving Service, stationed on lonely Point Reyes Beach, and they were employed by the federal government to patrol the 15 miles stretch of beach from McClure's to the tip of Point Reyes.

By 1870 the service was in full swing and men patrolled on foot and by horseback 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, lighting bonfires to warn the wooden-bottomed ships sailing down the coast of California to beware of the treacherous rocks off shore. When a ship did find itself in distress, the lifeguards would launch handcrafted rescue boats through the pounding surf to pick up survivors.

Their lonely job was eventually phased out with the introduction of lighthouses and other navagational aids.

ONE HUNDRED years later, radar protects the coastal shipping, and lifeguards now protect the thousands of swimmers who enjoy the waters of Marin's beaches. But sea and sand still meet in the same patterns.

One hundred years ago relatively few people could even swim — today some 100 million Americans enjoy water sports. But the majority of the swimming public today still does not understand what happens when waves meet land.

Pollitt and Shields recommend that the recreational visitor to the beach determine its safety by studying the surf, the beach and the sand itself.

TO STUDY THE surf, watch a wave break. If it breaks continuously along its entire front without reforming and breaking again on the shore, you have a relatively safe bottom, such as found at Monterey Bay and Santa Cruz.

All Marin beaches are affected by the California current, which is part of the major Pacific Ocean current. It flows north along the Asian coast, west to Alaska, then southward along the coast of the United States and westward back to the southeast Asian coastline.

With this current come "wind waves," produced by storms far out in the Pacific. They pass over hundreds of miles of ocean until they hit the coast of Marin.

The most impressive example of what happens when these "wind waves" reach Marin is found in the turbulent, dangerous surf at Point Reyes National Seashore.

POINT REYES Beach faces the California current and all of the powers of unobstructed waves and unrestrained current are unleashed upon this section of Marin's coastline.

At Point Reyes there are sections of calm water between the breaking wave fronts. At first glance these look like the only safe place to swim.

"In fact," says Shields, "they are the most treacherous zone in the surf."

Numerous sets of waves breaking simultaneously off Point Reyes indicate to the alert observer that there is an offshore sand bar. The calm water patches are rip currents, which form on either side of a gully carved by the force of the surf returning to the sea. The speed of the riptide may be three times that of a fast swimmer.

POLLITT AND Shields also suggest examining the slope of the beach. If you find yourself looking down at the water, as one does at Point Reyes Beach, ask yourself, they advise, how the sand got so high.

The answer is that it was placed there by the waves of the last high tide. Try to imagine the power of the wave that climbed up the face of the beach to deposit that sand. If the beach is steep and well above the surface of the water, it is a good indication of the power of the waves which formed it, and the ability of the surf to sweep a wader off his feet.

A study of the sand can indicate the velocity of the water as it strikes the beach.

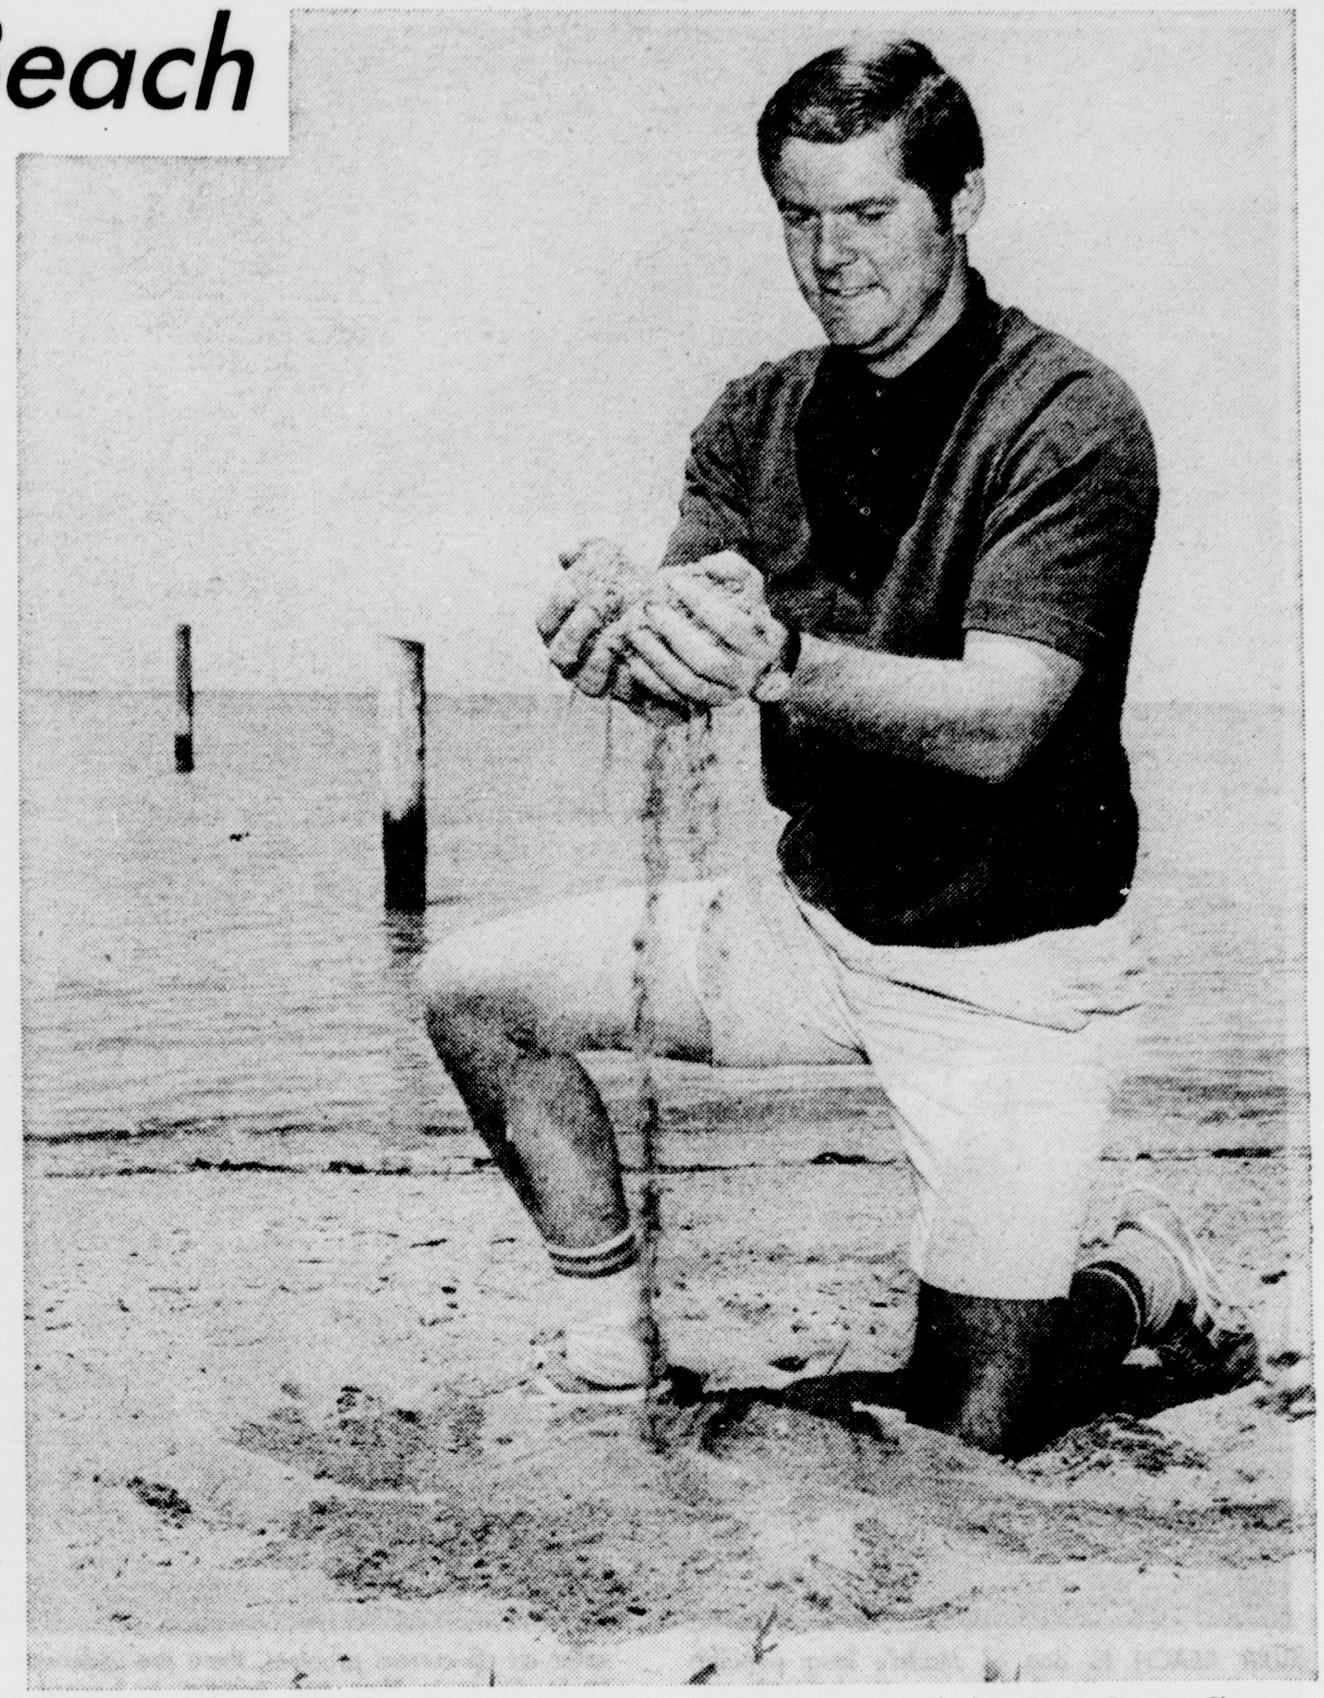

Walk down by the waters edge at Pebble Beach at Fort Cronkite and pick up a handful of moist sand. It is coarse and consists mainly of small pebbles. The turbulent, hard, pounding surf keeps the finer particles of sand in suspension while the heavier pebbles drop from the waves to form the beach — no place to take children wading.

ON THE OTHER side of Point Reyes is Drake's Beach, perhaps the safest beach in the San Francisco Bay region.

Here only one wave breaks at a time; sand is fine and the beach is flat. The waves come from the southwest and conform to the land upon which they break. In doing so, they lose the velocity that makes them so dangerous at Point Reyes. Their two and a half mile trip from Point Reyes around to Drakes Beach has literally slowed the waves down to the point where the beach is safe for swimming.

Both Pollitt and Shields stress that the most important factor in beach safety is an individual's understanding of his limitations, and care not exceed that ability. Caution should always be taken at the beginning of the swimming season not to overextend one's physical capability, nor to swim alone.

On Page M10 is a chart of the more popular beaches in Marin, prepared by the Marin Red Cross Water Safety Committee. Pollitt and Shields advise you to clip it out. The next time you decide to visit the beach, check the chart to determine whether or not you should get wet.

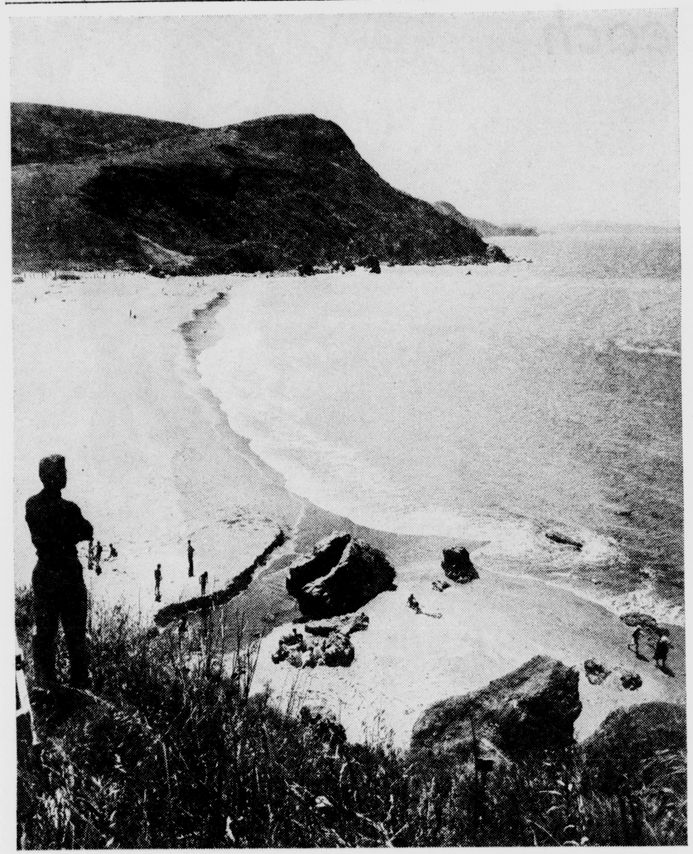

BY A CAREFUL examination of the sand on the beach, one can tell a great deal about the velocity of the waves as they strike the shore and thus determine something of the "swimability" of the waters, says Bob Pollitt, member of the water safety committee of the Marin County Chapter, American Red Cross. Here at McNear's Beach, the sand is fine, indicating it was deposited by gently lapping waves.

MUIR BEACH IS one of Marin's long popular waterfront resort areas with a spectacular setting of cliffs overhanging the sandy beach and surf. Bob Pollitt and Jim Shields report that while the waters offer no rip current problem, there are underwater rocks in spots that can present a hazard to swimmers, depending on the tide. And the two Red Cross water safety committee men also point out that there is no lifeguard at the beach.

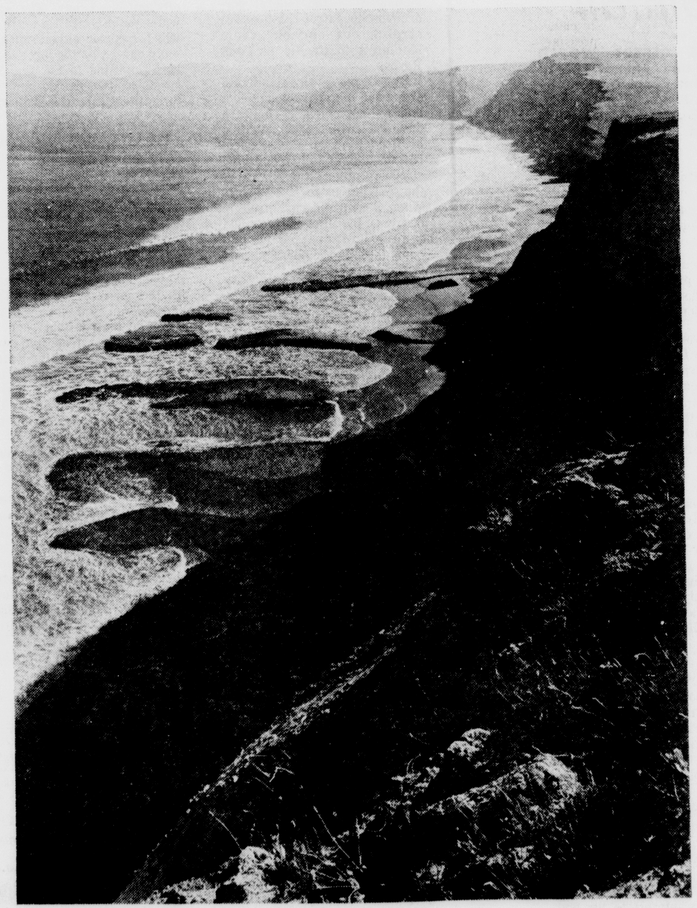

PHOTOGRAPHER Philip Hyde took this remarkable photo of a serene Drake's Beach, one of Marin's finest, for the classic Sierra Club book "Island in Time," first published a decade ago with text by Harold Gilliam and photos by Hyde. Now that book on the Point Reyes National Seashore area has been scheduled for a reprinting, by the Sierra Club and Scribner's jointly, for later in 1972.

THE WAVES WASHING ashore here on Point Reyes, near the lighthouse site, are gentle. A great deal can be learned about the swimming conditions of a beach through a bit of careful and knowledgeable study of how the water strikes the shoreline, says Red Cross water safety experts Bob Pollitt and Jim Shields. Sometimes outwardly calm waters are the most treacherous. And no swimmer or non-swimmer should run the risk of entering water that might possibly be beyond his capabilities, they warn. The two prepared the chart of Marin beaches, their facilities and their swimming conditions, that appears at the top of these pages. (Independent-Journal photo)

The Corporate Vs. The Public Interest

THE SUPERLAWYERS by Joseph C. Goulden; Weybright and Talley, 408 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

Conflicts In Capital Have Given Rise To Two Opposing Legal Corps

Washington is a mare's nest of alphabetical agencies created by Congress to administer laws affecting every aspect of our lives from advertizing to zymurgy.

Impenetrable to the uninitiated, this bureaucratic maze has forced the creation of a crops of guides — the Washington "superlawyers" — of Joseph Goulden's title.

Goulden, an experienced Washington newspaperman, writes with clarity and understanding, striving for objectivity in an arena given to emotional demonology. "The Superlawyers" deals with two contending types of Washington law firms: the established firm used by corporations, and a new phenomenon — the public interest law firm.

In the first category of superlaw firms are small firms built around individuals such as Clark Clifford or Tommy Corcoran and large firms such as Arnold Porter, Covington & Burling, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander (whose former partners include Richard Nixon and John Mitchell).

The reason for being of the superlaw firms is service to corporate clients for large fees, often in a successful effort to convert the regulation of corporate activities into protection from that very regulation. They do this through the writing of legislation to weaken regulatory powers, through political pressure for the appointment of commissioners friendly to the regulated industry and through lagal delaying tactics which postpone the enforcement regulatory decrees designed to protect the health, well-being and pocketbooks of the average non-corporate citizen.

Public interest law firms range from one-man operations like that of Benny Kass or William Dobrivir to Ralph Nader's army of legal activists. Their prime purpose has been to force the regulators to place public good before corporate profit.

Lawyers working for the big firms have all the tools they need: batteries of copying machines, research and stenographic help on constant call, comprehensive law libraries; their public interest colleagues have only what limited foundation grants will buy, plus seemingly inexhaustible supplies of imagination and determination. The public interest lawyers have one thing more, an increasing number of new law graduates who are committed to making the bureaucracy function for the good of the public rather than for special interest.

Ralph Nader has had no difficulty recruiting top young talent for law pay to serve in his various crusades. The best graduates of the best schools who do go into the big firms are insisting on the freedom to do pro bono work on firm time and using the firm's resources.

"The Superlawyers" is an informative and optimistic look. Informative because it takes the non-legal reader into a world which prefers to work in privacy. Optimistic because many new lawyers are not content with bread alone, indicating that the next generation of "superlawyers" may be better balanced toward the public interest.

Maiming And Hating In Ireland– A Powerful Anti-War Message

A WILD JUSTICE by Francis Clifford; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 142 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Francis Clifford is a novelist of growing stature, and "A Wild Justice" is certain to add yet more luster to his reputation. It is an absolutely searing novel, quickly read, then long remembered.

In the rubble of a shelled hotel in a ruined block of an Irish city during the troubles a half decade ago, three rebel fighters are hopelessly trapped behind enemy lines. They are Liam, the embittered leader; Kenny, ill and fast losing contact with reality and life, and the girl, Clodagh, tough, fanatically intent upon avenging the death of her father. Without food, their plight is desperate. Finally Liam, fearing Kenny will die without sustenance, ventures out, and by chance makes contact with two other surviving resisters. They have a small supply of canned meat and whiskey, and with one of them Liam strikes a bargain — the girl in return for part of their food and drink.

Liam tricks Clodagh into joining the other pair, takes his meat and whiskey and rejoins Kenny, leaving the girl to be brutally raped.

There follows a capture by the enemy for Clodagh. But hers is a resilient spirit, and she escapes to return to the scene of her earlier entrapment and exact "a wild justice" in a shocking climax.

The author of "The Naked Runner," "The Blind Side" and other good suspense novels has achieved yet another dimension in this taunt, emotion-wringing study of war and what it means to the human soul to be subjected to killing and maiming and hating. "It made me understand however briefly some of the Celt, or Gaelic mystique," wrote Alice Cromie of the Chicago Tribune of the book. Which it does. But more importantly, it has application to all peoples. And that application makes it one of the most powerful anti-war messages of recent years. It tells us that war, no matter what the cause, inevitably erodes and destroys the participants morally as well as physically.

A Bit Of Gallic Froth With Wine And Truffles

THE TAXI by Violette Leduc; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 88 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Violette Leduc. French intellectual, author of the soul-baring autobiography, "La Batarde," had composed a bit of peculiarly Gallic froth.

This is an erotic poem about an all-day love affair conducted in the back of a taxi, nourished on champagne and truffle pate, but doomed to death by "the system."

Why? Because the adolescent lovers are brother and sister; because they are, to put it baldly, thieves; and because their parents are sure to find them out and pack them off to "the doctors."

The lovers' story is told entirely in dialogue — much of it amazingly explicit.

If you are a romantic, you'll find this a touching Romeo and Juliet interlude and will revel in symbolism and in phrasing such as, "You, the angel of joy in the rye and the wheat," or "I'm letting myself glide. I'm floating wood."

If you are a pragmatist, you'll wonder why Violette Leduc, who has the touch of genius, interrupted her more mature writing for this. As a change of pace? Or to pay the bills? Wine and truffles are expensive.

But if you've an hour to spare on a hot summer afternoon, and if modern poetry is your thing, you may enjoy peeping between the gold silk curtains of Leduc's taxi.

How Reliable Are The Gospels?

JESUS AND HIS TEACHINGS by Dr. Fred L. Fisher; Broadman Press, 157 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Dr. Clayton K. Harrop.

Scholarship need not be dull and boring. Careful critical study need not be negative.

This has been shown by Dr. Fred L. Fisher's book, "Jesus and His Teachings." This book shows that the most up-to-date methods of study and interpretation can be used by a self-styled conservative in a positive way. It makes an important contribution to the current scene of New Testament study.

The avowed purpose of the book is, "to ask seriously about the Jesus of the Gospels, to inquire into the reliability of the gospel witness, and then to seek to understand the main elements in his teaching."

Fisher, professor of New Testament interpretation at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Mill Valley, begins his study with the resurrection of Jesus, recognizing that the gospel writers could not understand anything about the earthly ministry of Jesus except from a perspective from beyond the resurrection. The gospel writers were writing "testimonies to the meaning of the risen Christ for men of their own day." After discussing the significance of Jesus' death, Fisher briefly traces the ministry of Jesus.

The first major part of the book deals with the question of the reliability of the Gospels. The main thesis of this section is that the gospels are reliable and present the substance of Jesus' teaching. The Gospels are treated as primarily theological works, interested in both history and its interpretation. It is agreed, however, that the essential historical facts must be accepted with historical confidence.

The author briefly treats the major areas of New Testament study during the past century. He then builds a strong case to support his main thesis: "The Gospels transmit the substance of the life and teachings of Jesus reliably."

Part two surveys Jesus' teachings on the kingdom, God, and discipleship. This section is a stimulating and challenging study.

The book is highly recommended for reading by every pastor and every layman interested in a fuller understanding of Jesus and his ministry.

The Land Of Little Rainfall

THE DESERT WORLD Plant and Animal Life of the American Desert, by David F. Costello; Crowell, 264 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

Deserts, fascinating for their variety and adaptability of life, receive a sound introduction here from David F. Costello, experienced U.S. Forest Service researcher and author of several previous books, including "The Prairie World" and "The World of the Gull."

The North American desert is actually five deserts, each with their own distinct features — the Great Basin Desert, the Painted Desert, the Mohave Desert, the Sonoran Desert and the Chihuahuan Desert, with the lattar two centered in Mexico.

These regions, as Costello points out, remain even today relatively untouched by man, a major exception being the loss of many desert grasses due to an over-grazing by man's livestock in the last century. Strangely, this has brought about encroachment of conifers across desert borders, because the loss of grass stopped the natural and man-made fires that destroyed the trees.

Costello covers insects, reptiles, mammals, birds and plants in separate chapters and gives a final chapter on how to see the desert, a brief guide that explorers will find most helpful.

There are sections in the book which give the impression of hasty organization and hasty editing. Repetitions are an even more glaring fault. But, nevertheless, the subject carried this reviewer's interest to the end. It will hold the attention of others interested in the out-of-doors as well.

"The thousand strange cults, sects and fads that flourish (in California) may be seen as part of this fever of satisfying the desires and allaying fears. But among these organizations there may be some that are reaching out for something more fundamental than gratification. Of this handful of groups, some may perhaps be channels through which timeless traditions are speaking anew to modern man," Jacob Needleman in "The New Religions" as quoted by David St. Clair in "The Psychic World of California."

World Of The Occult

By DON KEOWN

America's preoccupation with the occult continues unabated, and Doubleday and Co. has published two more books to fuel the flames.

"The Psychic World of California" by David St. Clair, who previously explored mysticism and the supernatural in Brazil, focusses for the most part upon the more oddball and outrageous claimants to psychic power in what the author calls "America's most psychic, occult and mystic state." It is utterly unconvincing, and totally entertaining, a fascinating collection of tall tales and weird personalities.

"The Miracle Workers" by Jess Stearn, who became one of the country's best known writers in the field of mysticism with his "Edgar Cayce — the Sleeping Prophet" in 1967, deals with the less extreme and exotic practitioners of occultism, treating the subject more seriously and more critically, although by no means with real probing.

The Stearn book makes less interesting reading than the St. Clair work because the latter has simply pulled out all stops and included just about everything that has contributed to California's reputation as a mecca for weirdos and far-outs. Stearn has exercised more discernment in selecting his personalities and incidents, and in doing so has wrung from his subject some of its juices.

Let it be noted that both St. Clair and Stearns are convinced of the existence of psychic powers. Both are believers. You do not need to share that belief to enjoy St. Clair's book. In fact, a healthy skepticism contributes to the fun. Stearn's book, on the other hand, is intended for fellow believers or for those with open minds and thus potential converts.

THE PSYCHIC WORLD OF CALIFORNIA by David St. Clair; Doubleday, 323 pages, $7.95.

THE MIRACLE WORKERS by Jess Stearn; Doubleday, 280 pages, $6.95.

Why this keen and still growing interest in psychic phenomena among Americans? In one of his less far-out passages, St. Clair quotes parapsychologist Thelma Moss of the University of California at Los Angeles as pointing to two basic reasons — the drug culture, and advancements in electronics. One suspects that a far more important factor is our increasing disillusionment with and distaste for materialsim and materialistic living. As does the hippie-Bohemian style of living, occultism offers one alternate to the establishment pattern and its preoccupation with material possessions.

St. Clair himself puts it: "There is something . . . materialism isn't supplying."

How else can one explain any serious attention whatsoever directed toward such legends as the Masters — Jesus and others — who dwell atop Mount Shasta and dispense wisdom through Nola Van Valer and her Radiant School, as the space city being built in the air "directly over Placerville," as the haunted highway near Tracy. Along with these St. Clair gives you a diverse assortment of churches, mediums, gurus, psychics, healers, swamis, card readers, palmists, flying saucer sighters, preachers, witches, devil worshipers, numerologists, messiahs, parapsychologists and a colony of immigrants from a higher plane who supposedly have settled in the desert near Joshua Tree National Monument.

Giving a measure of stability to this spooky array is Betty Bethards, the Novato psychic who is accorded nearly three pages and described as "one of the most amazing women in the Bay Area . . . amazing, not for what she claims to do, but for the things she really does." Other briefer Marin and Southern Sonoma mentions range from Rev. Todd Ewald with "the gift of speaking in tongues" to actor Bob Cummings and his reliance upon astrology, from Petaluma hypnotist Pat Healey to that same city's George Ross, spirit photographer, and the Sausalito statue of the Madonna that wept real tears.

St. Clair has obviously enjoyed his California travels collecting his material. He claims to have exercised some selectivity. But obviously, he has not let that element rob his readers of any material they might enjoy.

Jess Stearns is interested primarily in psychics — in clairvoyants — whom he believes actively help or could help their fellow man. Flying saucers, psychokinesis and other aspects of mysticism interest him far less than the ability to advise, to heal or to forewarn. While Stearn himself is convinced as to the worth of psychic consultants, his book documents failures as well as successes. And the unbiased reader, on the basis of the evidence in "The Miracle Workers," may find the weight in favor of the psychics somewhat less than Stearn obviously believes it to be. Stearn's two most impressive "witnesses" are Rev. Doug Johnson, healer and spiritual consultant, and Bill Corrado, diagnotician and advisor to Hollywood celebrities, both Southern Californians. Their records must cause even the most skeptical to hesitate and think before scoffing.

The Marin-based Mind Dynamics program also receives frequent mention by Stearns, who took the course and feels it did, indeed, deepen his psychical attributes.

"Beset at every turn by war, pollution, greed and injustice," writes Stearn, "man seems to have lost touch with what life is all about — namely the enhancing of his own potential through self-awareness in a world whose greatness he is just beginning to glimpse.

"If we are not to destroy one another before we realize this purpose, we must proceed with . . . insight, the psychics say, to weld together a world of one mind and one heart."

Then he quotes gentle Douglas Johnson: "In arriving at our purpose, and pursuing it, we must learn to care about one another, for in uncaring lies the seeds of man's destruction — not only others' but his own."

Read "The Psychic World of California" then for sheer fun, and read "The Miracle Workers" for a more serious if not entirely convincing coming-to-grips with the question of whether the psychics have been assigned a special and crucial role in man's future, and some speculation as to what that role might be.

THREE OTHER new books for those attracted to or intrigued by spiritualism, metaphysics and the supernatural:

"Facts, Frauds and Phantasms" (Doubleday, $4.95) by Georgess McHargue offers a popularized survey of mediums and other phenomena, and those affected by them, through the years, focussing upon prominent personalities from Robert Browning to Bishop James Pike, and upon the men and women who practiced and fostered the spiritualist movement. Miss McHargue looks sharply into celebrated examples of spirit presences. She offers this observation: "Man considers himself to be a marvelously intelligent creature, but the truth is that he frequently believes what is most reassuring rather than what is most logical . . . . The only advice that can be offered to those who set out to form an opinion is: Distrust most deeply those facts that seem to confirm your private opinions and secret hopes." Such, she suggests, as the refusal to accept the death of a loved one.

"Edgar Cayce's Story of the Origin and Destiny of Man" (Coward, McCann, $5.95) is the latest addition to the long and growing list of books preserving the theories and pronouncements of America's most famous clairvoyant. The selections are by Lytle W. Robinson and offer the "sleeping prophet's" theory as to the roots of western civilization, centered around the fabled lost continent of Atlantis and its people.

"Ellen G. White: Prophet of Destiny" (Keats, $6.95) is a biography by Rene Noorbergen, of another famous American prophet, Ellen G. White, who lived in the 1800s, but is credited with predicting many of the problems of the late 1900s. Noorbergen is totally convinced as to Mrs. White's authenticity, and tells her story with the fervor of a believer. And, indeed, among the many prophets, she is one of the most difficult for the dubious to discount and disprove. It is an uncritical but interesting look into her life and her many forecasts and principles which included an admonition to listen to the prophets of God and to act upon the warnings they relay. Or as the Scripture reads: "Believe His Prophets, so shall ye prosper."

FOR FOUR decades H. Allen Smith has held a place in the front ranks of America's humorists, turning out book after book. Now in "The Best of H. Allen Smith," $7.95, published by Trident, you can get a sampling of his ribticklers. Some 80 fans have chosen their favorite Smith pieces for a fat 405 page anthology that demonstrates why over the years the sale of his books has passed the four-million mark.

HILL & WANG, the New York publishers, has continued its publication of the so-called "jungle novels" of the late B. Traven with "The Rebellion of the Hanged" ($6.95), fourth in the series. Best-known in the U.S. for his "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," Traven, a soldier-of-fortune himself, wrote a series of books set in Mexico in the time of dictator Porfirio Diaz, detailing the suffering of peons and Indians under the administration of the despot and tracing the rise of the revolutionary spirit. "The Rebellion of the Hanged" takes place at the beginning of the uprising against Diaz.

"BALLOONING" by Peter L. Dixon is offered by Baliantine Books as "the first guide to America's newest sport" and as an illustrated paperback for $1.50.

Sleuths & Suspense

A PRESENCE IN THE HOUSE by Marc Lovell; Doubleday, 164 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Set in Canada, this Crime Club Selection is about a disappearance that may have been simply a case of a theif fleeing with his loot, a husband abandoning his wife, or something more chilling and more difficult to explain.

Your sleuth is Andrew Bailey, president of the Ontario Society for Psychical Research, who lies glibly, is something of a skeptic, and who presses on in his determination to learn whether the vanishing of locksmith Daniel Vaughn from a job, leaving behind an empty safe, was premeditated or supernatural.

What is surprising is that author Marc Lovell makes so little effort to create an eerie, haunted atmosphere to go with the psychic implications of his story. Yet his matter-of-fact tone is surprisingly effective.

The tale isn't spectacular, but it is a solid, low-key effort that performs adequately the function of the crime novel — it entertains.

'City Of Light' Is Also The City Of Views

By TAKASHI OKA

Everyone has his favorite view of Paris, his favorite restaurant, his (or more accurately, her) favorite boutique.

I, a novice with but six months residence in the city of light, could not dare name either the eateries or the shops I frequent.

But views are universally sharable delights. My favorite is Notre Dame at night — not the usual massive twin stone towers of the front, but the side and rear, as seen from across the Left Bank of the Seine. Skillfully illuminated, the great cathedral seems to float upon the night air, its slender spire and flying buttresses poems of airy lightness and grace.

Paris, like all the great cities of the world, is an unfolding tapestry of continual discovery. There are the old familiar favorites, the points of reference, like the Arch of Triumph or the Eiffel Tower or the Champs Elysees, Montmartre or Bould' Mich or the Odeon.

BUT YOU CAN walk down almost any little street, turn the corner, and be confronted with a vista, a sound, a smell that will thenceforth be fixed in your memory as your personal, private Paris.

It may be a sudden glimpse of Sacre Coeur above a crazy-quilt pattern of rooftops, it may be the laughter of small tots riding a carrousel in a cobbled square, it may be the irresistible tang of freshly baked croissants or long stick bread.

The best way to see Paris is to explore it by foot, wherever your fancy may lead you. The Office de Tourisme de Paris, one of whose functions is to help the individual tourist tired of the usual assembly-line bus tours, has a branch in Montmartre, at 9 Bix Rue Norvins, Paris 18.

SHOULD YOU desire an individual tour of this charming, historic district, you can rent a tape recorder for 10 francs at the office and wend your leisurely way up and around the hill made famous by genrerations of artists and writers. The recorder with tapes in English or French will take the place of a much more expensive personal guide.

Paris buses are clean and pleasant to ride in. Although the picturesque open-back porches of a decade ago are gone, some buses are now double-decker and give you as good a view of Paris life as the sightseeing buses.

If you are in a hurry, you can take a taxi or the Metro, the antiquated (it still has first and second class) but quite dependable subway. (First class ticket two francs, second class one franc, 30 centimes).

YOU CAN EVEN rent a horse-drawn carriage, if you know enough French to bargain with the coachman and to arrive at a satisfactory price. You may see the coachmen (including one coachlady) sitting in their carriages on any fine day at the rond-point of the Champs Elysees.

You should not, of course, neglect to treat yourself to a view of Paris from the Seine.

Several companies offer boat rides up and down the Seine, throughout the day and until midnight. The best known, the one which offers you the most luxurious trip, is the Companie des Bateaux Mouches. (Price of ride without lunch is between five francs and 20 francs and 50 francs for lunch and 90 francs for dinner.)

PARIS IS THE gateway not only to Versailles, to Fontainbleau or Chartres, but to all of France — by plane, by fast and efficient train, or by rented car. Roads are perhaps the least satisfying way of seeing France, however. Superhighways are few and far between, and traffic jams frequently horrendous.

For long journeys, it is better to take one's car aboard the train in one of the auto-couchette services the national railway offers, arriving at one's destination fresh and ready for new adventures. (First-class ticket Paris to Nice costs 210 francs, auto costs range from 229 francs to 367 francs depending on size.)

In 1970, there were 2,792,000 tourists who passed through Paris. The figure is the last official statistic available, but it is estimated that the number rose by 7 to 8 per cent last year.

HOTEL SPACE continues to be a bottleneck in this city, for although new hotels are being built all the time, old ones, especially the comfortable low- to medium-priced family type, are going out of business, unable to keep up with rising prices and labor costs.

An early reservation is therefore essential for any would-be visitor, especially during the crowded summer months.

As of Jan. 1, 1972, there were 1,282 hotels with a total of 55,809 rooms in Paris. The hotels are divided by the Commissariat of Tourism into five categories — luxury, four stars, three stars, two stars and one star.

THE PRICE RANGE is from 55 francs to 120 francs and you will need to pay at least 65 francs for a room with bath.

Paris Is For Children, Too

Paris offers many attractions of interest to children.

On Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays, through September, marionnette theaters come to life in the Luxembourg Gardens, the Tuileries Gardens and in the Jardins des Champs-Elysees from 3 to 6 p.m.

Boat rides on the Seine leave hourly and include the small Bateau Vedette and larger Bateau Mouche. Junior sailors can rent their own model boats at the boat basin of the Palais Royal and sail them there or in the Luxembourg or Tuileries gardens.

Amusement parks never fail to delight, and Paris has its miniature Disneyland — the Ermenonville Center of Jean Richard. The Domaine de Thoiry simulates an African reserve, on the grounds of a 16th Century chateau which is also open to the public.

Details of locations and prices can be obtained from the French Government Tourist Office, 610 Fifth Ave., New York, 10020.

Americans Check In With Czechoslovakia

American visitors to Czechoslovakia in 1971 totaled 46,112, a 5.5 per cent increase over 1970, says the Czechoslovak Travel Bureau in New York. Vaclav Dubsky, North American director of the bureau, said it is hoped the 50,000 mark will be reached in 1972.

Currently the franc is worth a little more than five to the dollar, and you may get a better rate if you change your money in the United States instead of waiting till you get to France. Luxury hotels, of course, reach well into the stars, a night at the Ritz could cost a couple $60 and more without including service or taxes.

Should you arrive in Paris with no hotel reservation, the Office de Tourisme de Paris, at 127 Champs Elysees and four other locations, will do its best to help you find one. Its hostesses are on duty every day including holidays from 9 in the morning until midnight.

DURING THE peak summer months, as well as on certain holidays, Easter, Pentecost, Christmas and New Year's for instance, rooms are almost impossible to find, even with the Office de Tourisme's smiling helpers.

Parisians dine late. Restaurants are open for lunch from 12 to 2 or 2:30 and for dinner from 7 to 10.

Michelin has a guide book which lists good restaurants charging 25 francs or less for a full meal. Those who wish to dine earlier than 7 will usually have to rely on snack bars, coffee shops, or brasseries, which are open at all hours.

Tipping is universal, in restaurants, taxis, and theaters. Most restaurants add a 15 per cent service charge to the bill, but the waiter will expect in addition a couple of francs as his "pourboire," as will the cloakroom attendant.

MOST STORES are open from 9 or 9:30 a.m. until 6 or 6:30 p.m. except on Sundays, and frequently Mondays as well. Department stores, however, are open six days a week, with one day — usually Wednesday — when they do not close until 9:30 or 10 p.m.

The ever-popular flea market, featuring "antiques" old and new, at the Porte de Clignancourt is open on Sundays and holidays, and it is still possible to find genuine buys there, but one must know what he is looking for and be able to drive hard bargains.

A more elegant (and therefore more expensive) center for antiques, also open on Sundays, is Swiss Village on Avenu la Motte Picquet, behind the Eiffel Tower.

MANY SOUVENIR stores offer discounts to foreign visitors. This is because foreign visitors are generally exempted from a commodity tax averaging 20 per cent built into the domestic price of most products. Usually you will be asked to pay the full price, obtain a receipt, and have it stamped by the customs officer when you leave the country. Mail the stamped receipt back to the store, and you should receive the promised discount.

Paris is liveliest in the spring and autumn, but temperatures are not extreme either in winter or summer, and one is well advised to bring a light coat and umbrella even in July or August for evening outings.

EVERY SEASON has its special delights for the visitor to Paris. Late October, for example, finds the city at leisure, offering its most gentle make-up. Gone are the summer vacationers and tourists. Landmarks can be visited uncrowded and unhurried. Here one such guest of Paris takes in the autumnal aura by feeding the pigeons in the Place de l'Etoile, while the stately Arch d'Triomphe stands guard over the carefree proceedings. Europe In August?

With Help Of Lady Luck And Adventuresome Spirit, It's A Joy

By URSULA McCARTHY

Exploring in ideal weather medieval European villages, romantic countrysides, quiet streams, dramatic paths over gorges and along sea cliffs, stopping where the mood prompts, and leisurely re-discovering on foot some of your favorite cities — "these are the stuff that dreams are made of."

But to do your own thing in Europe in August, without reservations, without itinerary, without uncomfortable weather — mission impossible! But accomplished.

In mid-July a year ago my dear parents gave me an unexpected birthday present: four weeks in Europe. "Go," they said, "and refresh yourself."

By choice I would never plan to travel in Europe in the summer, but since I wanted to share my birthday gift with one of my children, I felt that this time I had to go in August.

ONCE I MADE that decision, other decisions followed rapidly. We would try to avoid areas known for hot summer weather, explore some areas I had never seen, and revisit a few memorable spots. The most difficult decision — which child would I bring? After considerable soul-searching and practical evaluations, I chose the youngest of my seven children, Regina, then 12. By nature warm and responsive, and still a child, Regina proved to be a most enthusiastic adventurer and ideal traveling companion. Regina's child-like desire to include some "normal" summer fun, like swimming, led us to some unforgettable experiences.

We wandered through Bavaria like a pair of troubadours, following the gentle Main River through valleys sprinkled with ancient towers, medieval gates and massive abbeys. We stopped and gazed at any architectural gem of antiquity that caught our fancy.

In Wurzburg's Bishop's Residenz, a Baroque jewel, we were awed by the grandeur of the magnificent staircase. As Regina ascended the wide, marble staircase designed by Balthazar Neumann, overwhelmed by Tiepolo's panoramic fresco ceiling, she had her first taste of feeling like a princess.

FROM WURZBURG, we traveled the Romantic Road of medieval villages where we stopped to walk the complete ramparts of Rothenberg's fortified wall, discovered the very small cottages built into the side of the town wall of Nordlingen, played with some children in the grassy moat, fed the swans in the Dinkelsbuhl moat, and were thrilled by the riot of color that greeted us from all Bavarian window boxes.

In all the colorful villages, we met gracious Bavarians who helped us with our simple purchases of cheese, milk, bread, and fruit. The most beautiful garden in Dinkelsbuhl was in the backyard of a hardware store, whose owner kindly shows you through his store to feast your eyes on his garden.

At the base of the dramatic Alps, we hiked up the long, winding path to see the fairy-tale castle of Neuschanstein. Built in the Romantic Age by Ludwig II, it enkindles visions of the chivalrous deeds of the past. After the long but rewarding hike, a child's vision of refreshment was a swim in an Alpine lake. So we adventured and found a cool, clear lake surrounded by a forest.

THE HISTORICAL past of the Hapsburgs came to life as we gazed at the bronze statues created for the tomb of Emperor Maximilian in Innsbruck, Austria. The woodcarving genius of the Tyrolians was captured all together in the folklore museum in Innsbruck and at night the happy sounds of Tyrolian music, singing, dancing and yodeling were irresistible.

Taking our cue from the music, we went "to the hills" to commune with nature. In Kitzbuehl, we walked through silent meadows beneath majestic mountains. Here was the place to try for an echo. Still reveling in the simple joy of echoing, we swam, just the two of us, in a large Alpine lake next to the meadows.

This storage of serenity was, Isuspect, a good buffer for the unexpected excitement of the Salt Mines in Salzburg. The generation gap became apparent in this instance as Regina was delighted with the five steep slides into the black chasms of the mine, while I was — scared! There was no place to go but down — 230 feet — swift as lightning — the length of an Ave Maria, for I prayed all the way down!

"FANCY FREE," we were in Venice for five captivating days.

We explored by foot and every possible vaporetto all the wonders of Venice one finds only in this leisurely manner. But the most exciting view of the Grand Canal we shared was one that was a happy accident. We returned to Venice late one night, arriving at the train station from Vicenzo where we had spent the afternoon and evening admiring Palladio's great architecture. We caught the last vaporetto down the Grand Canal. It was midnight and quiet.

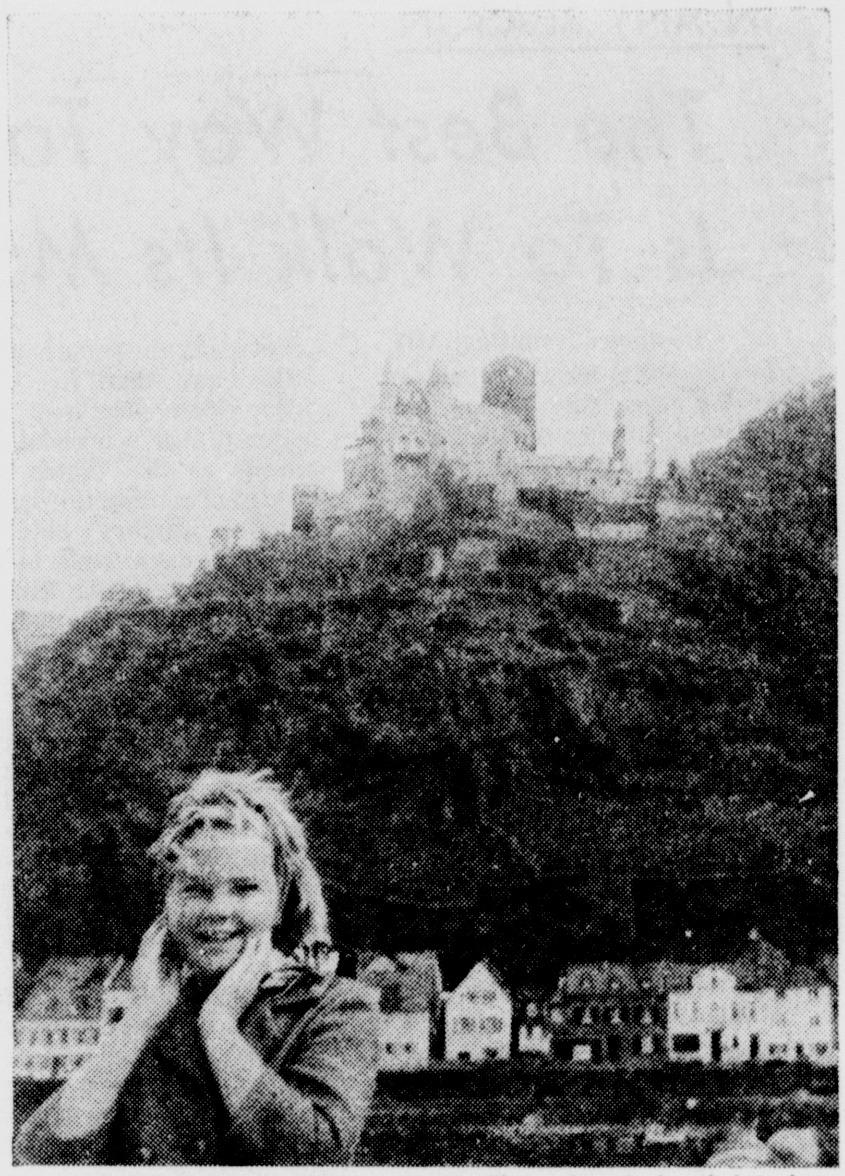

As the pilot began his slow run, making every stop, he turned off the lights on his boat. There before us were the architectural gems of the Grand Canal, bathed in golden spotlights. In our darkened theater, we were a hushed, captive audience, awed as the glories of Venice passed on stage before us. A night to remember!

Another stage was staggering in dramatic impact — the ancient Roman coliseum in Verona. Witnessing the opera "Romeo and Juliet" in all its grandeur, just after having visited the home reputedly to have been Juliet's, made an indelible impression that united history, drama, and music.

WE CREATED our own drama on the Italian Riviera known as Cinque Terra. Five old fishing villages are linked only by train or by a grape pickers' path. We chose to hike the latter, high above the Mediterranean Sea.

When we found an idyllic cove for swimming that proved to be irresistible, we dove in with our clothes on. As our dresses billowed like sails, the few in the audience smiled their approval of our performance.

A drama of another dimension we enacted without an audience when we discovered a plank foot path that clung perilously to the rocky wall of a magnificent gorge at the base of the queen of all dramatic mountain peaks, the Matterhorn. As we inched our way along the cliff, I proceeded my daughter over a suspension bridge. She courageously stayed behind to take my picture as I stood suspended over the roaring waters of the melted Alpine snow, gushing through this narrow gorge.

YOUNG REGINA McCARTHY thrills from the deck of her boat cruising the Rhine as one of Germany's legendary castles slips past, during her "fancy free" August tour of Europe in the company of her mother, Ursula McCarthy, of Greenbrae Travel.

FROM ITS source in the Alps, we sailed up the Rhine River past its romantic castles to Koblentz, where we turned east and followed the Lahn River into the countryside. We came upon a small, old-fashioned spa called Bad Elms. Its aristocratic, old hotels facing the gentle river and the broad, tree-lined promenade, charmed us.

We did not realize what was in store for us: it was the opening day of their annual dahlia festival and we had luckily taken the last hotel room, complete with a balcony overlooking the river. We were treated to spectacular fireworks, band concerts, a parade of dahlia floats that rivaled the Rose Parade in Pasadena, marching bands, and an old-fashioned carnival in the park at night that even included bumper cars.

A most unexpected fun finale to our August adventure in Bavaria, Northern Italy and Germany.

You may well comment, "How lucky can you get!" And that, I honestly feel, is the truth of the matter.

THROUGHOUT our four weeks we were always able to get a hotel room, even at 10 o'clock at night; we made every train connection, often in a healthy sweat; we saw everything that we wanted to see within that radius we had designed for ourselves; we discovered added delights; we stayed healthy; we were happy together, and we found much to laugh about.

A sense of humor is your travel insurance. It is essential if you want to make the "impossible" trip.

If you cannot laugh at your self when you end up sleeping in a kitchen converted into a bedroom and when you must climb through a window to get into your kitchen "suite" because the one key and your clothes are locked up in a closed bagno at the beach; if you cannot laugh at yourself when you end up locked inside a public arboretum and are forced to climb a high, wrought-iron picket fence to catch a train; if you cannot laugh at yourself when you find yourself on the local slow-moving train instead of the express to Milano and you have not had time to buy any food; if you cannot laugh at yourself when you must run with your luggage to make a train connection, then struggle through crowded corridors, car after car, still carrying your luggage, looking for an empty seat — if you cannot laugh at yourself, then draw your own conclusions!

SOME GENERAL advice:

On the debate, "to go or not to go without reservations," my evaluations are: if it is a first trip to Europe, find yourself a travel agent who has actually traveled where you want to go. On a first trip, you neither have the time or confidence to wander and seek as we did. I had been to Europe several times before deciding to do the "impossible" trip.

The more you read ahead and prepare yourself historically and culturally, the more you will put into your trip, and consequently, derive from it. Be good to yourself.

Find yourself that travel agent who has traveled extensively. Together, you can make your dream trip come true by knowledge, experience, enthusiasm and an adventuresome heart. You gamble when you depend upon Lady Luck!

July Is Great Garden Month

The month of July is a good one for the Marin gardener. He can make it as lazy, or as busy, as he feels like making it.

Maintenance chores, except for routine watering, are pretty much at the minimum.

On the other hand, if he chooses to do so, the gardener can make July one of his busier planting months, adding immediate shots of color to his landscape, or planning for future embellishments.

BORDERS OR paths can be redesigned, a foundation planting can be refurbished, planting can be started for the colorful fall season that is just ahead. Or, areas can be readied for the planting of a family vegetable garden, the yields to be enjoyed as fresh-picked produce this winter.

The gardener who is away from home on vacation in July should take a few precautions to protect his garden while he's gone. Mulch heavily around roses, azaleas, camellias, rhododendrons and fuchsias. This conserves moisture and helps control weeds.

Also, move potted plants to a shaded area where they can be reached conveniently with a hose. This simplifies things for the caretaker, and is a guard against the plants' drying out.

The California Assn. of Nurserymen suggests drawing up a detailed watering schedule for your garden-sitter, so that nothing is left to chance. Include which areas are to be watered when — and for how long.

And when watering, do not depend upon a hand sprinkling. That only moistens the surface of the soil, encouraging shallow rooting in your grass or dichondra. Frequent light sprinklings are ideal, too, for the growth of disease organisms. Water deeply — and thoroughly — while you are at it.

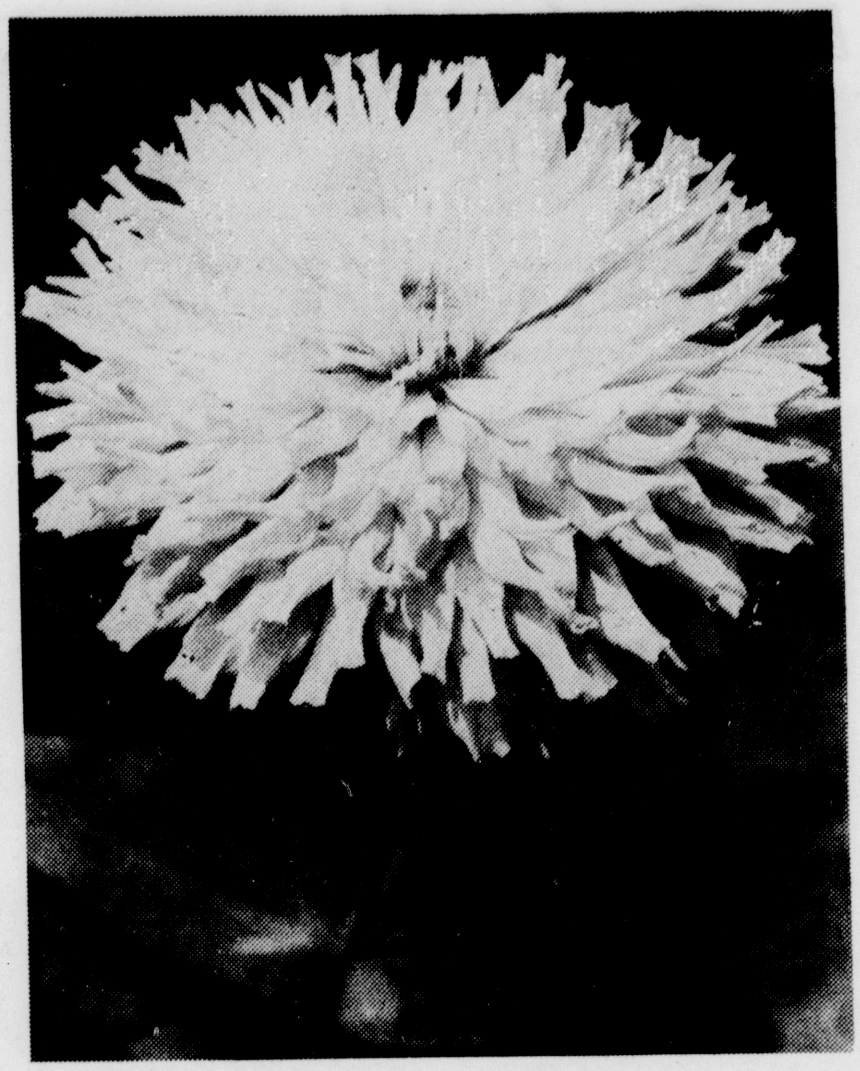

FOR BRIGHTENING the July garden, there are many colorful choices.

Tuberous begonias can be obtained in bloom; fuchsias are in full flower; likewise Cushion Chrysanthemums, which will give you color until fall 'mum show begins.

You'll find white and yellow marguerites in full bloom in nursery containers — as well as hibiscus, hydrangeas, and a big choice of container-grown roses.

Flowering annuals will fill-in garden bare spots in a very short time. There is a wide selection — everything from alyssum to zinnias.

If July is a month of outdoor living for your family, and the barbecue is an important part of the garden, make it even more appetizing by lining it with pots of herbs. Nurseries offer many culinary favorites in ready-to-use sizes.

THE NEW All-American zinnia, Carved Irovy, is just one of the summer-blooming annuals that can be used to give the garden a quick lift when warm weather doldrums set in among your plantings.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ Planning a party? Why not pick-up from the nursery some pots of bright blooming marigolds — they're unique and spectacular decorations.

✔ Canna lilies provide a boost to the color scheme in the summer garden. Now is a good time to select them — and the dwarf types which excel in sunny borders. The plants are available in nursery containers, in many colors.

✔ Selective controls are available for crabgrass in lawns; your nurseryman can outline procedures to follow to eliminate this pesty problem.

✔ Delphiniums which have bloomed should be cut back to about six inches, then fed and watered — toward a second flush of bloom.

✔ A good list of vegetables can be planted now for fall, and many of them are available as easy-to-transplant seedlings from nursery flats.

✔ For a contrast to the green that predominates in most landscapes, consider as your next shade tree a red Japanese maple.

Summer Care Of The Lawn

If you laid the proper foundation in the spring, the hot spells of summer and autumn pose no real threat to your lawn.

By "proper foundation" is meant a foundation of mulch of peat moss, wood or barkproducts, or one of the special organic lawn covers. This prepares the soil for drouth, enabling it to take up water and nutrition easily.

An unprepared lawn will dry out quickly. Then it becomes compacted and impenetrable, and by mid-summer the spring-fresh appearance is gone, replaced by a drab brown.

IN TRUTH, few of us have the foresight or the initiative to put in that extra effort in the spring when the lawn is at its best and appears to need no extra help from us. It is easy to forget the long dry summer ahead.

But if you failed to lay that foundation, there is no reason to despair, says the California Assn. of Nurserymen. Today's compacted, brown lawn can be turned into a carpet of green in a short time.

First, use a coring tool — or aerator — to spike the compacted lawn. If it is a big area, you may want to rent power equipment for the job. It will save time and effort.

Spiking with the correct tool removes a plug of soil and leaves the ground open to admit water and food. Spiking with a spading fork may compact the soil instead of helping the condition.

AFTER THE spiking process, brush or sweep sand into the holes to hold them open — and water frequently. Roughing the surface and scattering new lawn seed will benefit severly worn areas.

Top dressing with organic material, as described above, will lay the groundwork for a healthy soil surface and freedom from future compaction.

Water your lawn frequently during summer and feed it lightly at least once a month.

SPACE-SAVERS

THE ANSWER to the problem of limited space is often a plant that produces tiny, but colorful and profuse, flowers. One such is the tagetes, one of the Mexican or Signet marigolds, much smaller than the more familiar marigolds. There are other little plants ideally suited to little spaces in the garden.

About CARPETS

By Doug Emerson

COLOR can be used in so many ways in room decor . . . and most particularly in large areas of color such as room size rugs or wall-to-wall carpeting.

Use color to visually alter the size of problem rooms. The strong hot colors that are "in" right now, such as the family of reds and yellows and rust colors, make a room look smaller and warmer. The colors move toward you. They are also good in dark, sunless rooms.

The cool, pale hues, such as the icy greens called after celery or vermouth, the pale lilacs and ever-popular whites and off-whites, are colors that recede visually. They make mini-rooms loom larger.

While color in carpet can and should be used as a personal fashion expression, avoid going too far toward "fad" colors. They're fine in clothing, but apparel items are not designed to be seen every day over many years. Carpets are. They will outlast the fads of today . . . and you'll be better off without an obsolete color that was briefly modish.

We can help you select the right carpet colors . . . not only because we have a tremendous selection in every shade, but we can also bring color samples to your home for on-the-spot shopping and selection. Come in . . . or give us a call for shop-at-home service.

Who Says Campers Can't Be Comfortable?

CAMPING has come to be the choice of Americans who must, by necessity, vacation economically, or who prefer, by choice, to vacation simply. Camping can also be enjoyed in reasonable comfort — if you plan your equipment and supplies with care. For instance, the camp kitchen shown at right can make food preparation and service a snap. It not only offers compartments for utensils and canned goods, but also convenient space for the camp stove. The top leaves open to provide a dining table for as many as six people. Made of quarter-inch plywood, it is light, though strong, and handles at each end make it easy to carry. It folds into a compact unit 28 inches wide, 39 inches long and nine inches high that fits into the car trunk or the back of a station wagon. And to go with it there are folding camp stools. With the help of Steve Ellingson's pattern, it's a weekend project for a handyman helped by others in the family. Send $1 and specify Pattern 336 (camp kitchen and stools) to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409.

The Good Taste From Past Centuries Adds Warmth

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

It's fun to be a part of this age of appreciation for well-worn design ideas.

Some designers preduct that this nostalgic attitude for old things will shortly erode into a period of rejection. I hope not. Let's try to retain the best of every period, along with some of the funky stuff.

OF COURSE, it's possible to create warmth without age-old furnishings. Color, texture, pattern are available in every design period. And you can use them in a sterile way or in the loose, casual way that makes people comfortable.

Architects have learned this lesson. Sometimes a client will ask a practitioner of contemporary architecture to create a home that has Colonial American overtones. Rather than flip out, the wise architect will develop a plan that makes use of the materials that reflect Americana.

Brick floors, warm finishes on wood cabinets, big fireplaces, comfortable kitchens — these are the things such clients look for. They don't want to pump water in the kitchen sink or heat the house with chopped wood. They want every contemporary convenience.

They are really in search of a "look."

IT HAPPENS even in Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Alaska. The new owners want to capture the mood of a locale. Frequently there are good indigenous solutions to climatic problems that an architect might copy for his advantage. But still the need is for 20th Century convenience plus all the good taste of previous centuries.

The interior illustrated at right is a case in point. It is the library of Mr. and Mrs. William Scheft of Masschusetts, and it was the recipient of a Best-Dressed House Award from Burlington House.

Mrs. Scheft uses braided runner rugs for this charming space. But instead of settling for one single rug, she had a series of them sewn together to cover the whole floor. Then, with restored wicker pieces and recovered upholstery, she created a look appropriate for her 19th Century house.

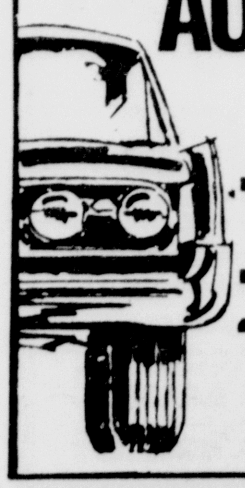

Blue tones in fabrics, bright white furniture and deep navy walls are contemporary colors. But there's a nice unity with the past.

Handyman's Pages

THE LIBRARY of Mr. and Mrs. William Scheft of Massachusetts bridges the gap between 19th and 20th centuries by wedding restored wicker furniture with fresh fabrics and braided rugs. The room captured a coveted Burlington House decor award for its owners.

To Enjoy Fully Your Home Pool

With mid-summer upon us, doctors will be seeing an increasing number of cases of irritation and infection of eyes, ears, nose, throat and skin, traceable to improper maintenance of private swimming pools.

Such cases are needless. Given the proper care, a swimming pool contributes greatly to the health and well-being of its users, rather than posing any health problems.

To enjoy fully the health and recreational benefits of your pool, the California Medical Assn. recommends these precautions and maintenance steps:

1. When adults or competent older youngsters are not present, be sure the pool is adequately fenced or covered and never leave youngsters in the pool without supervision.

2. Depth of water should be plainly marked at shallowest and deepest points, and no more than 25 feet apart.

3. A handhold should be provided not more than nine inches above normal water level. Steps or ladders should be provided if the distance from the bottom of the pool to poolside is over two feet.

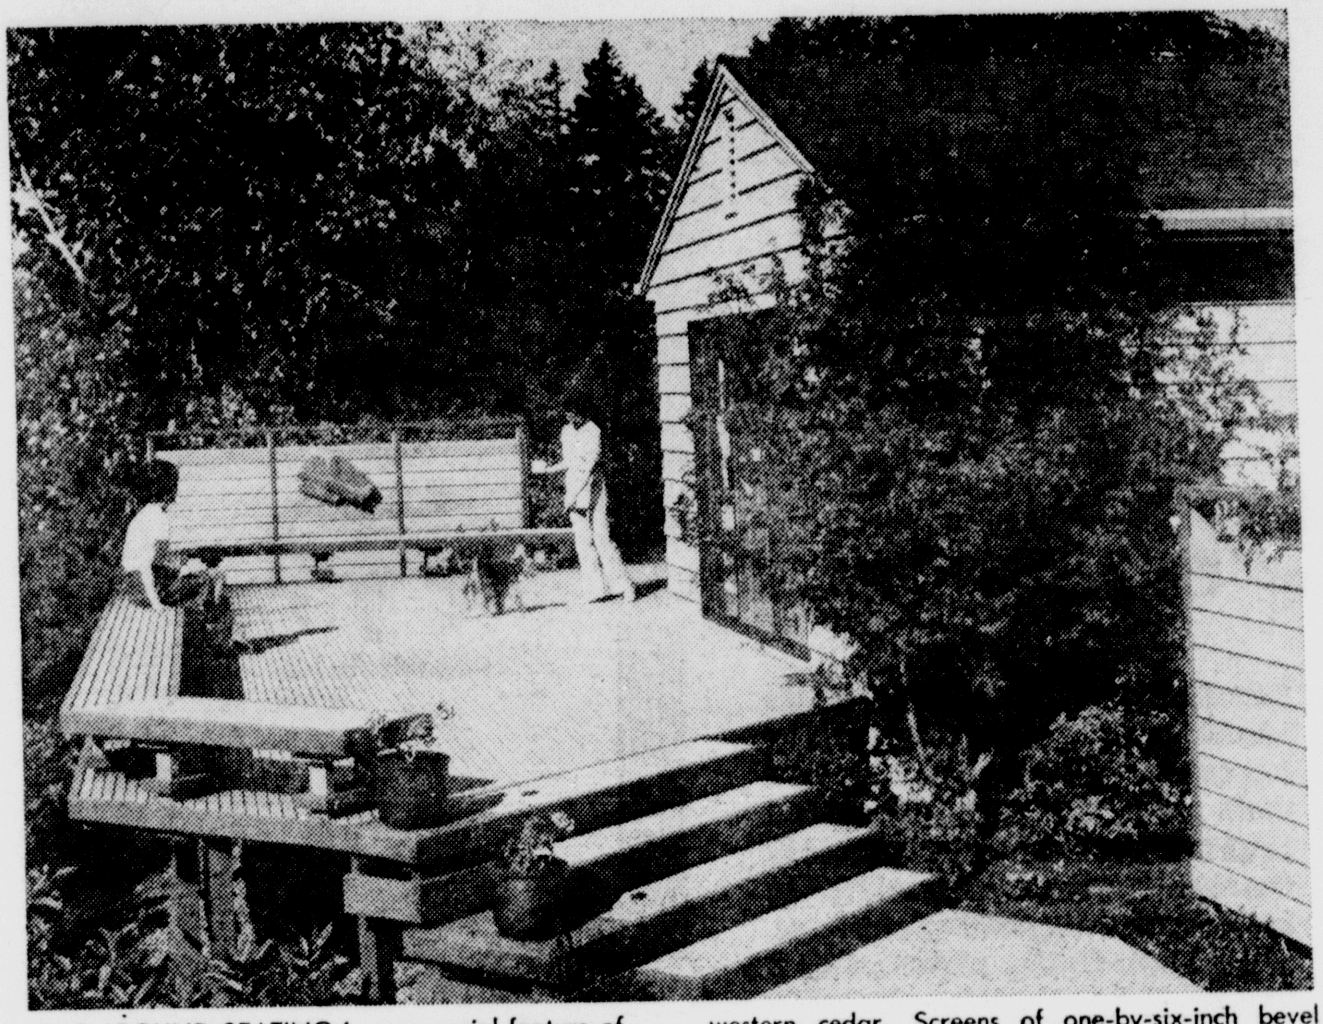

4. Paved surface around the pool should be non-slip and adequately drained away from the pool.

5. If the pool is to be used at night it should have underwater lights. Waterproofing of circuits should be checked by a competent electrician.

6. The water supply should come from a community water system holding a State Board of Public Health permit.

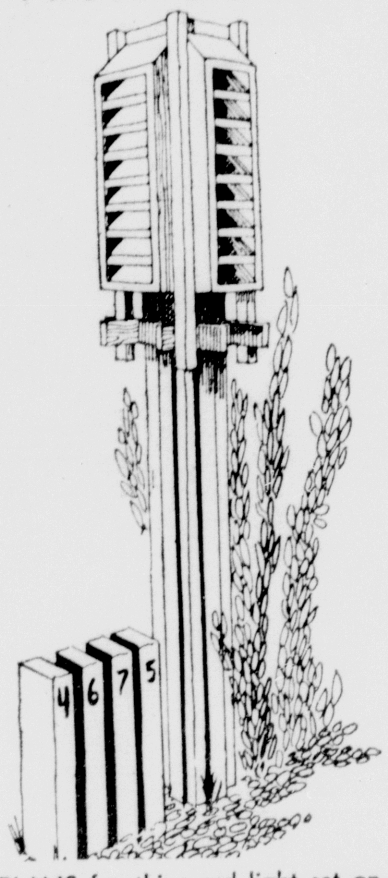

7. The pool should be skimmed and floating scum, sputum, and debris removed.

8. Pools should be continuously disinfected by a chemical which imparts a residual effect.

WRAP-AROUND SEATING is one special feature of this new entry deck that provides an outdoor entertainment center just off the living room. The decking and bench seats are two-by-two-inch western cedar. Screens of one-by-six-inch bevel siding define the entry route. Dark-stained bench, step facing, fence posts and cap all serve to outline the design.

NIGHT LIGHT

PLANS for this yard light set on four-by-four wood posts, with two-by-fours below announcing the house numbers, can be obtained by sending 15 cents to Western Wood Products Assn., Department 539-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204. It makes it easy for guests to find the right address and the front door.

When Living Room Is In Rear, Entry Must Be Clearly Defined

Placing the living room at the rear or side of the house, whether in a new dwelling or by means of add-a-room remodeling, provides a quiet point for vista and relaxation that's free from street distractions.

Within view of the living and dining areas inside, an outdoor setting can be created to a family's taste — whether it be a tiny court with container plantings, or a much larger, perhaps formal garden.

But one negative aspect of this room arrangement lies in location of the main entry, which logically belongs near the living-entertaining area. While eliminating a long, single-purpose hall through the house to the front makes interior sense, the lack of an obvious front entry can confuse visitors, who may just as often end up at the kitchen or garage door.

THIS SORT of inconvenience can be remedied. The first step is to accentuate the main door and set up a little camouflage, such as sections of western board fencing, to screen out others. Wood screens can also point the way to the entry while creating intimate garden spots in front of windows that formerly stared into the street.

Visually, the object is to link the "front" door with the front of the house. When the entry is actually hidden behind a projecting wing, and the wing contains the living room, a wide L-shaped entry deck is just the ticket to direct traffic and serve as an open-air addition for entertaining.

One sturdy deck construction that complements a new or not-so-new home is two-by-two inch western cedar over four-by-four-inch joists and posts. Laying the cedar parallel to the house forms a neat pattern, drawing the eye toward the entry.

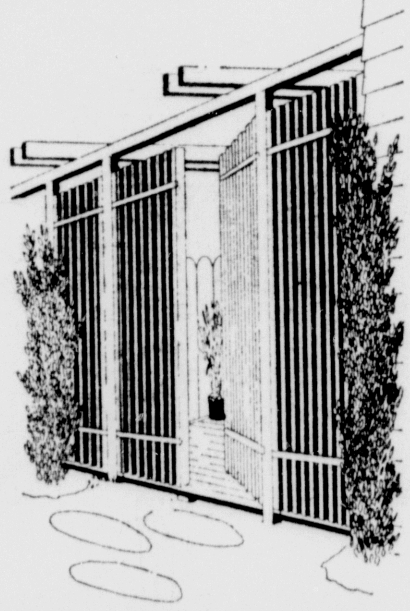

Benches of the same two-by-two-inch cedar take the place of a rail on a raised deck and provide extensive seating as well.

STEPS TO the deck should be at least wide enough for three people to walk comfortably for a genuinely welcoming look. If the house has very clean, simple lines, angling the front edge of the deck and steps can add considerable appeal.

Staining step, deck and facing bench a shade or two darker than deck color, perhaps approximating the house trim, further accents the design.

Carefully placed shrubs and plantings preserve privacy while enhancing the area for outdoor living.

GREAT GATE

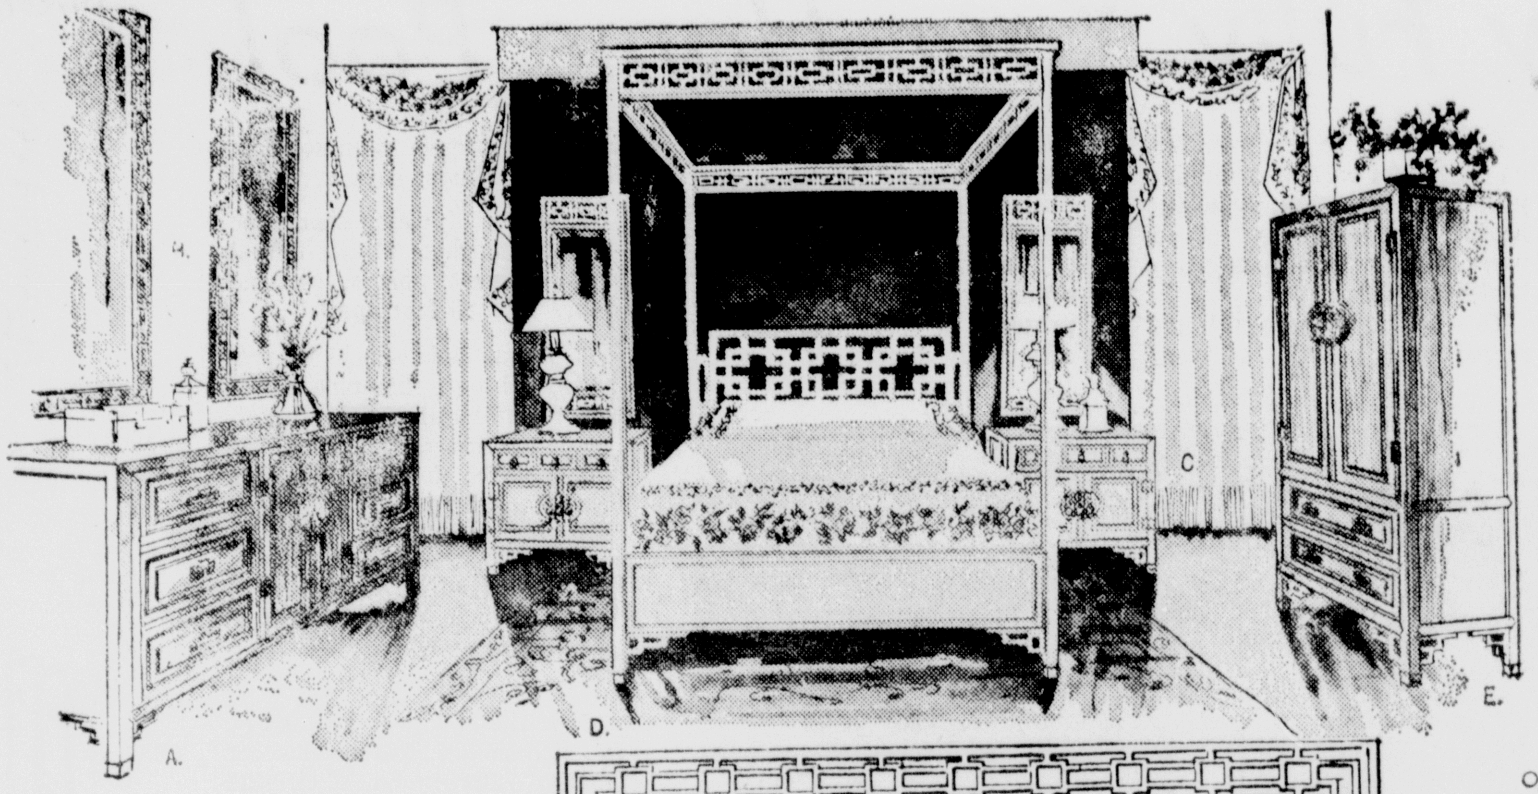

A NEGLECTED side yard takes on both utility and beauty with the addition of this gate and a screen of one-by-two-inch cedar plus fir deck and a privacy fence on the property line. As with all such fences, check on your local building code requirements before proceeding with the construction. But side yard restrictions are generally liberal.

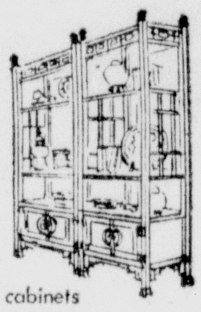

BAHIA BY HOFMANN; SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: $32,950

Bahia is 30 miles north of San Francisco in Novato. It's a rare jewel of a place. It's horse country, hiking country, sailing country, water-skiing country and relaxing country. Because Hofmann has built some lovely waterside and offshore homes around a lovely lagoon with year round water passage to San Francisco Bay. On 101 in Novato, turn off at Atherton Avenue, and follow signs.

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Robert Conrad is seldom without a television series for any extended period. The former star of "Wild, Wild West," "The D.A." and "Hawaiian Eye," to name some, returns in the fall as head man in the "Assignment: Vienna" portion of a weekly trilogy on ABC that carries the overall title, "The Men."

Comedienne Lily Tomlin has signed to return to "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" as a regular when the NBC show returns in the fall.

Tom Ewell, veteran stage, screen and television star, is now a regular member of the CBS "Search for Tomorrow" daytime drama serial. His role is a new one, that of a public prosecutor.

ABC's college football schedule begins Sept. 9 when Tennessee plays Georgia Tech. Games for the next five Saturdays: Sept. 16, Arizona State-Houston; Sept. 23 regional, Nebraska-Army, Georgia-Tulane, Stanford-Duke, Bowling Green-Miami Ohio; Sept. 30, Illinois-Washington; Oct. 7, Notre Dame-Michigan State; Oct. 14 regional, Oklahoma-Texas, Arizona-New Mexico, Citadel-East Carolina. Games for the rest of the season will be chosen after it begins, some possibly only five days before game times, to insure that the broadcasts will have teams that are in top competition.

For the first time in the telecasting of the finals of the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., viewers will be shown activities backstage among the contestants as well as the onstage events. NBC has the program at 10 p.m. Sept. 9.

Former Los Angeles Rams football star David "Deacon" Jones will play himself in an episode of "The Odd Couple" next season with stars Tony Randall and Jack Klugman.

David Janssen, following the demise of his "O'Hara, United States Treasury" series, will star in two television movies next season: "The Longest Night" and "Moan of the Wolf."

Actor Dan Dailey will turn director for an episode of Sandy Duncan's show.

Michael Dann, Network TV Fugitive

By ALAN BUNCE

"After two years as a corporate drone, you can get awfully jailed by the limousines, 21 Club, fresh flowers in the office, the butler serving you coffee, and having them hold the 707 until you get on board and go to your own special seat."

Michael Dann's legs were folded in front of him as he leaned back and remembered. The former boss of CBS-TV programming seemed to have a newsreel of his career unwinding in his head. But a clinical gap separated the events on the film and the man describing them.

The memories he scanned — business deals, emotions, everything — were registered in a cool high-pitched voice that only occasionally sprang into feeling.

ONE OF THE real celebrities of commerical TV, he now sat in his New York office at the Children's Television Workshop, a non-profit company that produces "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" for public television, where he serves as vice-president and assistant to CTW's president, Joan Ganz Cooney.

"Leaving material royalty is not easy when you have growing children and you come from a middle-class family from Detroit," he went on. "But there was the Smothers Brothers crisis, and the pressures from my own family, particularly seeing the young children grow up with a profound disrespect for what I was doing.

"When you go to a cocktail party and have to defend yourself constantly, you can develop a neurosis, which I did over the years.

"And I was justifiably criticized for what I was doing, for the quality of most of the programming. If I spoke to any responsible woman college graduate, could I ask her what soap opera or what quiz program she looked at in the daytime?

"I KNEW THAT television would be in for difficult times and would deteriorate more than it had. And there is nothing since I left that has led me to believe I made an unwise decision.

"If you look back through the history of commerical broadcasting and its presidents — and I worked for 15 of them — the toll it took upon them was tremendous. It made the old movie moguls look absolutely amateurish. But always part of it came — I see now that I've left it — because you really weren't getting any satisfaction. A farmer can come in from the field perspiring and exhausted. He looks out the window and the wheat's pretty high, he feels very good.

"I've always felt that those of us in commerical broadcasting, after working so hard, were always a little bit leery about turning on the set."

On the wall behind his desk hung an arresting tapestry woven by children in Peru. The other walls of his office — which he decorated himself — boast huge old maps and other nice effects.

"I'M NOT SO sure I left television or television left me," Dann explains. "But for 20 years I ran program departments of two major networks (NBC's was the other one), and I've seen and done good and bad, everything from Mary Martin to 'Peter Pan' to 'Death of a Salesman' to Gielgud.

"But to me the turning point was personally — and everybody has a personal turning point — when the Smothers Brothers were cancelled (during a celebrated flap over alleged blue material and abrasive jokes). They were the pioneers of controversial social and political satire of the past ten years. Today they would be considered mild."

How did the architect of so many prime-time commerical entertainment series end up with a non-profit group? His former career was made up of big-money stakes and jockeying for that extra share of the national audience. CTW stresses educational research and social meaning.

"I CAME TO Joan Cooney and asked her for a job," Dann relates, "because CTW for me represented the most extraordinary chance in the United States to achieve things I'd always believed in and didn't know how to do. They did.

"Right now, I sit in most meetings and am the dumbest person in the room, and I really do learn something about broadcasting. That's the exciting thing for me as one changes jobs. Instead of being the complete professional that I was — in the sense of what commercial television required — I learn

"I was kind of an expert after 20 years of doing the same thing, and that gets very boring.

"I work much harder now It's sort of like working in a garden, because I don't have any goals to achieve. The workshop doesn't say, 'We require so many viewers.' It has never said to me, 'We want to be in so many countries.' The constant question is, 'Are you doing any good?' "

DANN'S JOB includes selling "Sesame Street" to English-speaking countries around the world. He also promotes for-

CATHERINE (CASSIE) MACKIN, news correspondent for NBC, will be the first woman to become a national political convention floor reporter, covering the 1972 national conventions from Miami Beach Convention Hall. The Democrats are scheduled to start their convention Monday at 4 p.m. with all the network outlets covering the proceedings daily through Thursday.

TOM VON RUDEN, representing the Pacific Coast Track Club, breaks the tape with his chest in another winning performance in 1972. He is a strong possibility to make the team as a miler at the U.S. Men's Olympic Track and Field Trials, to be telecast from Eugene, Ore. Monday at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

Killing Time On Tokyo TV

Shukan Asahi, one of Japan's largest weekly magazines, reports that a group of Tokyo housewives watched six television networks for four hours on one Saturday evening.

During the four hours, about 140 gangsters, Samurai warriors, American Indians, cowboys and other people were killed on the screen. Some killings came so quickly that an accurate count was difficult, the magazine said.

A Move To Ban The Competition

Filipino movie producers and theater owners are up in arms over a senate bill limiting the importation of foreign films. Guillermo de Vega, chairman of the Philippines Board of Censors for Motion Pictures favors it. He said a certain cutback on foreign film imports would be an incentive to local film producers.

MICHAEL DANN

From Soap Operas To 'Sesame Street'

eign-language versions of the show and is looking into cable TV as a possibility for CTW.

One of the things that seems to bother him most about the commerical shows he used to have produced on film was their locked-in status, once made.

"In June or July," he recalls with a distant exasperation, "I would sit with between 13 and 40 films in the can and know I had total disaster. But they would be going on the air three months later and I would be okaying the ads for something I knew was not palatable for anyone, let alone myself. They were failures. They were just terrible films. But we'd made them already and it was too late."

"Sesame Street," on the other hand, is produced on tape only a few weeks before being aired. All kinds of things can influence the shape of the show: research, new ideas, audience reaction.

"YOU WOULD think we made the worst show in the world here," Dann says rather gleefully. "When you sit down with the people in the workshop, they pick it apart every day. As I travel around the world, it's very difficult to bring back anything but favorable reports.

"But here they relish criticism. That's the difference. They're not on the defensive here.

"At the network, we had a 'bedbug' letter in response to criticism. It went out explaining why such and such a program was proper but we were proud they watched it and called the matter to our attention, etc.

"Something unfavorable comes to the workshop, and the assumption is made that the man or woman is probably right. If my daughter finds something in the show disturbing, half the people don't sleep here at night." At this point his voice was all but quivering with conviction.

ACTUAL LIVE TV is a golden memory for Dann.

"You could change week to week," he remarks. "The great success of the Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca sketches was that if one worked well a certain week, Max Liebman the producer would say to the writers — to Carl Reiner and to Mel Brooks and Neil Simon — 'Do you know, we ought to do it again.' Doc Simon did a movie satire and it worked so well we did one every third week. If you'd make 26 'Show of Shows' ahead of time, you couldn't have done that.

"The last program I recommended at CBS was 'All in the Family,' which I saw after it was made four months previously. I had nothing to do with the creation of it. I just saw it and recommended it. The management after me bought it.

"But it's not by chance that that hit and the other great shows of the last five or six years have all been from the live form. Nobody's proven this more than the BBC. Television's great success comes from immediacy.

"BY AND LARGE the degree of experimentation has continued to decrease in commercial TV over the yaars. The development budgets have gone down.

"I've just returned from a tour of European major cities. People were interested in 'Sesame Street,' in our latest research results. Their big interest is when they can carry the show or have a foreign version.

"That which excited me from the first days of television in 1949 and '50 is now becoming a reality for me again. Somehow or other I've suddenly developed a less guilty feeling about television."

Marin Poets' Corner

PANACEA

We, who have seen
The greatness and the glory
Deeded us these seventy years
Look askance for those
Bornd the present times
Whose shattered scenes
Both violent and decayed
Unmerciless the test
Fruitless their ideals
Remorsefully regret
The salvaging of their debt.

SAUSALITO — LEON SPIRO

A CONCEPT OF EARTH

stone fences surround my earth;
they haven't lost their touch, never lose their purpose
while there's ground to shake, wind to break the tops off.
on slow days the watching's done and so's the listening to the rain take fences down invisibly, ton by ton —
and there's time to build
a concept of earth.

SAN ANSELMO — DAN KEENER

MOMENTS

Life is made up of moments.
They arrive one at a time.
What we do with them is really us;
For they made man, the primate, climb.

Some still look upon them as bananas
Harvested in lush, escapist bunches
To be peeled, and gorged at will,
According to their hunches.

Others see them as swarms of gnats
And swat them with a flurry;
Never to have known life —
Except as one big fruitless flurry.

Yet more feel they face a great stampede
With one thought: to turn and flee.
Rather than to catch the point
And convert it to their tree.

But to those of us who are almost human
All these reactions remain absurd.
We simply store each moment as life,
To be relived with every thought and word.

On The Stereo Scene

Some Delius, Liszt And More Satie

By JOHN SUNIER

More classical albums on the Angel labels:

"MUSIC OF DELIUS": Brigg Fair, A Song Before Sunrise, Marche-Caprice, First Cuckoo in Spring, Summer Night on the River, Sleigh Ride, Intermezzo from "Fennimore and Gerda" — Royal Philharmonic Orchestra/Sir Thomas Beecham - Seraphim S-60185:

The late Sir Thomas Beecham has left us a glorious legacy in his atmospheric performances of the music of his close personal friend, Frederick Delius. This re-release assembles seven works in cleaned-up sound of a new pressing with excellent surfaces and at a bargain price at that. This would be an excellent introduction to the pleasures of Delius for anyone interested in serene, sensuous music.

"LISZT PROGRAM" By Agustin Anievas, pianist — Angel S-36820:

This 38-year-old pianist who recently had his Town Hall debut (though he has made other recordings for Angel already) dazzles with brilliant technical prowess, yet stays within bounds of good taste and doesn't neglect attention to simpler or quieter passages. The superb recording surely helps his performing statement, since the Lisztian dynamic range is most difficult to record properly, even with the almost universal use of Dolby processing and other improvements. The Six Paganini Etudes are the highlight of a recital including also the Hungarian Rhapsody No. 12 and the Mephisto Waltz No. 1.

"PIANO MUSIC OF ERIK SATIE, VOLUME 6" — Aldo Ciccolini - Angel S-36811:

Would you believe Volume 6? This Satie thing shows no signs of slowing down — at a recent short film festival, three films in a row used Satie piano music as soundtracks. This album, by the pianist whose first mono volume of Satie really started it all, adds several pieces which some of the competing versions boasted, plus some which absolutely nobody has recorded before. My favorites were the "Ogives" and "Danses gothiques." The "Sonatine bureaucratique" is unfortunately not as funny as its title — it sounds exactly like Clementi and reminds me of piano lessons. Mainly for Satie nuts who wear with pride the "Satie Tushy Patch" which Angel kindly sent to reviewers not long ago.
